250 PRINTING FIRMS LOCK OUT 10,000 PRESSROOM MEN

DENOUNCE REVOLT LEADERS

International President Warns Workers Against Bolshevism and Soviet Rule.

The pressrooms of 250 printing plants, other than newspapers, including those of magazines, trade papers, and periodicals in New York City, will close this morning for an indefinite time, as a result of the failure of the employers and the pressmen and feeders to agree as to the demands of the local unions for a forty-four-hour week and a wage increase of $16. It is estimated that 10,000 employes will be made idle. The five local unions are not recognized by the International Union, and the employers refused to make a new contract with them for that reason, and posted notices in their plants yesterday that those without international cards would not be employed today.

While the list of publications affected could not be obtained last night, it was said by representatives of both employing printers and the unions that practically all the periodicals printed in New York would suspend indefinitely. This is in accordance with a decision reached at a meeting of 152 publishers some weeks ago, who said they would suspend indefinitely rather than submit to the demands of the union, which would make their labor cost approximately 66 2-3 per cent. more than at present.

The Literary Digest is one large publication that will not be affected, it was said. The Publishers' Printing Company, which prints it, had a strike some weeks ago, and, through the help of the international union officials, has a force supplied by the new locals established by the international union. It is the plan of the international union to recruit men as rapidly as possible to operate the plants that will be closed today.

Major George L. Berry, President of the international union, who is in the city, declined to meet the heads of the "outlawed" unions, Bernard Nolan and James J. Bagley, in an effort to bring about an adjustment of the internal differences. He said he would not permit the return of Nolan and Bagley to the international union, but suggested that any members of the unions whose charters had been revoked might apply for membership in the new locals sanctioned by the International. Major Berry has stood with the employing printers in the fight, holding that the forty-four-hour week should go into effect on May 1, 1921, the time agreed upon by a committee of the international union and the employers and affirmed by a referendum vote of the international.

All Ordered to Close.

The decision to close the pressrooms of the 250 members of the Association of Employing Printers "irrespective of any and all developments," was made at an executive session of the Printers' League Section at the Hotel Astor yesterday morning. The association represents about 75 per cent. of the commercial printing houses of the city. At the conclusion of the meeting, the following notice to employing printers in the association was made public:

Instructions to members of the Printers' League, to be read and followed in connection with the inclosed notice:

1. Post the inclosed notice not later than Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 30, 1919, throughout your plant.
2. Close pressrooms, beginning Wednesday morning, Oct. 1, 1919, irrespective of any and all developments.
3. Refer all members of pressrooms and paper-handling forces who express a desire to continue work to the office of the new local unions affiliated with the L. P. I. and A. U., Room 605, 150 Nassau Street.
4. No applicant for work, even when presenting an international card, should be put to work until you have called "Information" at Printers' League headquarters, 512 Fiatiron Building, (Telephone Gramercy 4383,) and had his standing confirmed.
5. Keep employes in composing rooms, foundries, binderies, and mailing-rooms at work so long as you have anything for them to do.
6. All present conditions of wages, hours, and shop practices apply until negotiations now pending are completed.
7. For inquiries covering any other points telephone headquarters of Printers' League, Gramercy 4383, and ask for "Information" and not for any individual.

The following is the notice that was posted for the information of the employes:

Rainey Wins on League Stand in Congress Vote in Alabama

GADSDEN, Ala., Sept. 30.—Indications tonight were that L. B. Rainey, Democrat, was successful in the Congressional election today in the Seventh District over C. B. Kennamer, Republican, to succeed the late Representative John L. Burnett. Rainey appears to have carried every county in the district. Nineteen precincts in Etowah gave Rainey a majority of 1,023.

The League of Nations covenant was one of the leading issues in the election, Rainey favoring the League and Kennamer opposing it as drafted.

CITY ABLAZE WITH FLAGS

FIUME, Sept. 28, Via Vienna. (Associated Press.)—Fiume is ablaze with flags, her streets are filled with marching soldiers, and her air is vibrant with the confidence felt by the men who, under the command of Captain Gabriele d'Annunzio, marched into the city and still firmly hold it.

Italy's flag, with that of the city of Fiume, predominates, the only foreign banner being the French tricolor floating over the French naval headquarters. Pennants bearing the words "Viva Italia" and Captain d'Annunzio's slogan, "Fiume or Death," mingle with the red, white, and green of Italy and the violet, blue, and yellow of Fiume.

The correspondent reached Fiume last night from Trieste, being buried in the coal in the tender of a locomotive for the last part of the journey to avoid guards along the way.

Soldiers are everywhere in the city. Motor trucks lurch through the streets carrying armed men from one point to another, and hundreds of troops may be seen at any hour marching with the greatest precision and with the strictest military discipline, the whole scene being similar to that to be encountered at a great Italian military post.

All Arms Represented.

Men from all regiments, arms and branches of the service seem to be here. Among them are thousands of veterans of the great war, a majority of the men wearing three or four service medals as well as those indicating they volunteered for the fighting here. One lieutenant on the staff of Captain d'Annunzio wears six wound stripes, while men who wear four or five stripes are frequently met.

There is an air of confidence everywhere among the volunteers, who, wearing their gray uniforms, look as much at home as they would in Rome or Florence. The uniforms of the men are decked with the regulation Italian Army insignia, and military regulations are enforced. Strictest attention is paid to the military salute, while most rigorous rules govern those engaged in guard duty. Two companies of Alpinists passed down a street today on their way to mount guard about the city, and as they marched the men sang patriotic songs.

Captain d'Annunzio's headquarters are established in the Governor's palace, which has been converted into a veritable general staff building, filled with different departments. The private office of the poet-aviator overlooks the city. The building is the finest in

HITCHCOCK ROUSED BY TREATY DELAY; SEES FILIBUSTER

LODGE DENIES OBSTRUCTION

Indications Reported That President May Compromise on Interpretative Reservations.

FALL DEFENDS AMENDMENT

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Angered over what he called the deliberate failure of the Republican leaders to expedite the handling of the Peace Treaty in the Senate, Senator Hitchcock, the acting minority leader, in the debate today asserted that he was willing to risk defeat on the changes advocated by the League of Nation opponents, if the leaders would agree to come to a speedy vote.

Senator Hitchcock bluntly accused the Republicans of filibustering. They had persistently pursued a policy, he said, of heckling the President, by dragging into the Senate for debate various matters that were in no way related to the treaty. A few of the leaders, he said, in this "evident procrastination in handling the treaty," were actuated by political motives.

"I am willing to be beaten on the changes which the majority of the Foreign Relations Committee has proposed, if the leaders will bring them up for vote," exclaimed Mr. Hitchcock. "I am anxious for speedy action on the treaty and am willing to take my chances in a vote any time the leaders on the other side will agree to it."

Senator Lodge, the majority leader, while not accepting the challenge to come to a vote on the pending amendments, vigorously insisted that there had been no filibustering by Republicans. It was quite natural that there would be much debate on the various features of the treaty, he said, and, so far as he could see, no Senator had been wasting time.

Challenged in Trau Debate.

Senator Hitchcock's challenge to the Republican leaders came in the debate on the resolution offered by Senator New asking the State Department for information as to why American marines had been landed at Trau, on the Dalmatian coast. The resolution, altered so as to direct it to the President, instead of the Secretary of State, was adopted by a viva voce vote.

The Nebraska Senator, in upbraiding the Republican leaders, as he said, for "squandering the time of the Senate," remarked that, while the thirty-five amendments of Senator Fall of New Mexico, to eliminate the United States from participation in commissions created under the treaty, had been before the Senate for more than a week, not a word of debate had been uttered upon them. Later in the day Senator Fall himself launched the debate in his amendments, savagely attacking the entire league covenant.

If debate on the Fall amendments is speeded up, a vote may be taken before the week is over. Senator Lodge gave no hint tonight as to when he thought the vote might come. He indicated that, while he wanted the amendments disposed of as soon as possible, he did not intend to be unduly hurried.

While debate was on in the Senate, various Senators were engaged in endeavoring to work out a compromise on the Johnson amendment to equalize the vote of the British Empire and the United States in the League of Nations

Move to Avoid Delay in Sending Federal Troops

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Authority has been given commanding Generals of military departments to furnish troops necessary for the protection of lives and property in case of disorders in the limits of their departments. Such protection can be furnished only upon request from the proper State officials, the instructions from Secretary Baker read.

It was explained that the action was taken to obviate the necessity of departmental commanders referring such requests to the department with consequent danger of the disorders getting out of control before action could be taken.

VOTE CONFIDENCE IN CLEMENCEAU

VOTE ON TREATY THURSDAY?

Adoption of Closure on Discussion in French Chamber, Expected Today, May Permit It.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The Clemenceau Government was sustained on a question of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today. The Premier's demand for postponement of discussion of the motion of Deputy André Lefèvre, instructing the Government to seek the addition of a rider to the Versailles treaty for the further disarmament of Germany, was agreed to by a vote of 298 to 188.

On the resumption of the debate on the Peace Treaty today, M. Lefèvre demanded the immediate discussion of his motion, which proposed that the Government should be invited to open new negotiations with the signers of the Versailles treaty.

M. Lefèvre declared that Germany was still arming, and that the Versailles treaty left her the power to continue to do so, since the conditions for control or limitation of armaments were impossible of enforcement. Discussion of his position after the ratification of the Peace Treaty, as had been proposed by the Government, he said, would be an empty gesture.

Premier Clemenceau said that the manufacture by Germany of heavy artillery had been suppressed, and that the Ministry was ready to negotiate later with the Allies for an exacting observance of the treaty. He believed that he could obtain what Deputy Lefèvre wanted, but after ratification of the treaty.

His concluding words caused a great impression upon the House: "If the Chamber decides for immediate discussion I cannot continue to work for the application of the treaty."

M. Clemenceau then demanded the postponement of this discussion until after the treaty had been ratified, and proposed the question of confidence in the Government on the demand of Deputy Lefèvre for immediate discussion. The Lefèvre resolution had been considered earlier in the peace commission of the Chamber. After having heard Premier Clemenceau, who explained that negotiations with the allied and associated powers on the subject of the actual disarmament of Germany would not oblige him to negotiate at the same time with Germany, the commission decided that the resolution should be introduced again in a form which would not interfere with the treaty and which could be accepted by the Government.

The resolution suggested by Deputy Grodet of the commission as a substitute for the Lefèvre resolution read:

"The Chamber invites the Government to engage in negotiations with the allied and associated powers with the object of bringing about the actual disarmament of Germany and of her allies by means of the prohibition of certain war manufactures and of all measures estimated necessary."

The remainder of the sitting was occupied with a speech by René Renault, President of the Socialistic Radicals, one of the largest groups in the Chamber, supporting the ratification of the Peace Treaty and praising the proposed League of Nations.

"It is inconceivable," said M. Renault, "that the United States, after being the promoter of the League of Nations and after stretching out a fraternal hand to France, can shrink from ratifying the compact which President Wilson in his admirable campaign has explained to his countrymen."

When M. Renault concluded his address many Deputies demanded closure on the general discussion. This is expected to be adopted tomorrow, which will permit a vote on the question of ratification Thursday.

GEN. WOOD ORDERS THE ARREST OF OMAHA'S RIOTERS

Former Boasters in Terror as Military and Civil Authorities Begin the Roundup.

SOLDIERS NOW RULE CITY

GUNS GUARD THE STREETS

Negroes Fleeing City—Mayor's Condition Improved—Governor Issues Proclamation.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 30.—Yesterday the thousands of Omaha citizens who were in Sunday night's mob when the courthouse was burned and William Brown lynched, gloried in their part in the defiance of law and order. Today their sentiment underwent a change. Tonight they are in fear.

General Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department, arrived in Omaha this morning and took command of the situation. He announced that every individual who had a hand in the lynching, or in abetting the lynchers in any way whatever, is to be arrested. Prosecution is to be swift and sure. Already arrests have been made.

General Wood brought with him orders from General March, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, to proceed to Omaha and restore and maintain order regardless of the cost. Within an hour of his arrival, General Wood was in consultation with Governor McKelvie, the City Commission, the Police Department prominent citizens and the Law Department of the County. Orders followed thick and fast.

One of the first issued was for the transfer of the city Police Department to the military commander, Colonel Morris of the 20th Infantry, commanding officer at Fort Crook. Immediately thereafter Colonel Morris moved his office into the police station and took control of the situation.

An investigation of the riot was started. Orders to obtain all pictures and plates made by photographers during the riot were issued. These will be used to assist in identifying those who took part in the lynching. Detectives were ordered to obtain the names of and evidence against every one possible. All means are to be used to identify rioters. Persons identified are to be arrested by the military at once. After the arrest the county authorities will be notified of the name of the prisoner and charge and warrants will be issued. Prosecution will follow.

Those arrested for storming the Court House and even for inciting the lynchers will be charged with murder. Under the Nebraska law every one who participates in any way in a murder is guilty of a principal offense. The charge of arson will be placed against the names of those who threw gasoline into the Court House. Assault with intent to commit great bodily injury, punishable in Nebraska by a penitentiary term, will be the charge against those known to have attempted to lynch Mayor Smith as well as those who assaulted policemen and deputies. All trials will be under the Nebraska law. No military courts martial will sit.

23 Already Under Arrest.

Twenty-eight are already under arrest for rioting, but these arrests were made Sunday night and most of the charges are for carrying deadly weapons. The authorities fear that when the wholesale arresting begins, rioting will break out.

"Those who attempt to interfere with the military authorities will find themselves fighting the United States Army," said General Wood this afternoon.

These are some of the developments which have struck terror to the hearts of those who have been bragging of their part in the rioting. Omaha was as quiet as a cemetery today. There was not a fight or enough of a dispute to cause the arrest of a single individual on a charge of disturbing the peace. Omaha is not ashamed, but Omaha is frightened. Negroes are leaving the city by hundreds. Railroad officials estimate that at least 2,000 negroes have left the city by railroad since Sunday night. Most of these have gone towards Kansas City.

Nevertheless, the city is resting over a volcano, according to the authorities. In a short talk to the Chamber of Commerce today, General Wood said the explosive spirit was abroad in Omaha, and that it might break out on the least provocation, although he hoped that the crisis had passed.

"I would suggest that all meetings and large public gatherings be prohibited," said the General. "If this is not done, the 4,000 Federal troops now on guard here will be ordered to take drastic action to put down and prevent

Court Holds Right of Free Speech is Not Violated In Fining Foster for Meeting Without Permit.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—The action of Mayor James S. Crawford of Duquesne, in imposing a fine of $100 on Strike Organizer William Z. Foster and on an assistant for a violation on Sept. 7 of an ordinance of the City of Duquesne in holding a public meeting without a permit, was sustained in an opinion handed down in County Court today by Judge Kennedy.

The court found that the Mayor did not abuse his discretion in imposing the fine, and in reply to the defendant's contention that the action of the Duquesne executive was an abridgement of their right to free speech, the court said:

"The right of free speech is a sacred one; it well deserves protection, but there are places and times and subjects at and of which, the right of free speech, sacred though it may be, must yield to the greater one of the society of the citizens of the Commonwealth, their homes, and their property.

"The law of the land is that at such times even the right of free speech must be subservient for the time being to the police power of the State, which in these cases is vested in the municipality and by it in its executive head."

Discussing the facts of the case, Judge Kennedy added:

"It cannot be questioned that the object of these meetings, the increase of membership in the American Federation of Labor, is a perfectly lawful one; but the location of the meetings in the Monongahela Valley, built up as it is for mile after mile of an unbroken succession of iron and steel mills and thickly populated with iron workers, many of whom are obviously not members of this association, and among whom on both sides there are, in all probability, some who upon the occasion of meetings such as these purported to be, might through excitement precipitate actions of which the consequences could not be foreseen and might be disastrous, presents questions which are sufficient to hesitate before interfering with the discretion on the part of the Mayor in refusing to permit such meetings at this time."

LONDON TUBES GIVE SERVICE

Labor Leaders Hint at Sympathetic Strikes, Including One Against Hostile Papers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—Despite the fact that three days have elapsed since half a million railway men left their work the public still suffers little inconvenience from the strike. This is ascribed to two causes—the promptness of the Government in making far-reaching plans through the Ministry of Food and the zeal of volunteers in coming to the rescue with skilled service.

Reports received at Downing Street yesterday showed the marked effect of these voluntary offers of national service in improving the train service and facilitating the transport of perishable goods by highroad and the distribution of food in London and for sixty miles around.

Such incidents as the dispatch of 234 trains by the Great Western Railway, the arrival of increased drafts of bluejackets on board destroyers from Portsmouth and Chatham for any sort of service, accelerated milk distribution, and reinforced motor service to London suburbs all gave evidence of steady improvement in emergency services.

Generally it is regarded as a matter for national self-congratulation that, while the real pinch of the crisis has not yet been felt, the public is aware of the fact that the crisis is there, and that it is in such circumstances that the British people are always at their best. The cry has gone out, "The empire is in danger," and before that appeal the majority of Englishmen, whatever their sympathies, whatever their politics or their class, prefer the larger loyalty to the lesser—the safety of the nation to the desire of a section.

It is for the same reason that people everywhere are making the best of a hard job. For five years they have been accustomed to a crisis, and the greater the inconvenience, the more real the peril, the more has the "keep smiling" motto been repeated.

In some respects the chief feature of the day was the decision by the Government that the strikers and those identified with them, either in their normal employment or as members of an organization supporting the strike, should not benefit under the unemployment donation scheme. This was brought about by the action of the Executive Committee of the National Transport Workers' Federation, which met in London and then went to interview the Ministry of Labor on the question of out-of-work doles.

In view of this meeting some significance has been attached to the statement of J. H. Thomas, Secretary of the Railwaymen's Union, that he would no longer continue to refuse offers of sympathetic strikes; but, even if the transport workers recommend action in support of the railwaymen, it does not follow that all the unions affiliated with the Federation will follow this advice.

PITTSBURGH MILLS CLAIM MORE GAINS

But Unions Contend That, Including Bethlehem, 375,000 Are Now Out.

STRIKE ZONE IS PEACEFUL

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 30.—Officials of steel companies asserted today that they were beating the strike rapidly in the Pittsburgh and Monongahela Valley districts and that steel production was increasing daily by thousands of tons.

While W. Z. Foster, who is directing the strike, would admit losses nowhere and told of gains by the strike in some places, some of his colleagues admitted that the strike has been hard hit by desertions at Newcastle, Sharon, Farrell, and elsewhere, while the comparative failure of the strike at the big mills of the Carnegie Steel Company and the Jones & Laughlin Steel Company had made it an uphill fight to keep the strike going.

Secretary Foster is trying to give new life to the strike by concentrating his organizers in the immediate Pittsburgh district. Agitators furnished by the American Federation of Labor and the United Mine Workers and called away from other regions where the strike has been more successful have been sent into the streets of Pittsburgh, where they are waging an aggressive campaign. Foster hopes to keep driving force behind the strike through the second week by his attack on the two big independents, Bethlehem and Jones & Laughlin. If he meets with success in Pittsburgh in his new drive the strike will prolong itself for some time, whether it can eventually force concessions or not.

So far his drive with the greatest force of pickets and agitators he could muster against the Jones & Laughlin employes has been of little effect, according to the reports of the company.

Foster, however, claims that he is slowly shutting down the mills of this concern.

With withdrawal of men from other points to take the field in Pittsburgh is apparently responsible for large gains by the steel companies in the territory which has been stripped of strike orators and promoters.

Works for Sympathetic Strikes.

Another new attack, which Foster is pressing is the attempt to persuade electricians, trainmen and other skilled men to join the strike.

New organizers have been put to work on the skilled men, especially in plants where the loss of a small group of essential employes would cause shutdowns. According to reports the strikers have had practically no success with skilled men.

Foster is apparently under the impression that a great victory was won by the strikers at Bethlehem, for his official information on the subject today is the following telegram:

"We still claim 50 per cent. out at Bethlehem. Pay no attention to newspaper lies, as same campaign is being waged here as it is in Pittsburgh. Steelton reports two or three thousand out and other plants responding fairly, but not as large as Bethlehem. Will write you in detail tomorrow, but be assured that Bethlehem will stick to the finish.

"DAVE WILLIAMS."

Believing that the strike is being beaten and that there is no longer any danger of a sudden turn in favor of the strikers, the steel officials are now worrying principally about how long the Strikers Urge Senator Kenyon to Investigate Situation There.

STEEL MILLS ARE ALL OPEN

Operate Near Full Capacity Despite Union Claim That 80 Per Cent. of Workers Quit.

SECOND DAY IS ALSO QUIET

Six Pickets Are Arrested, but There Are No Clashes with Police and No Violence.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., Sept. 30.—Faced with almost certain defeat in the strike itself, the striking employes of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who walked out at the behest of the American Federation of Labor without a vote, tonight turned to the Government to save the situation for them. The strike committee, headed by David H. Williams, an organizer of the American Federation, voted to request the Senate Committee which is investigating the earlier steel strike in the Western part of the State, to examine into the whole Bethlehem case. This action was ratified at a mass meeting of the strikers tonight in Allentown.

Back of the appeal to Senator Kenyon's committee lies the hope on the part of the leaders that in some way the industrial conference called by President Wilson at the Capital on Oct. 6 may result in some sort of constructive victory for the federation itself. So far as the Bethlehem strikers are concerned they themselves recognize that some of those who have played conspicuous parts in the walkout may have to suffer, but they feel that if they have to be sacrificed in this particular bit of industrial warfare, all to well provided the ultimate cause of organized labor is advanced.

The rank and file of the strikers are basing all their hopes on the Washington conference. Just how it is to help them they do not pretend to know. But they are mindful of the success met with by the railroad brotherhoods when the Administration intervened in their behalf at the outset of the war, and their local horizon is so dark they must needs turn to this distant star of hope or else abandon their position entirely and go back to work.

A Question of Food With Strikers.

The strikers know that the whole affair for them, if they are left to fight the company with their own resources, is a question of commissary. As one of them expressed it today, "If an army travels on its belly, so does a strike."

And they are well aware the company can hold out longer than they can, particularly as cold weather is approaching rapidly and coal bins must be filled and Winter clothing bought. There is, in fact, no pretense even, that this strike, considered as an entity was brought at a favorable time for the strikers. But, as pointed out in these dispatches last night, the industrial conference was approaching and in the belief of many close students of the situation here it was necessary for the federation's purposes that the entire steel industry be prostrated if possible.

The strikers by no means concede their defeat. Leader David H. Williams asserted tonight that from 75 to 80 per cent. of the men are out. He admitted, however, that he arrived at his percentage by subtracting 1,500 clerical employes from the company's estimate that 13,500 men normally are on its payroll at the present time and by deducting a further 2,000 because he does not believe "they had more than 10,000 men working here before the strike started Monday morning.

"I have not given up hope, I can't see where we have lost any men since yesterday," Williams said tonight, adding, "if the men who are out now stay out, I think we have as good a chance to win as any of the steel mills."

A moment later, Mr. Williams amended this assertion: "If the men who are out now stay out I think we can win."

Discussing the situation at the company's other plants, the strike leader said his reports showed that "ten out of twelve sheet mills at Sparrows Point are still idle," that many were out at Lebanon where there has been a strike for months and that "only the organized machinists were out at the Reading works."

To refute these assertions the Bethlehem Corporation received reports today from Lebanon, from Reading, from Steelton, and from Sparrows Point, all of which plants were but slightly affected the first day of the strike, according to its previous advices, that operations at all of them practically were normal. This, of course, does not mean that the earlier strike at Lebanon has been settled, but merely that the present walkout has resulted in no addition there.

So far as the local situation goes, THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is able to state tonight as the result of a personal investigation that the strikers claims as to the extent they have

Wilson Sleeping Better and Improving; Allowed to Give a Little Time to Work

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—President Wilson seems to be getting better. His motor ride yesterday afternoon was beneficial and he took another ride today. The air was not as chilly as it was yesterday and the sun was shining brightly.

At 10.30 o'clock tonight Rear Admiral Grayson issued the following bulletin from the White House:

The President spent a fairly comfortable day and is improving.

This morning's bulletin issued by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, the President's physician, said that "the President had a good night's rest, and is improving." There is every reason to believe that Admiral Grayson is not consulting anything in regard to the President's condition. No specialist has been called in and the rest treatment prescribed by Admiral Grayson seems to be all that is required.

Although the President has been told that he must not attempt to undertake any official duties, he was permitted last night to talk with Secretary Tumulty over the telephone concerning the situation in the Senate with respect to the Versailles Treaty. The ban against official conferences and other engagements is still in force, however, and there is no indication when it will be lifted.

Whether the President will leave Washington for a rest is something about which no statement is forthcoming from the White House.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (Associated Press.)—The President was up most of the day and was permitted by Dr. Grayson to give his attention for a short while to pressing executive matters. He signed several minor bills and vetoed three, sent some nominations to the Senate, and dictated a few letters.

SHELPARK SOFT COLLARS

...ported the Bethlehem plant are vastly exaggerated and that there is exceedingly little evidence to back up the contention that it is operating with great little embarrassment.

This investigation consisted of a tour of the whole environs of the five miles of works, an inspection in company with a high official of the company of several miles of the works visible from the roof of the company office building, personal visit of some duration to the Saucon open hearth furnaces and their surroundings and a tour of Bethlehem, South Bethlehem, Allentown, and other places where the workers live.

One of the important things brought out by this investigation was that the strikers' blow at the very heart of the plant, which they launched with high hopes on Monday when they tried to put the whole electrical department out of business and which they renewed with utmost energy today, had failed for a second time. Electric cranes were operating everywhere. Electric lorries were traveling up and down with their loads of ore and limestone about the plant. All the electrically operated ore bridges were manned and working, and half a hundred operations, all dependent upon the electrical power which drives the whole works, were in progress.

All about the miles of yards foil-sized engines operated by members of the railway brotherhoods, who have refused to support the strike, were moving about on the first day of the strike, and smaller engines operated by men not affiliated with the brotherhoods, whom the strike leaders were more hopeful of inducing to abandon their posts, were scurrying here and there.

Normal Activity in Mills.

From a hundred or more stacks reaching skyward from the Lehigh, the Saucon, and the Northampton plants, great volumes of smoke poured all day long. From other exhausts widely distributed jets of white steam sending their clouds into the air added to the scene of activity. There was visual evidence that the blast furnaces were working both from the fumes emerging from their stacks and from the steady up and down travel of the lorries which charge them. And all about the yards great electric magnets were picking up their loads of iron and steel and shunting them about. The two great tilt furnaces, with a capacity that dwarfs even the greatest of the open hearth furnaces, were converting Bessemer into open hearth steel apparently at their regular rate.

Traveling from gate to gate during the shift hours, this correspondent saw hundreds of men going in each entrance he was able to reach during the change and other hundreds going out. Nowhere in any district where the workers live was there any appearance of unusual idleness. There were no crowds on the streets, there was no unusual number of men to be seen about the yards or on the porches of their little homes. There were no great gatherings in the stores or other meeting places.

Most convincing of all was the visit to the Saucon plant. Here great ladles were taking their ninety-ton drinks of molten metal from the blast furnaces and pouring them into molds. And all about were men, so far as the layman could judge, all the men that were needed on their jobs. The operations of these furnaces and the signs of activity in the yards about them carried great significance. For if the furnaces are working, so officials of the company say, there is undisputable proof that the long chain of processes which originate there are all in motion. If the rolling mills, the rail mills, the structural plant, and a dozen kindred industries were tied up, they say, these great fiery loads could not be started out on their intricate journey into fabricated products of a thousand sorts, shapes, sizes, and kinds.

The company issued no detailed report of the men away or the men on the job. It did announce, however, that 88 per cent. of its employes were at work, and that an investigation of the personnel which had stayed away showed the intention of Bethlehem townsmen that "this is an Allentown strike" was substantially correct; in other words, that most of the strikers were residents of Allentown and not of Bethlehem.

This assertion was made by Public Leader Williams late tonight that the twelve, eighteen, and forty-eight inch rolling mills and some of the foundries had been brought to a complete standstill by the strike. Whether or not Williams's information is correct, most of the plant is in operation, and it is understood that some at least of these latter units are to be started up today.

Picketing by the strikers at the various entrance gates of the mills is not permitted by the police. The leaders decided not to resort to a fight on their right to picket. Manifestly eager to avoid trouble, they are resorting to house-to-house canvass and to accosting the men on their way to work at distances from the various plants.

Strikers Hold Mass Meeting.

About 1,500 men attended the strikers' mass meeting in Allentown, presided over by David H. Williams. The men present manifested every intention of standing firm and cheered loudly when 100 striking electricians marched into the hall. The resolution calling upon the Senate Committee to investigate the Bethlehem strike was communicated in the following telegram to Senator Kenyon:

Allentown, Penn., Sept. 30, 1919.

At a mass meeting of striking employes of the Bethlehem Steel Company held this evening action was taken to request your committee to include in its investigation of the steel strike the plants of the Bethlehem Steel Company.

The strike in the Bethlehem plants is the result of the failure of the plans of collective bargaining that can be manipulated and used wholly for the interests of the company and to the detriment of the employes.

Wages have been cut in these plants and the workers discriminated against at the will of the officials of the company. An award of the National War Labor Board guaranteeing mechanics minimum hourly rates compared with those paid in Government plants has not yet been put into effect by the company, although it was to take effect Aug. 1, 1918. These men have retroactive pay dating from that time at over one year ago.

Vice President Archibald Johnson of the steel company is Mayor of Bethlehem and has prohibited meetings of the strikers, while the right to picket has also been denied the men. Newspaper reports also charge the officers of the unions with radicalism and Bolshevism in order to justify the treatment given them by the company-controlled city government.

Inasmuch as this company has contracts for guns, armor plate, and other ordnance for the United States Government which is held up by this strike, and since the conditions under which the men must work here are so different than the Government concedes in other plants on the same kind of work, we urge that your committee extend its investigation to this company and visit Bethlehem for the purpose of securing the information which we will convey to you through the employes.

The employes of this company resent the slander which is being circulated against them by the company controlled newspapers and newspaper correspondents, and in order to get at the truth we appeal to you to bring this plant within the scope of your investigation.

GENERAL COMMITTEE OF STRIKING EMPLOYES.
DAVID WILLIAMS,
Chairman in Charge.

COLLECTIVE BARGAINING PLAN

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Penn., Sept. 30.—The collective bargaining agreement between the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and its employes here was instituted more than a year ago at the instance of the War Labor Board. It is this agreement which, so far as can be learned, has worked satisfactorily to both sides, and about which certainty the men have made no formal complaint, that the American Federation of Labor has demanded shall be replaced by a collective bargaining arrangement through the Federation and not directly with the employes concerned.

The plan involves a general committee with one member for each department for each 100 employes thereof, which meets at intervals with representatives of the company. Any employe 21 years of age or older who is an American citizen or has taken out first papers and who has worked for the company for four months or more is eligible for election by his fellow-workmen as a Committeeman. Two-thirds of the voters in any department may recall their Committeeman by petition. All employes who have been on the payroll sixty days or more are entitled to vote at the annual elections.

That part of the plan concerning the adjustment of grievances, covering general questions, guaranteeing the independence of Committeemen, and fixing the duration of the plans of operation is as follows:

Employes or committees having a grievance shall make an effort to adjust same, first with the foreman, and, failing in this, the matter should be referred to the general foreman or Shop Superintendent by the shop or department committee. If no adjustment is reached the shop or department committee shall make an effort to adjust the same with the management, through its authorized representative, and, failing in this, the matter should be referred to the general committee of sub-committee thereof for adjustment with the management. The management will call with a sub-committee selected by the general committee from among their number.

In case no adjustment is reached between the management and the general committee, or sub-committee thereof, the points in dispute may be referred to arbitration by consent of the parties concerned, within ten days after final disagreement between the committee and the management.

The general committee may designate subcommittees from among their number to take up the matters of wage scale and working conditions, or any other matters that it may deem necessary to submit to the management for its consideration.

It is understood and agreed that each committeeman shall be free to discharge his duties in an independent manner without fear that his individual relations with the company may be affected in the least degree by any action taken by him in his representative capacity.

To insure to each committeeman his right to such independent action, he shall have the right to take the question of an alleged personal discrimination against him, on account of his acts in his representative capacity to any of the superior officers or to the President of the company, through the general committee or subcommittee thereof.

Having exercised this right in the consecutive order indicated and failing a satisfactory remedy within ten days, a committeeman shall have the further right to appeal to the Secretary of the United States Department of Labor. The company shall furnish the Secretary of Labor with every facility for the determination of the facts, and the findings and recommendations of the said Secretary of Labor shall be final and binding.

This plan may be altered or amended by mutual agreement. Thirty days' written notice must be given by either party wishing to amend or alter the plan.

A similar, though not identical agreement is in force at all the corporation's other plants.

UNTERMYER URGED BETHLEHEM TO CONFER

Large Stockholder Told President Grace Conference Would Help Company's Position.

Samuel Untermyer, one of the largest individual stockholders in the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, it developed yesterday, had sent a request to Eugene G. Grace, President of the Bethlehem Corporation, asking that the officials of the corporation meet with representatives of the American Federation of Labor in an endeavor to arrive at an understanding which would prevent a strike. This action was taken in response to a telegraphic request from John Fitzpatrick and W. B. Rubin, two of the labor leaders, who expressed their willingness to let Mr. Untermyer act as sole arbiter. In reply Mr. Grace said:

We never refuse to meet with our men in conference, but will not consent to meet with members of the national committee of the American Federation of Labor. The sole purpose in seeking an interview is to have us substitute an agreement with them to represent our men instead of the agreement we now have with our men to deal direct with them. They—the American Federation of Labor—are interlopers trying to cause strife in the midst of our loyal employees, and if you knew the whole facts in the case I am sure you would approve our position. There are no differences between the large part of our employes and the managements, and we have no fears as to the result of the interference of Mr. Fitzpatrick and his associates in our affairs.

To this Mr. Untermyer replied:

Frankly, I consider as unwise and indefensible Gary's action in refusing to confer with an organization that, although newly formed and against great obstacles, admittedly already represented one-fifth of their employes and now apparently represents 60 per cent. on that particular issue. I regret to find that you are assuming that a like untenable attitude of refusing to confer as though such a conference could possibly weaken your position, which, I insist, it would strengthen. The present offer to arbitrate the question of whether you should confer is one that you cannot in my judgment refuse without creating the most unfavorable impression, especially that you are pledged to follow the steel company's action.

As representing perhaps your largest individual stockholder with an investment of about $5,000,000 in your company, I urge you to at least arbitrate this preliminary question of a conference. Any other position is purely arbitrary, no matter how just may be your cause. In these days labor's right to collective bargaining through its own agencies can no longer be successfully denied, no matter how successful you may appear to be for the moment.

Capital is thereby simply adding fuel to the fire.

I urge your company to act independently of other agencies that may have ulterior purposes to serve.

TO BOYCOTT CLERGY IN GARY.

Strikers Contend They Are Aiding Forces to Weaken Tie-up.

Special to The New York Times.

GARY, Ind., Sept. 30.—A boycott of the Protestant clergy of the city because of alleged plans to "turn the churches into recruiting stations for the Loyal American League," which is supplying automobile patrols and citizen police, was urged by the principal speakers at a strikers' mass meeting here today.

The new move was inspired by a meeting of the ministers under the auspices of the Gary Federation of Churches, at which, it is said, they agreed upon sermons on Sunday sponsoring the American League and calling upon their parishioners to support the Mayor to the fullest extent, emphasizing the fatal effect upon Gary of a long strike and the closing of the mills.

Mayor Hodges conferred today with Federal Agent Bragdon, whom it was reported would start a drive to deport hundreds of striking aliens. Bragdon said the action was not probable, owing to the lack of evidence on which to demand deportation.

CHURCH AID ASKED ON LABOR PROBLEM

FARMERS PROFFER SERVICES

National Industrial Conference Appoints Delegates to Next Monday's White House Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Protestant churches and organizations have been asked by Labor Secretary Wilson, Senator Kenyon, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education and Labor; officials of the American Federation of Labor and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, to propose legislation that will aid in solving labor troubles, according to a statement made today by the Interchurch World Movement of North America. The announcement says representatives of the Protestant denominations will confer on Thursday and Friday of this week in New York City as to what the churches can do as a unit now. Recommendations of a concrete nature probably will be made to the labor conference in Washington, called by President Wilson for next Monday, and to leaders of Congress.

Dr. Fred B. Fisher, one of the officials of the nIter-Church movement has been in Washington interviewing Government, labor, and business leaders as to their attitude toward the recently adopted platform of the Inter-Church World Movement for active participation by the Protestant churches in the practical problems of the day. The Inter-Church World Movement represents 200,000 churches with a membership of 25,000,000 persons.

Expecting favorable action on the resolution adopted at the recent convention of the National Board of Farm Organizations demanding more complete representation at the White House conference, many prominent farmers are expected in Washington next Monday.

BOSTON, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—Magnus W. Alexander, Managing Director of the National Industrial Conference Board, announced today that, in accordance with the request of President Wilson, he had named five representatives of American industries as members of the National Industrial Conference called for Oct. 6 at Washington, D. C. Four of the men selected are:

Frederick P. Fish of Boston, Chairman of the National Industrial Conference Board, formerly President of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; John W. O'Leary of Chicago, manufacturer of iron and steel products and President of the National Metal Trades Association; S. Pemberton Hutchinson of Philadelphia, President of the Westmoreland Coal Company, and member of the conference board's recent European commission; Edwin Farnham Greene, Boston, Treasurer of the Pacific Mills, a textile manufacturer with interests in the North and South.

The name of the fifth appointee will be announced when his acceptance has been received.

JOLIET MILLS REOPEN; CHICAGO FIELD QUIET

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Joliet mills today gave their first signs of activity since the steel strike was called, when the Illinois Steel Company started up its Bessemer. Union officials had declared that Joliet was locked up tight and that they had constantly gained in strength, but semi-official company reports were that workers have been quietly drifting back, and the opening of the plant was regarded as the most significant development of the day as indicating expansion of the drive to break the strike.

Throughout the Calumet sector appeared evidence of further breaks in the striking ranks. Some 300 men returned to the Indiana steel mills at Gary, and South Chicago reported an increased force at the Illinois Steel plant.

Waukegan continues the most acute, but even at that centre nothing out of the ordinary occurred, and Adjt. Gen. Dickson after looking the situation over told the Waukegan officials and merchants that city authorities ought to be able to control it without difficulty.

On the advice of General Dickson, 800 business men of Waukegan, who were sworn in as Deputy Sheriffs, are to form a regular military company.

The situation was quiet around the plant of the American Steel and Wire Company, and a number of employes returned to work for the first time since the strike. It is estimated that 350 are back at work out of a force of 1,500.

Indiana Harbor where 90 per cent. of the workers are said to lack sympathy with the strike, held a meeting attended by 500 striking unionists. They were addressed by a priest, the Rev. Father Casberkiltz, who spoke in three different languages. "Stick together and hold out till the strike is won," he said.

A survey of the Gary district has been made by Indiana State officials with a view of ascertaining how large a proportion of the men want to return to work but fear intimidation. There were reports that Indiana State troops would be asked as a protective measure, but this was loudly scoffed at by men in a position to know. They pointed out that the arrests during the strike period are less even than during normal times.

There was one disorder today, however, when John Zahn, leaving the mill to visit his sick wife, found his home surrounded by a mob which threatened violence. He called the police, and the crowd dispersed. Three were arrested and warrants were issued for twenty more.

A workman's wife, too, complained to the police that two strikers had threatened to burn down her home unless her husband quit work. The men were arrested.

FOSTER IS DENOUNCED BY JUDGE BUFFINGTON

Philadelphia Jurist Warns Foreign Born to Beware of "Such Dangerous Agitators."

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—William Zebulon Foster, leader of the striking steel workers, was bitterly denounced as "a dangerous domestic enemy" by Judge Joseph Buffington of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals today.

Judge Buffington, with Circuit Judge Morris of Wilmington, Del., presided over a session of the naturalization court today, and warned the prospective citizens to beware of such dangerous agitators as Foster.

"I have been all through the steel and other industrial establishments in the Western part of the State," said Judge Buffington, "and I have found the foreign-born element well paid for its work, contented, and happy. But there is in my town [Pittsburgh] now a man, William Zebulon Foster, who is going among the foreign population, teaching terrible doctrines of anarchy in his book—things that go to the destruction of the American Government.

"Foster is the type of man who is causing all this unrest among the foreign born, not only of this State but of the country. He is a most dangerous leader and a dangerous domestic enemy. I say this right from the shoulder, because I feel it is my duty to do so.

"The men who tells you that no government is better than any sort of government, the man who preaches anarchy, and the man who is always kicking about the Government is a domestic enemy, and you should avoid him. If he doesn't like this country or the way it is governed, he ought to get a passport and get out of it."

Leading force to his denunciation of domestic enemies, and his warning to the new citizens to shun dangerous leaders, Judge Buffington made all the embryo citizens take an oath that they were not opposed to the present form of Government. The formal oath of citizenship is a renunciation of allegiance to the country of the applicant's birth, and the taking of an oath of fidelity to the United States. But in addition to that oath, Judge Buffington had the 300 applicants take the following oath with the entire courtroom standing:

"I am not a disbeliever in or opposed to organized Government or a member of or affiliated with any organization or body of persons teaching disbelief in or opposed to organized Government. I am not a polygamist nor a believer in the practice of polygamy. I am attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States, and it is my intention to become a citizen of the United States, and to renounce absolutely and forever all allegiance to any foreign Prince, potentate or sovereignty, of which I have heretofore been a subject. And I swear to Almighty God to support and defend the Constitution of the United States.

STRIKE HITS AUTO MAKERS.

Many Detroit Plants May Have to Close if Steel Tieup Continues.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Sept. 30.—Should the steel strike continue three weeks longer with the same proportion of men out as at present, most of the automobile factories here may have to suspend operations, throwing thousands of men throughout the State out of employment.

While several of the larger plants have sufficient steel in reserve to keep them going for an indefinite period, the smaller ones are in no such fortunate position. In some of the smaller plants the reserve stock is dwindling at an alarming rate.

If the strike lasts beyond the middle of October, the big concerns may find themselves in the same predicament.

DROP PLAN TO UNIONIZE.

Rochester Newspaper Men Won't Concede Editorial Control to Union.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Rochester newspaper writers who recently presented demands to publishers of the four English-language daily newspapers of the city for increases in salaries and other concessions, have withdrawn their application to the International Typographical Union for a charter on the ground that the measure of control over the editorial departments insisted upon by the International as part of the proposed agreement with the publishers is inconsistent with the traditional independence of newspaper men.

An association known as the Rochester Newspaper Writers' Association and unaffiliated with any labor organization, has grown out of the proposed union, and the publishers have signified their willingness to consult with the new body. They previously had refused to recognize any organization of news writers affiliated with a labor organization.

SHERMAN OPPOSES LABOR AS A MASTER

AGAINST COMPERS'S POLICY

Warns Traffic Club Against Danger of Conferring Special Privileges on Unions.

Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, speaking last night at the Waldorf before the Traffic Club, not only declared for the return of the railroads to their private owners, but also denounced the Plumb plan as an attempt of 2,000,000 workers to take over the government of 100,000,000 persons. He declared against the right of railway workers to strike, asserting that a law should be passed preventing it, and held that Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in testifying before the Senate committee that he would not obey a law prohibiting strikes, had nullified the law before it was passed and had anticipated revolution.

"A new master is on the throne," said the Senator. "The people no longer rule. He is above the law, even if enacted by the authority of a majority of the people acting through their chosen representatives. How many of his followers may be impressed with his promised revolt is uncertain. I cannot believe that organized labor as a body is in sympathy with such a declaration. If it is, let the issue be joined. Let it be ascertained now whether a few million operating an essential industry or carrier system may deliver it over to themselves. If such be the case, the American people need not complain. If they prefer such Government to what we have heretofore had, they may impose on themselves by remaining dormant. At least, however, let us make the issue plain."

In line with the Senator's announced intention of honestly criticising the evils in the conditions of our times, he disapproved all Government activity for its inefficiency, he declared an entire lack of sympathy with the prosecution of the packers, and he soundly denounced those who "were making the world safe for democracy before making it safe for American trade." Greater production through more individual effort he gave as the only panacea for high prices. Affiliation of servants of the public with any outside "alien" body he held should be prohibited by law.

"Don't be afraid of a union," he told more than 700 members of the Traffic Club, who were present. "Be afraid of the clause writing upon the unions special privileges which are not enjoyed by the rest of the people. If you were to stay in Washington and feel the pressure that is brought to bear upon the lawmaker if you were to see how the votes are checked up in the gallery with the avowed purpose of boating at the polls the men who oppose such policies as are involved in the Plumb plan, you would know what it means."

The Senator had previously held that the inauguration of the Plumb Plan, if extended to other industries would lead to one vast soviet throughout the country. He added: "There is little difference between the soviet and anarchism. It is a mere question of the stage of the proceedings. The seizure of the government and the commandeering of property either at the owners' or taxpayers' expense is violent and substitutes confiscation for bloodshed.

"Labor unions are rapidly approaching and some have already reached or crossed the boundary. When they cannot have their demands, they propose radical procedure. One is to tie up the entire industry affected. The sympathetic strike is invoked as a means of direct action upon all the community.

"The Government ownership of railways is a huge demonstrated failure for everybody but the heads of the unions that demand all the benefits of the ownership or property without assuming any of its burdens. The plan of the heads of the organized railway employes in the threshold of loading the entire enterprises on the taxpayer of the country."

AGREES TO MEET EMPLOYERS.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 30.—Overriding attacks of radical delegates, the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, in its forty-first annual convention here this afternoon, voted to accept the employers' invitation to send five members to a joint State industrial conference. The conference will include five representatives of the business interests and five of the general public. Its duties will be to bring about a closer understanding between labor and capital and take up for New Jersey what the conference called at Washington for Oct. 6 by President Wilson will take up for the nation.

Decision to accept the manufacturers' invitation follows an arraignment of employers by the radicals and pleadings by the administration forces. Under the terms of the plan adopted, which was placed before the convention in resolution form with the concurrence of the Executive Committee, the council is formed "in order to promote industrial co-operation ad stabilize the industry in the State."

The five representatives of the business interests will consist of four members appointed by the Manufacturers Association of New Jersey, representing the industries of the State, and one member appointed by the State Board of Agriculture. The five from the workers will be named by the State Federation of Labor, one of whom shall be either the President or the Secretary of the federation. The five from the public will consist of the State Commissioner of Labor; one member appointed by the Governor, who shall be especially familiar with industrial problems; one from the League of Municipalities; one from the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce, and one elected jointly by the five representatives of the business interests and the five of the workers.

It is proposed to hold meetings at least once a month to discuss industrial affairs, gather information, make investigations, and issue recommendations to the respective constituencies, and, wherever called upon, arbitrate on industrial controversies.

President Wilson sent the following message of greetings to the convention:

"I shall be very glad to have you convey my greetings to the New Jersey Federation of Labor, together with an expression of best wishes of my happy recollections of co-operation in New Jersey and of my hope that we are now about to come to better constructive counsels with regard to our whole industrial organization.

WOODROW WILSON."

The convention refused to consider the formation of a State labor party in the campaign to organize the uniformed firemen of the State was started at today's session.

Arthur A. Quinn will be elected President for his fourteenth term tomorrow. His nomination today was unanimous. Other officers who will also be re-elected are: First Vice President, Joseph Edwards of Millville; Second Vice President, William Linstader, Newark; Secretary, Henry Hilfers, Newark; Kenneth M. Forbes and John R. Burgess, both of Jersey City, were nominated for Treasurer to succeed the late William H. Shindle. The nominations for the Executive Board, four of whom are to be elected, are Reuben Foster, Trenton; J. L. Bentzoker, Atlantic City; Edward J. Reid, Newark; James Nunmayer, Jersey City, and Patrick McGovern, Newark.

SHIP SCALERS TO STRIKE

1,600 Association Members Vote to Stop Work This Morning.

The River Front and Marine Workers' Association, No. 23, composed of 1,600 ship scalers working in and about New York, voted last night to strike this morning, their demands for a 25 per cent. increase in wages having been refused by the nine corporations for whom they work. It was said by members of the association that the strike will tie up the ship scaling work around New York. The men ask for double time for overtime and triple time at night for cleaning oil tanks.

There is a general impression, however, that the bus and street railway men will come out if the Federation approves such action, and, according to the transport workers' delegates, the feeling is very strong in certain parts of the country for the strike policy.

Manned by volunteers, the London subways between Hammersmith and the Mansion House and between Hampstead and Charing Cross resumed service yesterday. The New York Times correspondent traveled on one of the first trains on the latter route. Apparently the only regular railroad hand working was an elevator attendant, and she was a stern, matronly type of woman, before whom a mere masculine union committeeman would quail. The motorman and conductors were young men of the ex-officer type. They smoked pipes as they banged the gates, but were quite professional otherwise. Senior officials acted as train dispatchers.

There were hardly a dozen passengers in the long train, probably because few people knew that service had been resumed. Only two stops were made on the four-mile run, one of which was to take on a set of volunteers for training, and no new passengers were picked up at either of them.

The experience proved that subway service under strike conditions is very far from normal, but trains were run at 12-minute intervals, and London is much cheered by the news that the tubes can be opened at all.

Improvement in Train Service.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 1.—The Government is making headway in dealing with the national strike of railwaymen, according to official reports. The communiqué from Downing Street at noon yesterday announced that the railway service was improving, more trains having been run than were called for under the schedules prepared by the companies the day before.

Attempts to wreck trains, which occurred yesterday for the first time since the beginning of the strike, were referred to by the Downing Street statement as "some minor acts of sabotage." These, it was explained, had caused no loss of life, and the necessary steps had been taken to deal with this phase of the situation.

Meanwhile the distribution of food is proceeding satisfactorily, the authorities announce, this being due largely "to the admirable spirit and efficient work of volunteers. The offers of voluntary service, it is declared, are "overwhelming."

Talk of Sympathetic Strikes.

No formal statement on behalf of the men was forthcoming, but the utterances of their leaders were not lacking in expressions of determination to carry the struggle through. James Henry Thomas, Secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, indeed, in an announcement at an open-air meeting in the forenoon intimated that the calling in of help from other labor bodies was contemplated. He declared that the railway men would not continue to refuse offers of sympathetic strikes from other unions.

Military guards have been placed on all trains in the northern section, with instructions to take effective measures against interference with their operations.

Employment of troops to protect railroad property is being resented by strikers at some places, apparently through the fear that the soldiers may be used as strikebreakers. Speakers at a meeting last night at Jinneaton, Warwickshire, warned the Government that serious consequences would follow the employment of troops. Dock laborers at Newport, Monmouthshire, have threatened to strike if soldiers interfere with railway men.

The Herald, the principal labor organ, featured what it describes as an "ominous movement of troops," and complained editorially that "everything is done to give an air of violence to what on the men's part is a peaceful, lawful movement for better wages."

Troops were on duty at all the main London railway stations today. The waiting rooms have been transformed into temporary quarters for the soldiers.

The men of the Severn Tunnel branch of the National Union of Railwaymen have given the Government forty-eight hours' notice to withdraw the soldiers guarding the tunnel. Unless the troops are withdrawn the pumpmen are to be called out.

J. H. Thomas, leader of the railway strikers, is quoted as having stated in an interview that unless the newspapers changed their attitude toward the railway men the newspaper compositors would strike.

The Commissioner of Police of London has issued an appeal for all main citizens under 40 to enroll as special police. Special magistrates were in attendance at all the police stations during the day for the purpose of swearing in these special officers.

The Ministry of Labor has announced that the Government will undertake to afford every protection during the crisis to railroad men who continue to work or go back to their positions. It will also safeguard their interests as railroadmen against any measure or prejudice to which they may be exposed on account of their action.

The Government's intention to keep open at all costs the principal railroad arteries of the country upon which food trains run and to which passenger coaches are attached was announced today. These routes comprise those between London and Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Yarmouth, Hull, Bristol, Southampton, Plymouth and Dover.

Further improvement in the situation during the day was indicated by the Government statement issued last evening. An extended railroad service had been in operation during the day, it was stated, while the distribution of foodstuffs continued satisfactorily. The communiqué contained this request:

"The public is asked to exercise strict economy in foodstuffs, particularly milk, in order that the children shall not suffer. The most rigorous economy in coal and petrol should be practiced."

Some Subway Trains Running.

The District Underground Railway started an eight-minute service yesterday between Hammersmith and the Mansion House station.

A development of the late afternoon was an order by the Secretary of the Vehicle Workers' organization instructing its members not to touch railroad work of any description, in connection with the movement of food or otherwise.

The executive of the Amalgamated Society of Engineers has decided against a strike. Mechanics, however, must refuse work previously done by members of the National Union of Railwaymen.

Further secessions from the ranks of the striking railroad men were reported by officials, but generally the union ranks are remaining firm.

Londoners generally have rapidly adjusted themselves to the strike conditions, smilingly accepting the inconveniences caused by the lack of transportation and the restriction of supplies. A few minor disturbances are reported from provincial centres, where volunteer workers on the railroads have been hooted.

The Government announced that livestock that had been abandoned in transit and the horses belonging to the railroad companies that had been left without attendance were being cared for by the authorities.

The Caledonian Railway has posted notices offering men returning to work 25 per cent. above the present wage and also precedence for future promotion. Protection is assured.

strike will last and what permanent effects it will leave.

The strike has caused a good many foreigners, who intended going home within the next few months with the money they had saved, to start at once, while a certain percentage of unskilled labor is migrating to other industrial centres. Prolonged strikes in the steel industry have always ended with the mass power of the industry considerably reduced. Before the strike, the steel companies were looking forward to a labor shortage for the next several months, even if no strike took place. The indirect loss of steel in reduced capacity in the future may equal the immediate loss which takes place while the strike is in full swing. The replenishment through immigration of common labor lost by strike is not likely to take place under present conditions.

But neither the immediate nor the prospective loss has, according to steel officials, modified their determination to win a clean 100 per cent. victory over the strikers. Ordinarily, concessions would probably have been offered before now, according to mill officials, but they are unwilling to treat or bargain in any manner with W. Z. Foster, the leader of the strike, because they apparently fear that a big achievement by him would put him in a position where he might attempt to lead the revolution he has advocated in the past.

Foster Refuses to Discuss His Views.

Foster still continues to refuse to discuss his present views on revolution and the use of violent means to achieve any end of organized labor. He remains silent even when his colleagues say in his presence or testifying in public that he has discarded those opinions. According to steel officials, Foster has protested his violent views to the men who are now striking, and is unwilling to recant them, because a profession of conservative views at this time would put an end to his influence with the radical foreign element among the strikers.

M. F. Tighe, President of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, denied today that there was justification for the attack on Foster, but admitted that the success of the strike has been impaired because of the attack on him.

The steel companies are not worried by the action of longshoremen at Cleveland in refusing to handle iron ore, as the plants are stocked with large supplies. Iron ore is laid in during the Summer and Fall in quantities sufficient to carry well over the Winter, because ice makes barge traffic impossible. Many of the large mills have abnormally large reserves of ore at their plants, because of the enormous supplies which were laid in during the Summer of 1918, when they stocked up in the anticipation of war orders.

Foster will go to Washington tomorrow to testify before the Senate Committee. He received the following telegram today:

Washington, D. C.

Telegram received requesting committee to go to Pittsburgh district. Hope arrangements can be made for committee to visit that district and take testimony latter part of week or first of next. Time of coming dependent on voting upon amendments to the Senate Treaty. Committee desires to have you appear before it here Thursday morning, Oct. 2, at 10 o'clock.

J. J. WILLIAMS.

To his staff of assistants, Secretary Foster added today a press agent who was loaned to the strike by the Plumb Plan Committee in Washington. This is Edwin New Dick, who was formerly a publicity man under George Creel, in the Committee on Public Information and later in the War Department.

Nearly 8,000 strikers turned out at the Labor Temple here tonight in the largest meeting held so far during the strike, where Foster and others told them that, by standing steadfast, they would win the strike.

Unions Say $75,000 Are Out.

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—At the national headquarters of the strikers today figures were given out for the first time in nearly a week. It was said that approximately 375,000 steel workers are now idle. This is an increase of about 35,000 over the number of men reported by the strike leaders as idle last week. The walkout of steel workers at Bethlehem and at the Jones & Laughlin plant in Pittsburgh, it was said, was responsible for the increase.

Reports were received at headquarters that eviction notices had been served on strikers living in company houses at Sharpsville and at Brackinridge. They must move in thirty days or return to work, it was stated.

250 PRINTING FIRMS LOCK OUT 10,000

York, of which this firm is a member, on and after Oct. 1, 1919, we will employ none but members of local unions in good standing with their respective international affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Pressmen's Union, No. 51, Bernard Nolan, President.

Franklin Union, No. 82, J. J. Bagley, President.

Paper Handlers' Union, No. 1, Vincent Farris, President.

Job Press Feeders' Union, No. 1, Andrew Sypos, President.

In order to be employed in our press rooms, employes must produce satisfactory evidence of their international union affiliations and must display cards properly countersigned by the international officials.

William Green, Chairman of the special committee of the Association of Employing Printers, said last night that a conference had been arranged between his organization and "Big Six" to be held at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Mr. Green also announced that the pressmen at the Carey Printing Plant, Tenth Avenue, near Thirty-ninth Street, which prints Vogue, Vanity Fair and The Century, had struck yesterday morning, when they saw the notices posted by the employers.

The following statement was issued by Major Berry last night:

"The difficulties that present themselves in New York City are fundamental in character and have to do with the very existence of American ideals and traditions, and for that reason the International Printing Trades Unions resolved to defend the principles of conciliation and arbitration, and the free press, so essential to liberty and guaranteed by the Constitution.

"The leadership of certain local printing trade unions, committed as it is to complete censorship of all publications and other Bolshevist principles, including Soviet management of the printing industry, is of such character as to prohibit any co-operation and encouragement to the policies that they have outlined; on the other hand, it becomes the duty of not only the International Printing Trades Unions, but every American, to repudiate the plans as outlined by the local leadership of those unions, that have disregarded every trade union principle and policy necessary in the same conduct of the industry.

"Charters have been established in New York, and the men of the pressrooms will be received gladly, and without embarrassment upon their assurance of allegiance to the labor movement, and their guarantee in the upholding of contracts and the pursuance of a course that will assure stability, prosperity and peace in the industry.

"We will give no quarter to the acknowledged Bolsheviki, and make no compromise with those that follow the course of anarchy and industrial disruption."

Two thousand members of the New York Printing Pressmen's Union, No. 51, of which Bernard Nolan is President gathered last night in Mannerchor Hall, 206 East Fifty-ninth Street, to protest against the lockout. Mr. Nolan spoke for more than an hour, telling the men of his efforts for the forty-four hour week and the $14 rise. He charged President Berry of the International Union with "going back" on them. Mr. Nolan said that a number of shops would continue open as they had granted the demands.

Pickets will begin duty this morning at the plants where the members of the four unions are locked out, a suggestion to this effect from Mr. Nolan being indorsed by the gathering.

There was considerable applause when announcement was made that one large concern, the name of which was withheld, had agreed to the demands. The men agreed, upon suggestion of Mr. Nolan, to waive strike benefits for the first two weeks if the lockout lasts that long.

CHINA'S HANDS TIED BY CHIANG TREATY

HAD GIVEN RIGHTS TO JAPAN

Wilson, It Is Declared, Was Firmly for China, but Fiume Dispute Interfered.

KUFOW, PROVINCE OF SHANTUNG, China, Sept. 5, (Correspondence of Associated Press.)—Kung Hsiang-ko, who traces his descent in a direct line through seventy-four generations from Confucius, has returned to his home here from his labors at the Paris peace conference, to which he was sent by the Shantung Provincial Assembly as a special delegate representing the province.

Kufow, noted because the tomb of Confucius is here, has felt probably more keenly than any other city in China the grief that the Shantung decision of the peace conference brought to the nation, for if Shantung is the birthplace of the Chinese nation and the place from which came many of its historic traditions, then the little city of Kufow, in which the great Chinese sage lived and from which he gave to the world his immortal code, may be called the heart of the province.

Kung Hsiang-ko, with other Chinese delegates to Paris, arrived at Shanghai a few days ago. After a short stay there he came on to his home to prepare for the Provincial Assembly the formal report of China's activities at the Peace Conference.

The Shantung delegate has the height of the Northern Chinese. He is about six feet tall, and 32 years old. Though he speaks English fairly well, his education was not obtained in the western world. Not until he went to Paris, in fact, had he seen any part of the world outside of China.

On his return he told friends the story of the diplomatic experience at Paris and explained the causes that led to the refusal to sign the treaty with Germany. After telling of the efforts of Dr. Wellington Koo and Dr. C. T. Wang to combat the pro-Japanese campaign which had hampered the work of the delegates at every turn, he said he believed one of the important reasons why China was defeated was because the Fiume question had received precedence at the conference.

"President Wilson was fully determined to support the Chinese cause," Mr. Kung said. "If the Shantung question had been brought up first it would, perhaps, have been disposed of to the satisfaction of the Chinese."

The blow under which the Chinese delegates were crushed, the Shantung delegate said, was the disclosure of the Tokio Treaty, of which they had never heard until the Japanese produced it at the conference.

While much has been published concerning the twenty-one demands of Japan and it has been known that in these China surrendered the rights of the Germans in the province of Shantung, little light has been thrown on this secret agreement, called the Tokio Treaty, even since the conference. This Tokio Treaty, Mr. Kung explained, was concluded with Japan by the former Chinese Minister to Tokio, Chang Chung-hsiang, one of the officials against whom the wrath of the students was turned in June when the Minister with the Cabinet in office was deposed.

Chiang Chung-hsiang acted with the power of a plenipotentiary when he concluded this treaty. By its terms the German holdings in Shantung and in particular the railway concessions were given to Japan. When Dr. Koo and Dr. Wang, protesting against the twenty-one demands, contended that they had been signed under threat of war, the Japanese produced the Tokio Treaty, of the existence of which they were ignorant.

"When this treaty was produced," Mr. Kung said, "it closed the mouths of all of China's delegates and none of them knew exactly what to do.

"When the Chinese delegates learned that the decision on Shantung had been reached, he went on, "all the smaller nations protested and the Chinese took vigorous action. At a conference a delegate asked who had made the decision. Speaking for the Big Five M. Clemenceau answered 'We did it.' When he was asked how the Big Five could decide a question like that he replied saying, 'We have suffered more than others.'

"We trusted Mr. Wilson entirely too much. We sent a note to him asking him how he could reconcile assurances he had given to China before she entered the war with the decision. He sent a representative to us expressing his sorrow and suggested that he would help us when the League of Nations was formed.

"When the conference was concluded the Chinese divided on the question whether to sign the treaty with Germany. It was the students and Chinese statesmen in Paris who swayed those who were disposed to sign.

"On the morning of the day set for the signing of the treaty, after China had been refused the right of signing with reservations, crowds of students patrolled in front of the hotel of Lu Chen-hsiang, our chief delegate, who had been suffering from ill health and was confined to his bed. The question of signing had not been decided when the delegates gathered in his room. He was asked for the last time if he would consent to sign, and he replied with tears streaming from his eyes:

"'I signed the twenty-one demands. Can I, must I, also sign this?'

"It was the only answer he gave and the delegates understood. That is why, when the conference was called to order, the seats of the Chinese were vacant."

LOOK FOR AGREEMENT IN COAL CONTROVERSY

Both Sides Expected to Make Concessions and Avoid Strike of 400,000 Men.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The joint conference of the bituminous coal miners and operators today cleared the decks for action, after several days of preliminary jockeying over the status of the meeting and the power of the delegates to put into force a new agreement. The first real action came today with the adoption of a resolution to proceed to negotiate a new contract "in accordance with the call of the conference." This was done after a tie vote had been cast on the proposition that a date for the termination of the Washington wage agreement, enacted to cover the period of the war, be fixed.

The consent of the operators to the resolution adopted today is taken to indicate that they will not stand on their proposition that the Washington agreement continue in force until the proclamation of peace is signed by the President, or until April 1, 1920. It now appears that both sides will make concessions to reach an agreement and avert the threatened strike of 400,000 men on Nov. 1.

Today's session of the conference was devoted to debate on the two resolutions offered. One of these, by the miners, declared that the Washington agreement terminated on Oct. 31, 1919. The other, by the operators, offered as an amendment to the miners' resolution, declared the contract terminated on March 31, 1920. Each resolution received the votes of the faction introducing it, a tie resulting, 32 to 32, in each case.

Tomorrow the conference will discuss the wage clause of the demands presented by the miners. It is expected that then the first definite indication will be available of the extent of concessions to be made.

The miners' committee issued a statement today declaring that it is fully empowered to negotiate with the operators. The operators yesterday attacked the power of the miners' committee, contending that it could take no final action, but must refer to the convention of the United Mine Workers any agreement reached.

WANTS TO JOIN LEAGUE.

Lichtenstein to Ask for an Invitation from the Peace Conference.

BERNE, Sept. 30.—The Parliament of Lichtenstein, according to dispatches from that country, is about to appeal to the Peace Conference to invite the principality to join the League of Nations.

In its note the Government will ask the Peace Conference to recognize the neutrality maintained by the country during the war.

HITCHCOCK ROUSED BY TREATY DELAY

assembly. Senators McCumber, Lenroot and Edge drafted, together, a reservation as a substitute for the amendment, which they showed to Senator Lodge. The "compromise" reservation stipulates that the United States shall have equal voting power with Great Britain and its dominions and colonies in any matter involving the interests of the two countries.

Compromise Move Gaining.

Senator Lodge gave no intimation to the three Senators that he was inclined to favor the reservation. His attitude on the Johnson amendment, it is understood, is to be governed entirely by the preponderant sentiment of the Republican Senators. At this time about forty-three Republican Senators and at least two Democratic Senators are said to favor the amendment, but the talk of a compromise reservation is clearly making headway.

Aside from the effort at compromise on the Johnson amendment, the treaty situation today remained unchanged, so far as could be ascertained, with the Republicans claiming that they will be able to adopt all the majority reservations, with a compromise on that touching Article X., and the Democrats declining to discuss acceptance of any reservations that would recommit the treaty to the principal signatories or to the Paris conference.

The Democratic leaders were still waiting for opportunity to take up the reservation situation with the President, but Secretary Tumulty informed them that he did not know when Mr. Wilson would be able to confer with them.

Mr. Tumulty, it developed, had been making an inquiry into the Senate situation since his return to Washington on Sunday, and was permitted last night to tell the President in a brief conversation over the telephone the result of his efforts. He informed the President that the prospects for the speedy ratification of the treaty and the League covenant were better than they had been for ten days.

Sees "Systematic Filibuster."

When the Now resolution on the landing of United States marines on the Dalmatian coast came up in the Senate early in the day Senator Hitchcock, impatient over the side tracking of the treaty, protested that there appeared to be a "systematic filibuster" in progress among the Republicans.

"I am not protesting against this resolution," exclaimed the Senator, "but I am protesting against the everlasting disposition to prod and annoy an Administration which is doing everything in its power to end the war.

"I do not believe that all the Senators on the other side of the chamber are in sympathy with the practice of constantly heckling and attacking the President. We ought to act on this treaty.

"I repeat that I am willing to be beaten so as to get action on this treaty. Let us come to a vote on it."

Senator Lodge denied, with a show of resentment, that there had been any filibuster.

"That is an entire mistake," he insisted. "It is completely erroneous. There is no filibuster, and there has been no desire for one. Our desire is to get this treaty through—certainly that is my desire—and to dispose of it as soon as possible.

"I have kept this treaty steadily before the Senate, and I shall continue to do so, so far as I have anything to say about it. So far as I am concerned there never will be a filibuster, but I do not propose to go and try what would be perfectly useless and what would produce a filibuster—to cut Senators off from legitimate debate."

Lodge Inquires on Dalmatia.

Taking up the New resolution, Senator Lodge said that, as he recalled it, the Dalmatian coast was part of the territory taken over by Italy under the armistice.

"We are told that it has in some way slipped out of the possession of Italy and slipped into the hands of the Peace Council," said Senator Lodge. "I do not know how it has been done, although I have asked for the agreement to ascertain the facts. All I know is that our marines have been landed with machine guns to put the Italians out of the town of Trau and leave the Serbians in control there.

"Now, I should like to know under what authority, of the treaty or otherwise, that has been done. These nations are both friendly to us; they have both been our allies in the war. Who ordered this done? What commitments have been made?

Senator Knox of Pennsylvania asserted that, whenever United States Marines had been landed anywhere on foreign soil it had been done to protect American lives and property. In this expedition, he said, there was another motive, the United States intervening in the quarrels of foreign nations, without any issue involving itself.

Senator Fall asked Mr. Hitchcock to inform the Senate how the Supreme War Council, which had decreed that American marines be sent to Dalmatia, had been created, and by what authority it operated.

"It was constituted under the war powers of the nations that were associated in the war," replied Mr. Hitchcock. "The Supreme Council will be in control of the situation, too, until this Peace Treaty is ratified."

Fall Speaks for Three Hours.

With the New resolution disposed of, the Senate turned to debate on the treaty.

Senator Fall, in a three-hour speech, discussed various treaty provisions, touching briefly upon those to which his thirty-five amendments, to take the United States out of participation on all the commissions, except the Reparations Commission, pertain.

Mr. Fall bitterly attacked the provision under Part XIII. for an international labor conference, saying that it would interfere with America's right to handle its own labor problems. In this commission, he asserted, Great Britain would have twenty-four members, against four for the United States.

"That is carrying out the ratio of six to one that prevails throughout the treaty, as between the United States and Great Britain," he said.

Senator Edge, in a speech on the treaty, announced himself as in favor of the reservations urged by the Foreign Relations Committee, but against amendments. Although in sympathy with the principles involved in the amendments, Senator Edge said he did not feel disposed to vote for them, as they would necessitate recommitting the treaty to the principal signatories.

The country, Senator Edge said, wanted action on the treaty.

Although he had signed the "round robin" in the final days of the last Congress urging the Peace Conference to separate the League covenant from the treaty, Mr. Edge explained, still he was in favor of a League.

PLAN COUNCIL LIKE WAR LABOR BOARD

Will Be Discussed at President's Industrial Conference on Monday.

TENTATIVE PROGRAM READY

Secretary Wilson Expected to Submit Plan for District Arbitration Enforced by Courts.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Proposals for the establishment of a council for the settlement of industrial disputes, replacing the recently dissolved War Labor Board, probably will be one of the first subjects brought up for discussion at the labor and industrial conference called by President Wilson to meet here Monday, it was learned today from Department of Labor officials in close touch with the arrangements for the meeting.

Secretary Wilson has drawn up a tentative program for the conference, but whether the meeting will be open to representatives of the press has not been decided. It was said today by those making the arrangements that publicity probably would be left to the decision of the conference. A suggestion has been made that newspaper men should not be admitted to the conferees room, but that such parts of the proceedings as the conferees decided to make public should be given to the press as the conference proceeded. This plan would be similar to the recent White House conference between President Wilson and the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

In case President Wilson is unable to open the conference it is not known by officials here who the presiding officer will be, although it was considered likely that the President would designate some one to act for him. Secretary Wilson, to whom the President left the details for the meeting when he started on his speaking trip, it was said today, prefers not to act as a presiding officer but rather to take part in the discussions as a member of the conference.

Secretary Wilson, it was said by several officials, may submit a proposal for arbitration boards, as he is known to look with favor on a plan providing for district boards of arbitration, the awards of which would be put in force by the issue of an injunction by the Federal Court of the district restraining employers who are parties to the dispute in question from paying wages other than provided for in the award.

This plan would preserve the right of the men to strike, but is expected to take away the incentive to strike, as employers would be restrained by a court decree from paying higher wages than the sum fixed as just by the district boards.

Some means of removing causes of dispute and of conferring a larger degree of participation by labor in the management of industry along the lines of the Whitley Councils in England probably will be discussed, it was said. Whitley Councils, so-called after the Scotch manufacturer and member of a British Ministry of Reconstruction Committee who proposed them, have been established in more than fifty important British industries. There is a separate joint standing industrial council for each industry accepting the plan, in addition to the National Council, district and local boards are created to handle problems arising within their jurisdiction. Both employers and workers are represented on the boards, which deal with the general policy of the factory, the efficiency of the plant and similar subjects, as well as with possible sources of friction between capital and labor.

JOHNSON ARRIVES ON COAST.

Gets Cordial Welcome from His Followers in San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 30.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson was acclaimed vociferously by hundreds as he arrived in San Francisco tonight to combat the League of Nations covenant in his native State.

Senator Johnson's train was more than three hours late, but notwithstanding this the ferry building was crowded with friends and townspeople who had waited to receive him.

As he passed through an aisle of people to a stand erected outside the ferry building, where he was officially welcomed by Mayor James Rolph, the Senator repeatedly shook hands with old friends and acquaintances.

"I am here, my friends," Senator Johnson said, "to preach to you the doctrine that this country of ours is for Americans and to ask your to unite with me and with the others in Washington who are making the good fight there with us that there shall be no khaki-clad boys of ours sent to fight in foreign lands."

Senator Johnson was often interrupted by cheers, and he was applauded for a long period when he completed his talk.

Senator Johnson will speak tomorrow noon at a luncheon of business clubs at a hotel where two weeks ago President Wilson, on his tour of the country in behalf of the League of Nations, first presented his case to San Francisco. Tomorrow night Senator Johnson will speak at the Colosseum and Thursday noon at a women's luncheon at another hotel.

The Senator will leave San Francisco for Southern California Thursday night to make further addresses.

Following his California tour, Senator Johnson is to speak in Portland, Ore., and Seattle and Spokane, Wash., going from there to Salt Lake City.

LOWELL REPLIES TO BORAH.

Says Washington Looked "the Facts of His Day in the Face."

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University issued today a statement in reply to remarks by Senator Borah in the Senate yesterday, when Mr. Borah, criticising the League of Nations, said that the views of President Lowell were not calculated to arouse enthusiasm for American traditions and American history, and that the Harvard President held in contempt Washington's Farewell Address.

President Lowell in his statement said: "I yield neither to Senator Borah nor to any other man in admiration of the Farewell Address, and of the great fathers of the Republic; but I would not use them as a cover for present party politics. Never did I sneer at the Farewell Address; but I believe that the greatness of Washington was due to his looking the facts of his day in the face and determining his conduct thereby, instead of by utterances, however wise, of a hundred and fifty years before.

"I will trust the American people not to mistake short-sightedness for patriotism nor narrow-mindedness for love of country."

CITY BREVITIES.

A dinner was given at the Claridge last night to Louis M. Hart in honor of his fiftieth year with the Cammeyer firm.

Commissioners of Pilots of the Port of New York will be elected at a special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York tomorrow. Cardinal Mercier of Belgium will be the guest of honor at the regular meeting of the Chamber on Oct. 9.

An exhibition of relics of the war, collected by students and alumni, will shortly be open for the public at the College of the City of New York. Professor Nelson T. Mead, who is in charge of the history museum, is appealing to all men of the college who served in the war to send in their souvenirs. The collection will be regarded as a memorial to the 5,000 and more men of City College who bore arms.

WOULD MAKE STRIKES LAWFUL ONLY BY VOTE

New York Lawyer Contends This Should Be Taken Only After Arbitration.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 30.—Strikes begun before the workers have had the right to vote on the results of fair arbitration should be prohibited by law, declared William C. Fitts, of Blandy, Mooney & Shipman, lawyers at 38 Pine Street, New York, who was among the speakers tonight before the Tennessee State Bar Association. Mr. Fitts also made a plea for increased production as a method of lowering present prices, supplementing it with a statement that American buying of foreign securities was essential to stabilize international trade.

"The labor problem of today," he declared, "furnishes a faint premonition of the effects that would be produced by a purely Socialistic form of society. The world today is suffering mostly from lack of production, and despite anything that can or may be urged by politicians and time servers, when production is far below demand, prices must continue to rise until the production is increased to meet the demands upon it. In the face of this indisputable fact there is an almost universal demand for shorter hours of labor. At the same time we have, on unquestioned authority from England, the report that the production of commodities there decreases in direct proportion to the decrease in the length of hours of service."

The speaker pointed out that labor had recently "lost its faith in the efficacy of higher wages," and likening any concern to "a cake," declared that the three slices dealt to capital, to management and to labor should be equitable. He condemned talk that "the ends of capital and the ends of labor are the same," declaring the ends of each to be antagonistic. "Each wants its share of the cake to be as big as possible," he insisted. He decried bonus systems or issuance of participating stock as methods of rewarding labor, asserting that labor "wants the money; they do not want any guardian or protectorate."

"The first great task attaching to our part in the reorganization and reconstruction of the world," he continued, "is to make sure that during this perilous period we pursue a safe and sane course with regard to this pressing issue of labor. The United States is the one nation that ought to turn right in and do more work than ever before to help humanity. We must recognize the authorized leaders of organized workers, while we denounce and repudiate the incendiaries who seek to spread here the destructive fire of the international 'Reds.' The executive heads of the labor unions, both here and abroad, are well informed political economists. They are honestly and earnestly striving to promote production, produce co-operation and bring about contentment. The leaders of Bolshevism, the international 'Reds' and the I. W. W.'s, and they are all the same thing, are doggedly determined to withhold production, strike at and destroy the plants and bring about discord and destruction as the means to accomplish their ends.

"The labor leader who authorizes a strike after negotiation has failed or the award of a Board of Arbitration has been thoughtfully rejected by his followers, is not to be confounded with the agitator who preaches and practices syndicalism and sabotage."

Again Mr. Fitts said:

"The tantalizing feature of the labor problem is to fix and determine just at what point wholesome public opinion should tolerate the exercise of the power to resort to strikes. Upon this phase of the subject I submit the following thought: when workers were struggling to be recognized, when organized labor was not treated with respect as such, and its rights were denied or grudgingly admitted and only granted when compulsion had been asserted, it was then necessary that secret and local boards be created to handle and inconveniences inflicted upon it by strikes.

PASSES COLD STORAGE BILL.

House Sends Measure Recommended by President to the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Additional legislation recommended by President Wilson as a means of reducing living costs was passed today by the House and sent to the Senate. It limits the time of holding foodstuffs in cold storage to twelve months and and requires that when released such food shall be plainly marked with the date it was placed in storage.

The vote was 284 to 4. The regulatory features of the bill will become effective immediately on its passage, but ninety days for an adjustment of the business affected is allowed before penalties become applicable.

Vast quantities of food now in storage are expected to be released if the measure becomes a law. Cheese is the only commodity exempted, the time limit for storage to perfect aging being extended for a longer period than one year. The penalty for violation is a $1,000 fine or imprisonment for one year.

Prince and Princess Lucinge Here.

Prince and Princess de Faucigny Lucinge are in town after a month spent at Bretton Woods. The Prince will soon go to Paris on official business. During his absence Princess Lucinge will stay at the Ritz-Carlton.

GEN. WOOD ORDERS TRIAL FOR RIOTERS

any repetition of the disorders. If this should occur, it is altogether probable that many deaths might occur before the disturbances could be quieted."

With the advent of General Wood and his staff the city took on the aspect of an armed camp. Machine guns are posted before the City Hall, the wrecked court house and at several other points. Soldiers are bivouacked in the rotundas of many large buildings. Guards patrol the downtown streets as well as the negro sections. A gathering of more than two people is challenged by the first guard which passes. Army trucks are at strategic points, ready to rush reinforcements wherever needed. Artillery, hand grenades and other fighting material are banked around the City Hall. An observation balloon keeps watch over the city.

Governor McKelvie arrived today and notified the business men that if Omaha could not put down and prevent trouble the State would take charge and keep the peace. He announced that he would call a special session of the State Legislature to give the city authority to issue $1,000,000 in bonds with which to repair the Court House and replace the destroyed county records. The seven Judges of the District Court met this afternoon and ordered a Grand Jury to convene and investigate the riots. Under the Nebraska law three weeks must elapse between the calling and the convening of the Grand Jury, but the absence of a Grand Jury will not prevent wholesale arrests. Those arrested will simply be held for the action of the Grand Jury.

Governor's Special Message.

In a special message to the people of Omaha Governor McKelvie reviewed the work of the mob, saying:

"One of the most alarming features of the situation is the extent to which young boys were engaged in the destruction of property and the violence that characterized the riot. We can have little hope for the future if such acts reflect a condition which is common in any community. People of mature judgment realize that when such youthful law violators are encouraged there is no assurance of protection of either life or property, and these boys of today are to be the dependable citizens of tomorrow, so unless something is done to direct their thoughts in the right channels we may expect a worse condition in years to come.

"The correction of these misguided youths must begin in the homes and should be carried on through our entire educational system."

Following an examination and investigation by the Real Estate Board of Omaha, a statement was issued this afternoon that not a single title or record of any kind had been destroyed, and that every deed, mortgage, and other instrument, including those filed Saturday afternoon, was in the vault and was safe. The index books were burned, but the titles remain intact.

Mayor Smith is much improved tonight, although still in a dazed condition. Today he had a few minutes' conversation with his daughter, who was permitted to see him. The Mayor does not yet know that the Court House was destroyed by the mob, nor that the negro was hanged and burned. The information has been kept from him. His physicians expect to move him from the hospital to his home by the end of the week.

Following the announcement of the City Prosecutor that he had the names of twenty members of the mob and that he would file complaints against them immediately, county, city and State officials combined to prevent any members of the mob from leaving the city.

Five hundred field artillerymen and machine gun troops, with all equipment, arrived from Camp Grant today and immediately took up positions assigned to them by Colonel Morris.

GOVERNOR KILBY AROUSED.

Alabama Executive Calls Aide to Act on Lynchings—3 Negroes Killed.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 30.—Governor Kilby intervened today in the situation growing out of the lynching here yesterday of three negroes. Judges of the Circuit Court and the Sheriff were called into conference to determine action to be taken by the county or State officials.

A fourth negro, Ben Miller, a former soldier, was shot and wounded early today on a downtown street. He reported that four white men attempted to get him into an automobile and he was shot when he refused to go with them.

The third negro to die last night was John Temple, who shot and fatally wounded Policeman John Barbare and who was later shot to death in a hospital by a small band of white men.

Barbare arrested Temple and two other negroes on a charge of disorderly conduct as a result of a row following a dance. Temple resented his arrest and shot the officer, but not until he himself had been wounded. The police to prevent a possible lynching announced that Temple had been killed. Later it became known that this was only a ruse, and that Temple had been taken to a hospital.

A small band quickly organized and not more than half a dozen men entered the hospital, overpowered the two guards and shot the negro to death as he lay in bed.

'BACHELOR' SHOWS THEM HOW TO COOK

Women Crowd Around Waffle Stand at Electrical Show While Man Performs.

SERVES A REGULAR MEAL

Mechanical "Scrub Lady" Also Astonishes Housewives by Working Without Charge.

A bachelor, a plain human man, was the most interesting exhibit at the electrical show at the Grand Central Palace yesterday, for not even electrical cooking utensils are worth while if no one can cook with them, and the bachelor cooked a luncheon.

It was a very good luncheon—not one of the soft, gooey kind that is made in a chafing dish, but a real, honest-to-goodness luncheon—cooked on a nice little electric stove that would fit into a nice little kitchenette, the real thing, such as a good maid might serve in any well-ordered house. There were salads and things cooked in the oven, and the bachelor cook, a nice-looking young man in an apron, stayed right by the stove and kept things going, as a real cook must, while—it was Woman's Rights Day—a party of women ate the luncheon.

The moral was that it is such fun to cook with electricity the mere man would rather cook than eat. This is what he gave the women guests: A sausage surprise—sausage meat in the centre of a cone of mashed potatoes, the whole fried in crumbs like a croquette; flaked crabmeat in half a green pepper, with crispy browned crumbs on top; anchovy creamed eggs on toast; salad with Russian dressing, and, for dessert, the best waffles ever. This is the way the waffles were made:

One pint sour cream, three eggs, three tablespoons melted lard, two pints flour, one teaspoon soda, a little salt. Beat the eggs separately, add to the yolks flour and sour cream; make the batter very thin with sweet milk. Add lard, soda dissolved in a little milk, whites of eggs last. Bake quickly on hot irons.

It is an old Southern recipe, and for any one who feels that cream, even sour, costs too much these days, the bachelor said "Sallie's waffles" are pretty nearly as good. This is the way "Sallie" makes them:

Into a quart of flour stir slowly a quart of milk; beat five eggs; add a tablespoonful of melted butter and a quarter of a pound of sugar, if they are preferred sweet; add the beaten whites last. Or, another recipe: A pint of pastry flour, two tablespoons of baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, three eggs, and one and one-half cups milk; the whites of the eggs beaten stiff and the mixture poured on the waffle irons from a pitcher. The irons must be greased with olive-oil or chicken fat; never butter.

They cooked some of these waffles, as well as griddle cakes, for the regular crowd to show how the electric waffle irons and griddles work. They had to rope off the cook and the apparatus to keep the people from grabbing the tropules half done. A secret came out at the end of the luncheon, the bachelor said his wife taught him to cook. The bachelor principle is that any man can now manage as a bachelor, for he has only to turn the electric current on with a button and the rest is a cinch.

RUSH FOR LICENSES GROWS.

5,300 Issued for Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Queens.

Notwithstanding announcement in Washington that the wartime prohibition law will not become inoperative until the Peace Treaty has been ratified, the rush of local liquor dealers for licenses continued yesterday.

When Deputy Excise Commissioner John T. McNeill closed his offices at 1,451 Broadway at midnight about 3,000 licenses had been issued for Manhattan. Deputy Commissioner Ralston, in Brooklyn, had licensed approximately 1,700 places, and Theodore P. Wilsnack, Deputy Commissioner for Queens, estimated that 600 of last year's 800 licenses had been renewed.

There are indications also that the brewers and distillers are alert. It was said yesterday that trainload after trainload of whisky is being shipped from Kentucky to this city, under a ruling of Attorney General Palmer that certificates calling for liquor can be sold now, and the purchased stock claimed when the ban is lifted.

"As long as the wartime prohibition measure is legally in effect," said R. J. Schaefer, President of the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Company, 617 Lexington Avenue, "our company will brew and sell only beer having no more than 2.75 per cent. of alcohol by weight. When the sale of beer with a greater alcoholic content is legalized, we will again brew and sell the usual product which we have been putting out for more than twenty-seven years."

Wilson Reduces Captain's Sentence.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Sentence of twenty-five years' imprisonment imposed by a military court-martial on Captain David A. Henkes of the Sixteenth Infantry, who attempted to resign from the army during the war to escape "making war on my kindred upon their soil," has been reduced to five years by President Wilson.

ARMY LOST $2,000,000 IN WRECK, TWO SWEAR

Supplies Were Stolen From Port Hunter During Delay in Salvaging, Officers Testify.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—Testimony that out of the cargo of $5,000,000 worth of army supplies on the Cunard Line Steamship Port Hunter, only goods valued at $3,000,000 were salvaged after the steamer sank in Vineyard Sound on Nov. 10 last, was given before a Congressional Investigating Committee here today. It was also testified that the contract for salvaging was awarded to the Mercantile Wrecking Company of New Bedford after competitive bids had been rejected and the required bond reduced from $200,000 to $50,000.

The Port Hunter was sunk after a collision with the tug Covington. She was bound from Boston to New York to join an overseas convoy, and besides the army cargo had on board steel valued at $800,000 for the French Government. The steel is still in the vessel, which now lies in twenty-five feet of water.

"What became of the other $2,000,000?" asked Congressman Reavis, after Lieut. Col. Barry had told of the recovery of $3,000,000 worth of goods.

"No one knews," was the reply.

"Are you sure of that?"

"Well," answered Lieut. Col. Barry, "I know from hearsay that about every one in Vineyard Sound had been at the wreck, but that is all I know."

The only reason he had ever heard for the delay of nearly three months in taking definite action for salvaging was that the vessel was British-owned and part of the cargo was for the French Government, which made it a delicate matter to handle.

Mr. Jeffries testified that residents of coast towns got "all they wanted" from the wreck. Hooks were used, he said, to pull thousands of dollars worth of plothing out of the holds. He said Boston stores were selling for 25 cents each $2.00 articles taken from the ship.

3 TO 1 FOR GRAND DUCHESS.

Same Majority in Luxembourg for the French Alliance.

LUXEMBOURG, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—Balloting in favor of the retention of the Grand Duchess Charlotte as ruler and of the establishment of an economic alliance with France, instead of with Belgium, continued to show overwhelming majorities at the start of the second day's count of votes cast in the plebiscite Sunday to determine the future of the Grand Duchy.

Voting in the Republican districts in Luxembourg city and in Esch reduced the proportions of the lead of the Grand Duchess from four to one down to something over three to one, but this reduction had been anticipated.

The French economic alliance continued to lead in favor by a vote of about three to one.

SOLDIERS DEMAND TREATY.

"Old Hickory" Men Oppose Amendment or Reservation.

GREENVILLE, S. C., Sept. 30.—Veterans of the Thirtieth, (Old Hickory,) Division from Tennessee, North Carolina, and South Carolina, meeting here today in a reunion of the Thirtieth Division Association, adopted a resolution favoring the immediate ratification of the Peace Treaty without amendment or reservation.

The resolution was adopted after spirited debate, the vote being almost unanimous.

Major Gens. E. M. Lewis, formerly commander of the Thirtieth, and John F. O'Ryan of the Twenty-seventh, (New York,) Division, with which the Thirtieth stormed and broke the Hindenburg line in Flanders, were among speakers at the reunion.

Wishing to sail for home on the Mauretania on September 20th one of our buyers found herself in Paris with neither train nor channel boat connection which would enable her to "make the boat."

Did she cancel her Mauretania reservations, and make her way to London in the usual way?

By no manner of means. That is not the style of members of our organization. Knowing that an airplane passenger service had recently been established between Paris and London she booked passage in the latest, right-up-to-the-minute way, and came sailing northward a few thousand feet above terra firma, reaching London in ample time to catch the Mauretania.

The big steamer sailed into the harbor of New York on Friday last,—a fine trip, but commonplace enough in comparison with the wonderful journey through the air from Paris to London.

We believe that this resourceful young woman is the first representative of an American department store to make a business trip of this kind.

In due time the lingerie novelties she saw in Paris will be here to charm the women of New York.

Displayed in the streets are the arms of the most important cities of Italy, while in the Piazza Dante in the real centre of Fiume is a painting of Captain d'Annunzio, who is shown wearing his five rows of decorations. Portraits of King Victor Emmanuel, General Diaz, Commander in Chief of the Italian Armies, and Giuseppe Garibaldi, the immortal Italian patriot, are shown everywhere. On the tunics of all the soldiers here are worn the Fiuman colors, which are displayed above the wearer's service ribbons, while the Fiuman flag flies from all cantons and autos and is displayed on the houses of private citizens.

There is no evidence of traffic in the harbor. The Italian dreadnought Dante Alighieri is anchored within fifty yards of the water front, while three destroyers occupy positions in docks.

Although no news is reaching the city from the outside world, the Italians here are confident of winning their fight. There seems to be plenty of food. White bread, which is not served in other parts of Italy, is on restaurant tables and is displayed in large quantities, although prices are high. The exchange situation is one which seems most perplexing, an Italian lire being worth 5 crowns of the money of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire. The city has an air of business, and notwithstanding the presence of thousands of soldiers, the citizens are performing their daily work as if their city were not attracting the attention of the whole world.

Riding stowed away in the coal the correspondent succeeded in evading a strong cordon of carabineers which traveled on the train to prevent any one from making his way into the city. The correspondent kept himself buried in the coal from the time the train left Giordano until it reached Fiume, although most suffocated with coal and oil. Although he succeeded in weathering the difficulties, the comfort of the trip was not increased by the rocking of the train as it sped over worn-out tracks.

Other Stowaways Appear.

The correspondent knew he had at last reached Fiume when he again looked out and saw the lighthouse throwing its beams across the harbor. Deep silence brooded over the city as the train slowly made its way into the station. There the correspondent alighted and found several volunteer soldiers, who also had managed to avoid the carabineers. One youth said he had traveled forty-three hours without sleeping or eating to get to Fiume.

When the engineer and trainmen saw the men they had brought into the city they laughed heartily and shouted "Viva Fiume!" "Viva d'Annunzio!" Then the correspondent went in search of a hotel, and found Fiume sound asleep. He procured a room and retired, but at 2:30 in the morning was awakened by a detail of twelve guards headed by a Lieutenant, who asked for passports. In the guard were two carabineers, who had joined the d'Annunzio forces. After carefully scrutinizing the correspondent's passports, the Lieutenant begged his pardon for having aroused him at such an hour, and then passed on.

Gabriele d'Annunzio received the correspondent this afternoon and gave to him a statement expressing his unalterable determination to hold Fiume until it was annexed to Italy.

"We are glad to see you in Fiume," he said. "We are here to stay until we are through with our task of having Fiume annexed to Italy. We will not leave under any consideration until our object is accomplished.

"You see the enthusiasm of the people of Fiume to be annexed. You see that the people of Fiume are Italian. We are most firm in our determination to continue until our aim is fulfilled. Our motto remains today as since the beginning of this enterprise, 'Fiume or Death.'

"We are willing to sacrifice all in our effort to gain what we believe to be just and right."

Poet Looked Tired and Worn.

D'Annunzio appeared tired and worn out, and his face showed evidences of fever. During the day he had suffered from an attack of neuralgia and had been confined to his bed until late in the afternoon. The last few days have imposed the severest strain upon the poet. He has been rising at 6:30 in the morning to commence the work of answering letters and drafting proclamations. This has been his task in addition to attending to staff work in connection with the forces of occupation under his command. One of his secretaries told the correspondent that d'Annunzio had received 500 persons Friday and that at the close of every day he was exhausted.

All vestiges of Jugoslav signs or names have been removed. The hotel where the Associated Press correspondent stayed was named Hotel de Deak before Fiume asked for annexation to Italy. After the armistice and because of the "Fourteen Points" the name was changed to Hotel Wilson. After President Wilson's declaration last April against the handing over of Fiume to Italy the name was again changed to Hotel Orlando, and this name was retained despite Orlando's withdrawal from the Ministry until the arrival of d'Annunzio's expedition, and the hostelry then became the Hotel d'Annunzio.

SAYS SERB TROOPS RECAPTURED TRAU

Serbian Statement Also Asserts That 500 United States Marines Were Landed.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 30. — The American peace delegation version of the landing of American marines at Trau is flatly disputed in a statement issued by the Serbs late today.

The Serb statement says 500 Americans landed and that Serb troops chased d'Annunzio's adherents from the town they had seized. The Serb statement further says that the American warship is standing by to prevent a threatened renewal of the Italian attempt.

It was stated on Sunday on behalf of the American delegation that only one officer and four or five men landed for the diplomatic mission of persuading the Italians to withdraw. In response to questions today Mr. Polk, head of the delegation, admitted that the information as to numbers was incorrect, and that probably 100 Americans landed, but only on a peaceful mission and at the request of the Italian Admiral.

After telling how the Italians went to Trau, the official Serb statement says:

"During the day of the 23d Trau was purged of Italian troops. Besides the Serb troops arriving in haste from Spalato, an American torpedo boat which landed 500 marines contributed to re-establishing a normal situation. The appearance of the American marines provoked indescribable enthusiasm among the Jugoslav population.

"The Serb troops on their arrival in the city were greeted with acclamations and bouquets of flowers. They pursued the Italians in flight entirely out of Trau and its suburbs. The Italians abandoned important booty.

"To prevent a new coup de main by the Italians the American ship remains at Trau. It has received orders to prevent any new action by the Italians. These precautions do not appear useless, for one sees suspicious movements of Italians behind the lines fixed by the armistice. Italians have concentrated troops on all roads leading to Trau and at Labin, where they have assembled heavy artillery and armored automobiles.

"All these military measures cause serious concern among the Dalmatian population and cause the impression that the Italians plan to provoke an armed conflict with the Jugoslavs."

ANDREWS KEEPING ORDER.

Acted at Trau Without Instructions from Supreme Council.

ROME, Sept. 30.—American marines or bluejackets are maintaining order in the city of Spalato, Dalmatia, where Rear Admiral Phillip Andrews is stationed with his flagship Pittsburgh, according to reports reaching this city. It is indicated in reports that feeling is running high in Spalato and that the Americans have been forced to intervene between the Italians and Jugoslavs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The bottom appears to have fallen out of the Trau incident as an international sensation involving the use of armed forces of the United States to preserve order and maintain neutrality in the Dalmatian area occupied as enemy territory until the powers determine its disposition.

The Senate today again engaged in a lively debate concerning the action of Rear Admiral Philip Andrews, commanding the United States naval forces in the Adriatic, in sending a detachment of blue jackets or marines ashore at Trau to take possession of that place, which had been seized by Italians, and adopted a resolution calling on President Wilson for a report of the incident. There is every indication that this course of Admiral Andrews was not directed against Italy but was in accordance with a request from the Italian naval commander in the vicinity.

While the State and the Navy Departments have no information on the subject, officials do not doubt the accuracy of press dispatches from Paris which agree in stating that the Italian naval commander made the request and that Admiral Andrews acted on his own initiative. These press dispatches acquit the Allied Supreme Council at Paris of any part in the matter and remove cause for the Senatorial criticism that the Council had no right to give directions to an American naval officer.

It has been brought out that Trau and its vicinity comprise the area of the Dalmatian coast intrusted for occupation as enemy territory to the United States Government. All accounts go to show that Admiral Andrews and the officer commanding the landing force from the United States cruiser Olympia handled the situation at Trau with great tact, and were able to obtain the withdrawal of the invading Italian force without bloodshed, and to induce nearby Serbian troops not to enter Trau until the Italians had withdrawn.

TEXT OF DEMAND ON BERLIN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The State Department made the following announcement tonight:

"The allied and associated Governments on Sept. 27 presented the following note to the German Government:

"'According to the terms of Article 12 of the armistice of Nov. 11, 1918, Germany subscribed to the following engagement:

"'All German troops at present in any territory which before the war belonged to Austria-Hungary, Rumania, or Turkey shall withdraw within the frontiers of Germany as they existed Aug. 1, 1914, and all German troops at present in territories which before the war formed part of Russia must likewise return to within the frontiers of Germany, above defined, as soon as the Allies shall think the moment suitable, having regard to the internal situation in those territories.

"'Under date of Aug. 27 Marshal Foch, Commander-in-Chief of the allied and associated armies, made known the time had come for Germany to evacuate the said territories and summoned the German Government to proceed thereto immediately.

"'By its note of Sept. 3 the German Government endeavored to evade the engagement above referred to by alleging pretexts which the allied and associated powers were unable to consider.

"'The allied and associated Governments particularly refuse to admit that the German Government can, in order to avoid responsibility upon it, shield itself behind alleged inability to enforce obedience to its orders by troops in the Baltic regions.

"'They therefore request the German Government to proceed without delay to the evacuation of all German troops, staffs, and services included now in the Baltic Provinces. The German Government will immediately take the necessary steps to withdraw within aforesaid boundaries all German officers and soldiers who have enlisted since the demobilization in Russian corps organized in the said Baltic Provinces and will withhold authorization for and strictly forbid enlistment in said corps.

"'Evacuation must be started immediately and must continue without interruption.

"'The allied and associated governments hereby notify that, unless they are satisfied that their demands are being effectively executed, they will not entertain any of the applications put forward by the German Government for supplies of foodstuffs and raw materials. They have consequently given instructions not to proceed with the examination of any of these applications.

"'Furthermore, the allied and associated Governments will refuse all financial facilities which the German Government is enjoying at the present time or for which it is seeking from the allied and associated Governments or their nationals.

"'In the event of non-compliance on the part of the German Government the allied and associated powers will take such measures as they shall judge necessary to enforce the aforesaid terms of the armistice.'"

PEACE CONFERENCE ANXIOUS.

Sees Possibility of Balkans Being Involved in Fiume Trouble.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The inflamed conditions in the Adriatic region and the dissolution of the Italian Parliament for the holding of a general election on Nov. 16, as Rome dispatches announced yesterday, is giving the Supreme Council much concern, in view of the possibility of all the Balkans becoming involved in the turmoil.

Concerning the political situation, the Epoca of Rome says:

"The Ministerial crisis has opened a break between Premier Nitti and Foreign Minister Tittoni which is apparently irremediable. The Ministers differ widely on decisions to be reached."

In Peace Conference circles the approaching elections are regarded as a struggle between the war and peace parties, or rather between the forces on the military side and those of Socialistic and pacific tendencies. While it appears that d'Annunzio and Fiume will be chiefly in issue, the feeling is growing in Paris that as d'Annunzio has indicated that his aspirations include far more than Fiume, the Italian situation is daily becoming more of an international question.

In view of the conditions, the view is expressed here that the agitation might flame into war any day if, for instance, a Jugoslav should happen to be killed by Italian troops.

POET SAYS HE'S AT WAR WITH JUGOSLAVIA

D'Annunzio's Troops Co-operating With Regulars to Guard the Frontier.

ROME, Sept. 30.—Telegraphic advices from Fiume report that Gabriele d'Annunzio, in command of the insurgent garrison of the city, has stated that he considered himself in a state of war with Jugoslavia. His declaration was made after the head of the French mission had demanded that d'Annunzio restore telegraphic communication with Agram, the Croatian capital, which d'Annunzio had interrupted.

FIUME, Sept. 29. (Associated Press.) —"I consider myself in a state of war with Jugoslavia."

Gabriele d'Annunzio thus proclaimed from the Municipal Palace of Fiume today. He also announced that measures had been adopted to meet any attack from the enemy. Troops had been sent to the first line of reserves ready to answer any need.

Thus far the Italian Red Cross has not appeared on the scene for the purpose of giving assistance to those within the city if necessary.

The correspondent of the Epoca says the blockade of Fiume is more severe than formerly, even mail being held at the frontier. There is food sufficient for three months for the population of Fiume.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The landing of American marines at Trau by Rear Admiral Andrews was not directed by the Supreme Council here, according to the American peace delegation. It was explained that when a party of Italians entered Trau and it was feared a clash might occur between the Italians and the Serbians, the Italian Admiral on the scene appealed to the American Admiral to intervene for the maintenance of peace.

This, it was added, Rear Admiral Andrews did as part of his regular duties of policing the Adriatic and without any instructions from Paris.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The French troops that were in Fiume have been evacuating that city for several days past, says La Liberté today. The operation, it explains, is a long one because of the immense stores of supplies that have to be removed.

The Jugoslav Press Bureau in Paris says it is authorized to declare that, contrary to the assertions of Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Jugoslav Government never intended to enter Fiume by force and never made military preparations to that end. It adds that d'Annunzio's assertions are the merest excuse for consumption abroad.

Orders closing the Jugoslav frontier have led the Chief of Staff of the 35th Italian Regular Army Corps at Abbazia to interview Captain de'Annunzio's Chief of Staff and discuss measures to be taken. This has resulted in the sending of some of Captain d'Annunzio's volunteers to hold the armistice line, according to the Epoca, which adds "the event shows the cordial collaboration between the d'Annunzio troops and the regulars."

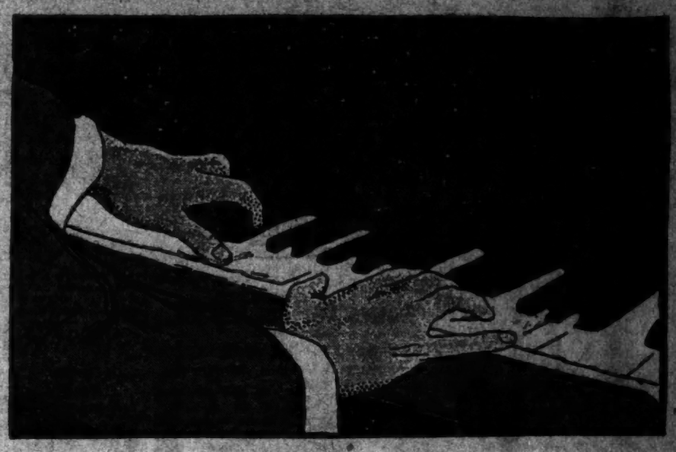
MEN'S SECTION—THIRD FLOOR

Perpetuating the Evanescent



MUSIC is the most fragile of the arts. The painter is immortalized through the medium of canvas and paint. The sculptor enshrines his genius in eternal marble. Their art is perpetuated for the enjoyment of future generations.

The interpretive artist holds a vast audience spellbound by the witchery of his music—makes the pulse of the multitude beat in unison until the last throbbing note of his playing dies on the air. The spell is broken. His art has lived but for the moment—it was as evanescent as the summer breeze.

Today we have only the remembered story of the exquisite playing of Chopin and the pianistic glory that made Liszt the idol of his time. The Ampico did not exist in those days. But now this marvelous reproducing piano is perpetuating the art of the great master pianists of this day for your pleasure, and for the delight of generations to come.

Such artists as Rachmaninoff, Levitzki and Ornstein have recorded the great classic masterpieces so that you may hear them in your home, exactly as they played on the concert stage. The popular music of the day has been recorded by Broadway favorites, and hundreds of other gifted musicians have played the lighter classics and charming ballades so that you may enjoy them when you will.

When you own your Ampico you do not merely possess an instrument of musical possibilities, but Music Itself. It is as if you had all the great musicians of the world at your command, to play for you, in your home, all the music you love best.

The AMPICO

May be had in the Celebrated Knabe, Haines Bros. and the Franklin

PROHIBITION SPLITS PARTIES IN JERSEY

Democratic Platform Denounces It; Republicans Accept It as Law of the Land.

DIVIDE ON VOTE FOR WOMEN

Democrats for Immediate Ratification; Republicans Declare for Referendum.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Sept. 30.—Action taken here today by the Democratic and Republican State Conventions, calling for the adoption of party platforms upon which the candidates for Governor and legislators will seek election in November, made it certain that New Jersey will not ratify the constitutional amendment for national prohibition.

The Democrats took an out-and-out stand against prohibition, charging that it kills personal liberty and that until the amendment is upheld by the United States Supreme Court it cannot be the law of the land.

The Republicans adopted a plank pledging the party to uphold the Constitution, and this is accepted as an indirect pledge to enforce the amendment.

Following the adoption of the platforms announcement was made that Fillmore Condit, who was to have been the Anti-Saloon League's candidate for Governor in the general election, would withdraw in favor of Newton A. K. Bugbee, the Republican nominee.

By a vote of 49 to 19 the Democrats adopted a plank for immediate ratification of the suffrage amendment.

In the Republican Convention a plank was adopted for a referendum. The Republicans declared for abolition of the zone fare system, and promised valuation of utility properties by an independent commission with fixing of rates upon the basis of such valuation. The Democrats also declared for abolition of the zone fare system with a return to 5 cents as the flat fare for trolley service, and advocated an elective Board of Public Utility Commissioners instead of one appointed by the Governor.

The Republicans adopted a plank for the construction of the New York-Jersey City vehicular tunnel, the Camden-Philadelphia Bridge and the New Jersey Ship Canal by bond issue rather than by direct taxation.

The Democrats sent a telegram of sympathy to President Wilson, expressing hope for his speedy recovery. They also adopted a resolution by Thomas F. Fay, of Long Branch, protesting against the establishment of a State Constabulary.

BURLESON AGAIN ASSAILED

Accused of Dodging House Order by Representative Lehlbach.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—In the House today Representative F. R. Lehlbach of New Jersey arraigned Postmaster General Burleson on the charge of not fully complying with the House resolution to furnish it with information regarding his failure to follow the Presidential order promptly to appoint Postmasters who had passed the highest Civil Service examination.

In a letter to the House Postmaster General Burleson said that all appointments submitted to the President had been in compliance with the Presidential order. Mr. Lehlbach asserted that Mr. Burleson was not making appointments promptly and that Mr. Burleson's letter showed that there were 786 vacancies in Postmasterships.

VOLCANO DESTROYS FOREST

Scientists Investigating Eruption of Mauna Loa, on Hawaii Island.

HONOLULU, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—Two ranch homes and much valuable koa forest has been destroyed by the lava flow from the latest eruption of the volcano of Mauna Loa, on Hawaii Island. The flow apparently is a mile wide and is moving rapidly. It probably will reach the ocean, thirty miles from the volcano, today. The scientific party, headed by Professor Thomas A. Jaggar, Jr., director of the Kilauea Observatory and former head of the department of geology of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with five days' supplies, has gone on a tour of investigation of the eruption.

The koa wood is a valuable hardwood similar to mahogany.

McGINNIS TO STAND TRIAL.

Fire Captain and McGoey Lose in Demurrer Proceedings.

Captain Frank H. McGinnis of the Fire Department and Frank McGoey of Far Rockaway will have to stand trial on indictments charging conspiracy an bribery. These indictments were based upon the allegation that certain favors were to be granted to moving picture houses in return for payments through a fake picture exchange. Judge Otto Rosalsky, in General Sessions, yesterday disallowed a demurrer.

Leon C. Wallace, a manager of Healy's restaurant, who was indicted in connection with the alleged graft and who confessed to the workings of the plan, died of pneumonia on Thursday. Should the case go to trial Wallace's testimony before the Grand Jury can be read to the trial jury. Much of this testimony has already been read in court.

Norwegian Bark Is Sunk; 1 Drowns

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—The Norwegian bark Bris of 975 tons was sunk off the coast of Brazil in a collision during the night of Sept. 23 with the Spanish steamer Durango. One of the crew was drowned. The Durango rescued the survivors and brought them to Buenos Aires.

$10,000 FOR FIREMEN'S FUND

Standard Oil Co. Gift a Reward for Work at Greenpoint Fire.

Mayor Hylan yesterday received a letter from H. A. Pratt of the Standard Oil Company thanking him for his personal efforts and for the efficient service of the Fire Department at the recent oil fire at Greenpoint. Mr. Pratt inclosed a check for $10,000 for the Neustadt Memorial Fund, which was established by Mrs. Sigmund Neustadt in 1911 for injured firemen. In his letter, Mr. Pratt said:

"It is especially gratifying that as a result of the care and skill with which the situation was handled there was no loss of life nor serious injury to any person.

"The people of our city are to be congratulated upon the splendid courage, discipline, and efficiency of its Fire Department under its present able management, as so clearly demonstrated in this emergency."

The Mayor, accepting the gift, wrote in reply:

"Thank you very much for your letter of Sept. 25 and the accompanying check. It has been turned over to Fire Commissioner Drennan, Treasurer of the Neustadt Fund, for proper disposition, together with a copy of your letter.

"The men of the Fire Department are prepared always to do their duty without thought of reward, but I am sure I can say for them that they will learn of your splendid, public-spirited action with deepest appreciation and gratitude."

Robert Burton, noted seventeenth century writer, said of the literary style, "Our Style betrays us." This is no less true of the sartorial style. But a correctly styled suit or overcoat betrays nothing more than the discrimination of the man wearing it.

Scrupulous avoidance of extremes has made our styles correct! Superior fabrics and tailoring added, our prices become extraordinary—they are lower than other good shops charge for similar quality.

COFFEE HOUSE RAID TO BE INVESTIGATED

District Attorney Swann Orders Inquiry Into Charges of Police Oppression.

PROPRIETOR TELLS OF RAID

Police Accused of Wantonly Destroying Furniture and of Assaulting Cafe Customers.

An inquiry into charges of police oppression, made by the proprietor of a coffee house whose place was raided on Sunday night, was ordered yesterday by District Attorney Swann. A letter to the District Attorney, written by Louis Damaszek of 14 St. Mark's Place, declared that policemen directed by Inspector Boettler had wantonly destroyed fixtures in his restaurant, but had made no attempt to arrest any person during the raid.

The coffee house proprietor said that many of his patrons were waiters and men returning from late lodge meetings and denied that disreputable persons came to the place to gamble. He said that a previous raid was made on his place by Detective Thomas W. Gray on July 29 last and that he and several of his patrons were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct. Although they were convicted by Magistrate Sweetser, who suspended sentence, Damaszek points out that Judge Wadhams reversed the convictions in General Sessions "on the ground that there was absolutely no evidence of any kind to warrant the conviction."

Several burglaries were reported yesterday, but in most of them only small sums were lost. Losses were reported by the Superior Hosiery & Underwear Company of 461 Broadway, and H. H. Upham & Company of 503 West Broadway. The police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station made two arrests yesterday in connection with the theft of about $6,000 from the cashier of the Strand Roof Garden on Saturday night.

John J. Hanley, owner of the cafe at 2,475 Broadway, was discharged in the west side police court yesterday by Magistrate McQuade, who ruled that there was not sufficient evidence to hold him on a charge of disorderly conduct. A detective on the staff of Inspector Dominick Henry testified that, when he entered the cafe, Hanley swept several glasses off the bar. The detective told of his suspicion that the glasses contained whiskey, but he was not able to prove that they did. Magistrate McQuade ruled that the alleged action of Hanley did not constitute disorderly conduct.

MEXICO IN SCHOOL TANGLE.

Newspapers Say All Public Education in Capital Is Suspended.

Mexico City's public schools are all closed because of the failure of the Government to pay the teachers, according to articles in El Universal and Excelsior, two of the Mexican newspapers. It is said that the teachers have received no pay since May, and that more than 100,000 in the Federal district alone are without school facilities.

The newspaper articles contradict statements recently made by the Mexican Ambassador, Mr. Bonillas, at Washington, who said that the schools are in a better state than ever before. Persons interested in the schools assert that the Carranza Government has taken away from the municipalities 30 per cent. of the taxes belonging to them for public service. It is also charged that the Government has appropriated to its own use property worth $200,000,000, the income of which went to the schools under bequests made by wealthy individuals.

Secretary Luis Cabrera places the responsibility for the non-payment of salaries on the municipalities, while the municipal officials assert that the blame rests on the Federal Government. El Universal and Excelsior, under date of Aug. 29, say that the President of nine of the thirteen municipalities included in the district made public a signed statement, declaring that they had exhausted every means to get money to pay the teachers, but without success, and that the schools must remain closed until the Government arranged to pay expenses.

DAVISON INDORSES DRIVE.

Points Need of the Jewish Relief Committee's Work.

The American Jewish Relief Committee made public yesterday the following letter received by Henry H. Rosenfelt, Director of the organization, from Henry P. Davison:

"Any one familiar with conditions throughout Central and Eastern Europe and also familiar with the organization and relief work done by the Joint Distribution Committee, should welcome an opportunity to assist you in your undertaking in the interests of suffering humanity.

"In my travels and observations as Chairman of the War Council of the American Red Cross I had occasion to study the needs of the peoples within those countries and also an opportunity to observe the excellent work done by the Joint Distribution Committee, the importance of which seems to me greater today, even, than during the distressing period of the war.

"I hope you will meet with success, which I am sure will be the case if it is possible for you to clearly present the situation to the public."

TO EXHIBIT WAR VEHICLES.

Motor Transport Corps Will Display Types Used by Army.

An automobile show will be held in the Ninth Regiment Armory on Fourteenth Street, near Sixth Avenue, by the Motor Transport Corps of New York, on Oct. 16, 17, and 18. The exhibition will be free to the public. It is proposed to show in the exhibition every type of motor vehicle that was used in the war by the United States Army, and many vehicles of peculiar construction will be displayed there.

Committees among the officers of the Motor Transport Corps, under the command of Lieut. Col. H. J. Lawes, who is motor transport officer of New York and vicinity, are planning a number of special features. The exhibition will be the largest of its kind ever held in this country by the Government.

ASK FUNDS FOR HOSPITAL.

Organizers of Beth Moses Institution to Canvass for $150,000.

With the completion, on Jan. 1, of the Beth Moses Hospital at Stuyvesant Avenue and Hart Street, the Borough of Brooklyn will have another large hospital, Alexander L. Schluger is the executive manager. It will have 150 beds, but the announcement says, there is sufficient space left to erect another wing for an additional 150 beds.

The Beth Moses Hospital will conform strictly to the Jewish dietary laws, but will be a non-sectarian institution, and in the admission of patients no distinction will be made as to race or creed.

Up to the present $300,000 has been expended, and another $150,000 will be needed before the hospital is opened, says the announcement. In order to attain this sum a drive for 10,000 members will begin today and will continue one month. The President of the hospital is Isaac Lovin and the Treasurer is Israel Rokeach.

COMMITTEE TO GET FUND FOR MERCIER

Plan to Raise Purse Is Launched at Dinner for the Belgian Cardinal.

DUVAL TO NAME MEMBERS

Bishop Burch Pays Tribute to Guest of Honor—Cardinal Leaves for Providence.

On the eve of his departure yesterday for Providence, R. I., Cardinal Mercier, Primate of Belgium, was the guest of George L. Duval at a private dinner in the Metropolitan Club, Fifth Avenue and Sixtieth Street. Acting on the suggestion of Alexander J. Hemphill, Mr. Duval was authorized by the forty prominent men who attended to appoint a committee to raise funds for the presentation of a purse to the Belgian Cardinal before his return to his native land.

Immediately upon his return from Princeton University, where he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws, the Cardinal went to the archiepiscopal residence, Madison Avenue and Fiftieth Street. After a brief rest he was driven to the Metropolitan Club, where he was seated next to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and close to Charles Sumner Burch, Episcopal Bishop of New York, and the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning.

"No words are needed now," declared Mr. Duval in introducing the Cardinal, "to assure our illustrious guest—or should I say fellow-citizen—of his welcome and the place he has in our hearts. Authoritative voices and eloquent tongues have already pronounced such words, and they have gained their force from the echo they have sounded in our inmost breasts, irrespective of creed."

In his speech of response the Cardinal recited the woes of Belgium in the war and then told of his experiences here, and of his deep appreciation of the welcomes that had been extended to him everywhere. He seemed especially touched by the reception of the students and Faculty at Princeton, particularly the action of President John Grier Hibben in requesting him to pronounce the apostolic blessing. He spoke in unmeasured terms of the work of Herbert Hoover, Ambassador Brand Whitlock, and of the Belgian ruler and his wife.

The speeches of Bishop Burch and Dr. Manning were stirring tributes to the Cardinal.

Cardinal Mercier will return to this city on Friday. It was said that on his return he may visit Yale University.

Prisoners, Police Say, Distributed Anarchistic Soviet Bulletin.

The police made two arrests yesterday in which persons connected with the District Attorney's and Attorney General's office who have been identified with the investigation and prosecution of seditious activities at once became deeply interested.

The two prisoners are Arthur Ketzes of 56 East 108th Street, who said he was a printer, and Ethel Bernstein of 52 East 115th Street, who told the police she was a dressmaker. Both were young—Ketzes 22, and the Bernstein women one year his junior. Both said Russia was their native land.

Police Samuel Weissman of the East 104th Street Station told Magistrate Cornelius Huth in the Harlem Court when he arraigned them that he had caught them distributing copies of the Anarchist Soviet Bulletin in tenements and apartment houses in the vicinity of Ninety-ninth Street and Madison Avenue. According to an imprint on the sheet, the Anarchist Soviet Bulletin is issued by the American Anarchist Federated Commune Soviet.

When Assistant District Attorney William O'Shaughnessey had listened to the story Policeman Weissman told the Magistrate, he insisted that the charge of criminal anarchy be substituted for that of disorderly conduct. The two prisoners were held on this charge in $2,500 bail each for examination next Tuesday.

THE STORY OF REVILLON FURS

The End of a Portage

These Revillon travelers have just finished a portage and are about to put their canoes into the water again below the rapids. When portaging is necessary every man must do his share from the high official of the company to the humblest post servant. An average man can take care of about 100 pounds of freight though some Indians can carry twice as much as this.

Please Do Not Blame Your Dealer

It is quite possible that your dealer has told you over the counter, "I am sorry, but I cannot supply you just now with a Waltham." To your inquiry as to the reason why he is unable to supply you with the watch you have set your heart upon owning, he has replied, "Waltham is behind on orders"—and he told you the simple truth.

We are behind. Paradoxical as it may seem, we are proud of it—and sorry at the same time. We are proud that Waltham watches and chronometers fulfilled their service on land and sea; and we are sorry that so many discriminating people must necessarily wait a little while for their possession of a Waltham Watch.

We could add many reasons for this unavoidable delay. It will suffice to say, that our country's safety and honor suddenly made demands upon our specialized equipment to supply our heroic army and navy—and there was also many an empty seat in the Waltham factory.

Then, again, the processes entailed in making a fine watch are many, varied and delicate. A skilled horologist is not made in a day, a month or a year. Arduous and exacting training and application are necessary. True, Waltham genius has created wondrous machinery that outwits the finest cunning of human hands—machinery that performs miracles of exquisite labor when measured by foreign methods of manufacture—but in all work of surpassing merit the human mind passes final judgment and the human guarantee of approval is preeminent.

We are indeed proud that the Waltham Watch is a demanded watch. Thousands of prospective watch buyers have read our series of advertisements telling how the Waltham Watch is made, and why it placed "America First in Watchmaking." We are proud of their confidence in the oldest and most renowned horological institution upon this continent. It is a tribute to American achievement, American leadership, American ideals. And we are very sorry to keep them waiting for the watch they desire.

If, then, you should be one of our waiting friends, do not blame your dealer. He would like above all things to give you your Waltham Watch immediately. Very likely his particular order will be filled next. He may not keep you waiting long. He knows that we are doing all that our tremendous resources warrant to help him help you, so have a little patience with us and kindly sympathy for him.

If he has the watch you want, pride and satisfaction are immediately yours. If he cannot supply you at once, you will eventually be repaid by a lifetime of timekeeping service when he does hand over into your possession your Waltham.

KINGSLAND WEALTH MOSTLY TO CHARITY

Will Gives an Estate of More Than $2,000,000 to Institutions and Near Relatives.

$50,000 TO GRACE CHURCH

One-Seventeenth of Residue Goes to Cathedral of St. John the Divine Building Fund.

Specific bequests of more than $500,000 and shares of the residuary estate amounting to many thousands of dollars more are set aside for charitable and religious organizations in the will of Mrs. Mary J. Kingsland, of 1626 Fifth Avenue, who died on Aug. 10 last at Lenox, Mass. Mrs. Kingsland was the widow of William H. Kingsland and disposes of an estate of more than $2,000,000, it is understood.

Gifts of $50,000 each are made to the following institutions: Grace Church, for the charitable work of the House of Anna; Sheltering Arms, to establish the Kingsland fund; New York Society for Ruptured and Crippled; Nursery and Child's Hospital; Trustees of the Diocesan Convention of New York for St. Mary's Church, Mt. Pleasant, Westchester County; General Theological Seminary to establish "Cornelius Kingsland Scholarships" in memory of her grandfather; Teachers College and the New York City Protestant Episcopal City Mission.

The following organizations received $20,000 each: New York House of Industry, Children's Aid Society, Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, Charity Organization Society, St. Luke's Hospital and Tarrytown Hospital. The New York Botanical Gardens receives $5,000.

Mrs. Kingsland divided the residuary estate into seventeen parts, one of which goes to the Cathedral of St. John the Divine to aid in the completion of the edifice. Another share goes to the Metropolitan Museum for the purchase of works of art, and a third share is divided among the New York Association for the Blind, the Society for the Relief of Destitute Blind, Church Mission for Deaf Mutes, House of the Holy Comforter, Home for Incurables, and the Parent School of the Sisters of Charity.

The other fourteen parts go to nephews and nieces. Her godson, V. Everit Macy, Jr., son of her nephew, V. Everit Macy, gets $150,000, and $20,000 goes to William Kingsland White, namesake of decedent's husband. The will gives $5,000 to Ethel Perkins, described as "having lived with me for over one year and been most faithful and kind." Mrs. Bredon and Denis Egan, in her employ many years, get $25,000 each. Each servant employed more than ten years gets $5,000, and those employed five years receive $1,000 each.

Other gifts are $25,000 to Julia Holbrook of 324 St. Nicholas Avenue, $5,000 to Louise Baldwin of 6 West Ninety-first Street, and $3,000 to Frances Morris of 6 East Eighty-third Street.

MITCHELL WILL INVALID.

Document Distributing Labor Leader's $250,000 Estate Not Witnessed

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Sept. 30.—According to papers filed with Surrogate George A. Slater of Westchester County, at White Plains, today, John Mitchell, the former head of the United Mine Workers of America, and Chairman of the State Industrial Commission, left a will disposing of an estate valued at $250,000, but as the will was not witnessed, his widow, Mrs. Catherine Mitchell, applied for letters of administration.

The will was written by Mr. Mitchell himself, on his personal stationery, on Aug. 20, 1919, which was just previous to his undergoing an operation. He died in a New York hospital on Sept. 9. It is claimed it is invalid because it bears only the signature of Mr. Mitchell.

The following is a copy of the document:

John Mitchell, 3 Claremont Avenue, Mount Vernon, N. Y., Aug. 20, 1919.

This, my last will and testament. If I should not recover from the operation which I am about to undergo, I give my estate to the following persons in the following amounts: To my wife, Catherine, 33 per cent.; to each of my children and to wives of the remainder provided, however, that from each share there shall be deducted an equal sum so as to make $10,000. This $10,000 shall be given to the following persons in the following amounts: Miss E. C. Moore, $5,000; Miss Margaret Dunne, $3,000; my brother, James Mitchell, $1,000; my brother, Daniel, $1,000.

JOHN MITCHELL.

Attached to the papers was a schedule showing that Mr. Mitchell left no real estate, but personal property as follows: Bonds, $71,900; notes, $2,266.58; stocks, $156,000, making a total of $230,166.58. He also had bank deposits aggregating $14,119.90.

The papers filed in behalf of Mrs. Mitchell included a statement of bonds and stocks owned by Mr. Mitchell. These included those of the Pennsylvania Company, the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railroad Company, and the New York Central Railroad Company.

FIGHT CHARITY BEQUEST.

Daughter Goes to Surrogate Over Will of Mrs. Spang.

A contest of the will of Mrs. Rosa H. Spang, who left to charity her estate of $1,000,000, inherited from her husband, a Pittsburgh steel manufacturer, was filed yesterday by her daughter, Mrs. Mabel Spang Crone of Copenhagen. Mrs. Crone was the only child and inherited the bulk of the steel man's estate. Edgar T. Brackett, representing her, appeared before Surrogate Fowler to oppose an application by Henry W. Taft for the appointment of George W. Wickersham, Colonel Michael Friedsam and Dr. Henry Dwight Chapin as administrators.

Mr. Brackett told the Surrogate that Mrs. Spang, who died at the Waldorf-Astoria, where she made her home for years, was committed for years through an incurable malady. He alleged that the persons named as executors permitted a will to be drawn by Mr. Wickersham when Mrs. Spang was on her deathbed and had her execute it forty-eight hours before her death, although they knew that a will was in existence giving her daughter everything.

The last will left to the daughter only $10,000 a year and bequeathed the residue for the organization of the Rosa Spang Foundation for the care and education of children. Mr. Brackett alleged that Mrs. Crone was excluded from her mother's sick room on the day the will was executed, although she had traveled 500 miles to see the dying woman.

Mr. Taft replied that he believed Mrs. Spang's reason for giving her daughter only the annuity of $10,000 was because Mrs. Crone received $20,000 from Mr. Spang's estate, and the trustee considered $30,000 a year sufficient for her daughter.

Left $10,000 to Bryn Mawr College

The will of Lucy P. Wilson, who died Aug. 21 and left $75,000, gives $10,000 to Bryn Mawr College and directs that the income be paid to a worthy and deserving undergraduate. The bulk of the estate goes to her husband, Frank P. Wilson.

Gives Estate to St. Mary's Home.

Mrs. Madge Yelverton, who died on Aug. 3 at Port Jervis without leaving next of kin, gives her estate of more than $5,000 to St. Mary's Home, 141 West Fourteenth Street.

The Autumn Showing of Imported Ribbons which forms one of the most impressive color-spots of the kaleidoscopic display on the First Floor, opens up a vista of ideas as to the many uses to which ribbons can be adapted.

As a matter of fashion fact, they enter very extensively into the decorative scheme of feminine dress this season—especially of feminine evening dress.

The novelty ribbons shown for Autumn are strikingly beautiful—in texture, design and color. Metal effects, in which gold and silver are opulently blended with silk of vivid hue, are a veritable object lesson in magnificence. The prevalence of splendid colors is, indeed, a remarkable feature of the opening season.

The Cornerstone of Standardization

PRACTICALLY the first need of the new office is a letter file. As office needs grow, new letter files are continually added. If chosen haphazardly, the products of a dozen manufacturers may be represented in as many varieties of design and trimming. Often a steel file in green enamel is flanked by a wood file in yellow oak.

The Van Dorn Letter File can serve as the corner-stone for complete standardization in steel of the same harmonious design and finish because Van Dorn steel meets every office need. Not only cap and letter size filing cabinets and transfer cabinets, but desk, chair and filing safe, even desk tray and waste basket, can be added, promptly as needed, from the Van Dorn line, in such colors — green, mahogany and oak as desired.

The far-seeing executive will appreciate the possibilities of standardization in Van Dorn steel by turning his "Furniture and Fixtures" account into a permanent asset, subject to little depreciation.

We will gladly send complete catalog.

How does your cat watch a rat hole?

The cat means business.

She makes that hole an "eye full" for hours at a time.

She gets right in front of it.

This instinct of the cat, to have the object of vision right before her, is the principle of the Line-a-Time System of Transcribing.

Instead of reading notes at one side, stenographers have the note book in the most natural position, directly back of the typewriter and directly before them.

They sit upright without fatigue.

Eyes are not strained, necks twisted or backs tired.

They transcribe thoughts, — unbroken thoughts and these thoughts are exposed by a mere touch on a lever at the side of the keyboard.

The health of the girl and the welfare of the business are both protected by the Line-a-Time.

FIRE—fire at its worst—meets its master

THE great oil fire, Long Island City, September 13th, marks a high point in the history of fighting man's most relentless enemy—fire.

Hereafter, Fire must reckon with a power greater than itself.

A product of American invention, FOAMITE FIREFOAM, gives notice to Fire, "You shall not pass."

This happened:

Burning oil stored in huge tanks made a conflagration acres in extent. Scattered through this roaring area twelve tanks protected by Fire's new master, FOAMITE FIREFOAM, with their contents, were saved. Even the roofs of the twelve tanks came through unharmed.

More.

On September 17th two other tanks burning unchecked for four days were put out in 20 minutes, after new solutions, properly mixed, had been applied.

Thus FOAMITE FIREFOAM masters blazing oil—the most difficult of known fires, the dread of Fire Departments, the "total losses" of the Fire Insurance Companies.

FOAMITE FIREFOAM apparatus is now available for every danger spot in every American industry, for every type of fire of every origin.

FOAMITE FIREFOAM apparatus, approved by the National Board of Fire Underwriters, includes protective systems, and portable apparatus for every risk.

This advertisement is printed so that some day you need not have to confess, "I did not know about Foamite Firefoam." You owe it to yourself to look into it at once. For your convenience and for quick action, we suggest you use the Coupon on this page.

RICH ARE HOMELESS THIS MOVING DAY

Apartment Shortage Leaves Many Persons of Means with No Place to Go.

IMPOSSIBLE TO GET VANS

Costly Autos and All Kinds of Carts Pressed Into Service—Hotels Are Crowded.

Many a well-to-do New Yorker, with plenty of money lining his pockets and more in the bank, knows not where he will lay his head tonight. He is going to move—if he can; and occupy another apartment—if the former tenant has vacated. The hotels offer no relief, for they are crowded to the limit. Deserting with one's father and mother is becoming more and more popular. One emergency measure seems to offer a way out. It was reported yesterday that a large number of the occupants of bungalows in Coney Island and the Rockaways intend to stay there over the Winter, gas radiators supplying the heat.

Yesterday signs of what may be expected today began to appear on the streets. Costly automobiles sped through the streets packed to the roof with mattresses, sheets, pillows, hat boxes, trunks, everything except the kitchen range. Open motor trucks lumbered along the avenues piled high with the finest household wares. It will be the rich who will suffer today, and not the poor, as many persons of means will feel something of the pangs of being dispossessed.

No amount of money would hire a regular moving man yesterday, for every one of them was booked to the limit. They had already been working from early morning to midnight, and they felt the outlook today was extremely gloomy. Especially hopeless is the outlook in the finer apartments, where the elevator must be used. If the effects of two or more families are awaiting the use of the elevator at the same time, somebody will have to wait, and he will pay $10 an hour per truck for the privilege of doing it. The moving men see no way out but to do the best they can.

Charles Morris, President of the Greater New York Van Owners' Association, told a similar story. "Delays and congestion," said Mr. Morris, "are growing worse and worse every minute. People are running around in a hysterical condition, looking for somebody to move them. Today I saw as many as ten ordinary shipping trucks carrying the finest furniture and handling it just as if it were brick."

Mr. Morris emphasized the fact that the members of the association would not charge more than $10 an hour per van, but the prices of those not in the organization were regulated yesterday and will be regulated today only by the owner and the pocketbook and fists need of the moving tenant. As much as $20 and $30 will be demanded and obtained.

Inquiries at the hotels, especially those of a resident character, in the upper part of the town, proved that they have not a room to spare, and all they can do to the insistent applicant is to turn him away with a smile, although no one can understand why a hotel should not always have accommodations for those who want them. At both the Astoria and the Bretton Hall it was said that not only were they working at capacity but that many of their guests intended to stay for months. The managers of the hotels have always made it a custom to make every effort to find accommodations elsewhere for those they had to turn away from their own doors, but they have given that up now, for they find it fruitless. Boarding houses are also housing all that they can stand. Even the erstwhile despised hall bedroom is a welcome haven for the homeless today.

There is every indication that a large number of bungalow dwellers at Coney Island are going to remain over the Winter at the resort, owing to the acute housing situation, and a larger number of new bungalows are being built in all sections of the island. Samuel W. Gumperts, head of the Brighton-by-the-Sea Company, which owns 310 bungalows on the Brighton Beach board walk, said yesterday that 50 per cent of the dwellers intend to remain, and that to make it more comfortable for them the company is installing gas radiators in each of the five rooms in the bungalows. Many more of these dwellings are being built, and according to the builders, they are being rented before they are half completed.

Out in the Borough of Queens the transfer of real estate has never been so great as at the present time. Many tenants have been forced to move when their homes have been sold over their heads. In many cases when the new owners come in they bring another family with them, thus dispossessing two families. On the other hand, many houses formerly occupied by only one family, are now accommodating two and often three families, the second and third boarding with the first. Many people, who have hitherto never owned property, are now buying.

The conditions in Brooklyn are much the same as in the other boroughs. Many of the tenants are moving out to the suburbs. The movement has been largely to Long Island, the Oranges in New Jersey, and Westchester County.

LANDLORD GOES TO JAIL.

Hyman Kaufman Accused of Insulting Woman at Mayor's Hearing.

The first landlord to be brought to the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering on a "forthwith subpoena" yesterday was arrested, charged with disorderly conduct while in the offices of the committee, and locked up in the Elizabeth Street Police Station, awaiting the action of the Municipal Court today. The landlord was Hyman Kaufman of 1,522 Crotona Parkway, the Bronx. The houses involved were 420, 422, and 426 West 204th Street and 416 West 215th Street. Mrs. Ralph C. Faulkner, one of the tenants of the last house, made the charge against Kaufman yesterday when the latter challenged her to prove that she was a respectable woman." Between the time when Kaufman made the offending remark and the arrival of a policeman, Captain Charles A. Goldsmith of the Mayor's committee had his hands full keeping the crowd of men from assaulting Kaufman.

The case first came up ten days ago, when a number of tenants charged Kaufman with profiteering. As their rents had been raised three times, for a total of $9, up to the time when Kaufman took charge, and Kaufman was asking for another advance of $2 from $27 to take effect on Oct. 1. At that time the committee ruled that, according to the figures which Kaufman gave, he could not be considered as profiteering. In the meantime Kaufman served dispossess notices on every one of the tenants who had appeared against him. He at first admitted that the reason for the desired evictions was that they had complained to the committee. He later said that it was because these had babies carriages and their children made too much noise.

Mrs. Faulkner then told of her experience with her landlord. She said she had given Kaufman one half month's rent as a deposit, but that Kaufman had not given her the promised lease. She said that Kaufman objected to having her boy play on the street and had expressed a lack of consideration for women of the race. She charged that he had used vile language to her on the street in the presence of other women. It was at this point that Kaufman's query, "Can you prove it?" followed the speaker's assertion as to her respectability, and led finally to his arrest.

Kaufman was arraigned before Lieutenant Corrigan in the Elizabeth Street Station.

The tenants were led yesterday by W. B. Dreand of 426 West 204th Street, who is known as the "fighting postman." He is Secretary of the Inwood Gardens Association.

Chief Assistant District Attorney Alfred J. Talley yesterday submitted to the Grand Jury evidence in connection with the alleged ousting of William F. Helde, candy manufacturer, from his apartment at 830 West End Avenue. Mr. Talley subpoenaed seven witnesses, but the Grand Jury was able to hear only Mr. Helde. Other witnesses will be presented to the Grand Jury today. Mr. Talley is seeking indictments charging forcible entry and detainer and a misdemeanor under the penal law. Edward Ittel of the firm of Frederick Ittel & Co., agents for the building, was at the District Attorney's office yesterday and asked to be permitted to appear before the Grand Jury.

Y. W. C. A. LODGING FOR GIRLS.

War Work Council Turns House Into Hotel for the Dispossessed.

"Vanquishing the Serpent" is the name given by the War Work Council of the Y. W. C. A. to a new work it has undertaken. It has rented a house at 27 East Fifty-third Street, which it has turned into a hotel where fifteen girls who may have lost their homes through high rents can be accommodated.

Miss Elise R. Butler, a sister of President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia, acting executive of the secretarial department, was the instigator of the work. Miss Butler had walked the hot streets of New York looking for an apartment for herself and in her travels discovered many girls who were obliged to change their abiding places. At the association headquarters girls have been coming in, carrying packages and suitcases, not sure where they would sleep at night.

WOMEN TO HONOR HAYS.

Republican National Chairman to be Guest at Dinner Dec. 3.

The Women's Executive Committee of the Republican State Committee, which recently completed organizing the Republican women of the State for the 1920 campaign, decided at a luncheon at the Republican Club yesterday to give a dinner, Dec. 3, in honor of Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago, Chairman of the Republican Women's National Committee.

The work of organizing the Republican women for the Presidential contest has been conducted in every State of the Union by committees of women, in cooperation with the Republican County Chairmen and their lieutenants, and under supervision of the Republican Women's National Committee. The women in this State carried off second honors in the speed with which they finished their task, Indiana claiming first place.

Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore of Westchester, Chairman of the committee, said that women's organizations had been established in every county of the State as a result of nine sectional conferences during the Summer, but that in some localities the organization had not been brought down to an election district basis. To effect this will be the next aim of the Executive Committee, which, according to Mrs. Livermore, will strive to obtain a membership of at least fifty in every election district.

Miss Mary Garrett Hay, head of the women voters in this city, addressed the Executive Committee, which includes Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, and Mrs. Walter Damrosch from this city.

ARMY BUREAU ENDS WORK.

Information Service at 461 Eighth Avenue Now Discontinued.

The Army Information Bureau at 461 Eighth Avenue, which since the signing of the armistice has served thousands of friends and relatives who sought information regarding returning troops, wound up its activities yesterday. Information about the few remaining troops in Europe will be given out at the information bureau, Port of Debarkation, Hoboken.

Statistics issued yesterday by Capt. R. L. Jenkins, in charge of the bureau, showed that from April to July, when the homeward movement of the soldiers was at its maximum, an average of 6,000 telephone calls for information were received and answered each day. The record was 9,000 calls received one day in July.

A daily average of twelve hundred callers visited the bureau, while 200 letters from all parts of the world were received and answered each twenty-four hours. A staff of thirty officers and field clerks was maintained both day and night at the bureau to answer questions.

ASKS K. OF C. TO CONTINUE.

Baker Wants Welfare Work Kept Up Until Army Takes It Over.

In a letter to James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, Secretary of War Baker yesterday urged that the order continue its welfare activities with the soldiers in France, Germany, and Siberia, as well as in the Canal Zone and the insular possessions. The letter was in answer to a protest against contemplated discontinuance of the work of civilian organizations, whose duties would be undertaken by a bureau within the army.

"I quite agree with you," said Secretary Baker in his letter, "that so much of the program as relates to leisure time at least should be conducted in such a way as to induce a feeling of ease and comfort among the men, approximating as nearly as possible the conditions of home life, atmosphere and spirit. We hope to accomplish this by the employment of carefully selected men and women, who, because of their training during the emergency, as representatives of the affiliated organizations, or because of their natural ability and interest, are qualified to carry on a welfare program as employes of the War Department."

Secretary Baker asked the Knights of Columbus to continue its work "until such time as the army is in a position to undertake the responsibility."

NAME ROOSEVELT CHAIRMEN

Five Chairmen to Conduct Memorial Membership Drive.

The appointment of five Chairmen to conduct the membership drive of the Roosevelt Memorial Association in the week beginning on Oct. 20 was announced yesterday at a luncheon at the Bankers Club. The Chairmen are Colonel Lloyd C. Griscom, Manhattan; Douglas Mathewson, the Bronx; Frederick E. Gunnison, Brooklyn; Robert W. Higbie, Queens, and George Crothwell, Queens. One of the speakers at the luncheon was Lieut. Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who declared that "immediate pledges of 100 per cent. Americanism would go far in stabilizing the present state of unrest."

The Women's Roosevelt Memorial Association announced yesterday that its plans for the restoration of the old Roosevelt home, the Birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt, at 28 East Twentieth Street, had been endorsed by the New York Federation of Labor. The organization also decided to aid efforts to establish a "school of Americanism" in the house adjoining the old Roosevelt home.

10,000 GATHER AT DOWLING FUNERAL

Archbishop Hayes Presides at Mass in St. Columba's Church for Late Borough President.

EULOGY BY MGR. LAVELLE

Resolutions of Respect Passed by the Board of Aldermen, with Tributes from Members.

Solemn mass of requiem for Frank L. Dowling, President of the Borough of Manhattan, who died of pneumonia on Saturday morning at his home, 334 West Twenty-second Street, was sung yesterday morning at St. Columba's Church, Twenty-fifth Street, between Eighth and Ninth Avenues. After the services were concluded the automobile cortege, which was preceded by a police and firemen's escort and the firemen's band, moved slowly through the neighboring streets, which were lined with thousands of persons, finally reaching Calvary Cemetery where the burial took place.

Besides representatives of every department in the city administration and a number of men who were in office during the term of former Mayor Mitchel, a throng estimated by the police at 10,000 crowded the streets through which the funeral party passed. Mr. Dowling was born and reared in that section of the city, and every person who could went to the street to pay his last respects.

The coffin was draped in the city flag and resting upon it was a tribute of red flowers, which was left in the hearse when the coffin was removed. The honorary pallbearers who followed the body into the church were Mayor John F. Hylan; Controller Charles L. Craig, Robert L. Moran, President of the Board of Aldermen; Michael F. Loughran, acting President of the Borough of Manhattan; Edward Riegelmann, President of the Borough of Brooklyn; Henry Bruckner, President of the Borough of the Bronx; Maurice E. Connolly, President of the Borough of Queens; Calvin D. Van Name, President of the Borough of Richmond; Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and Thomas F. Smith.

Following the pallbearers came all the Aldermen, members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, members of Horatio Seymour Democratic Club, of which Mr. Dowling had long been a member, and many city officials, not only of the present administration, but also of former ones.

Representing Governor Smith, who was detained by business in Oswego, was Mrs. Smith and their son and daughter, and Major Alfred J. McGlynn, his Military Secretary. Mrs. Dowling, her three children and Mr. Dowling's brother and sister occupied the first automobile. This was followed by countless other machines, in which were other relatives and friends of the late Borough President.

Some of those who attended the mass were Former Presidents of Manhattan George McAneny, Marcus M. Marks and John F. Ahearn, and Louis Pounds, former President of Brooklyn; Grover Whalen, Rodman Wanamaker, Police Commissioner Richard Enright, Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, Fire Chief Kenlen, Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, Chairman of the Republican County Committee Samuel Koenig, former Controller William A. Prendergast, Brooklyn Democratic Leader John H. McCooey, Postmaster Thomas Patten, United States Director of Census Arthur Dew, Judge A. J. Wahle, ex-Sheriff Thomas Foley, Congressman William Kenyon, Judge Joseph Morse, former Health Commissioner Thomas Darlington, Judge John F. McIntyre and Dr. A. Blum, chaplain of the Police Department.

Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes presided at the mass, and Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, delivered the eulogy. The rector of St. Columba, the Rev. Thomas A. Thurston, celebrated the mass, and he was assisted by the Rev. Emmet F. Rogers, deacon; and the Rev. Edward J. Higgins, sub-deacon. The choir consisted of Misses Agnes Robinson, Lillian Fellowes, R. Cummings, Mrs. Josephine Corcoran, Richard Parks, Delos Becker, Leon Kurasch, and Raymond Shaw. Mrs. M. Theresa Haley was at the organ.

The Board of Aldermen yesterday adopted resolutions of respect to the memory of Borough President Frank L. Dowling. The board then adjourned without transacting any other business, all other matters being put over until next Tuesday's meeting. The resolutions were offered by Alderman Kenneally and adopted by a rising vote.

Aldermen William T. Collins, Democrat; Arnon L. Squiers, Republican, and Algernon Lee, Socialist, seconded the resolutions, and each paid a tribute to the late President's memory.

To the Women

Who Decide the Home Tooth Paste

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Note How Teeth Discolor

Note how children's teeth decay—and perhaps your own—despite the daily brushing. Every woman knows that old methods of teeth cleaning are inadequate. Every dentist knows it.

The reason lies in that slimy film. You feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. And the tooth brush doesn't end it.

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus most tooth troubles are now traced to film.

Dental science, after years of searching, has found a way to combat film. Dental authorities have proved this beyond question. Now the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. And we offer to all a 10-Day Tube to show every home what it does.

You Must Remove the Film

Pepsodent embodies an efficient film combatant. It is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin must be activated. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. So this way long seemed barred. But science has discovered a harmless activating method. Five governments have already granted patents. Convincing tests show that this method solves the great film problem. And it brings a new era in teeth cleaning.

See for yourself what it does. Send the coupon for a 10-Day tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how the teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Those results show that film can be combated. The teeth can be protected and kept clean. Compare the results with the methods you now use, for your sake and your family's sake. This film question is a vital one. Cut out the coupon now.

BROOKLYN CAR LINES TO KEEP ON RUNNING

COURT TO UNRAVEL TANGLE

Right is Asserted to Establish Zone Fare System Under Old Franchises.

The tangle in the affairs of the Brooklyn City Railroad Company, caused by the return to it of the lines operated by the Brooklyn Heights Company, will be straightened out, it is expected, by an order which Federal Judge Mayer will be asked to sign tomorrow. The Brooklyn Heights Company is a subsidiary of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company.

Under the order, officials of the Brooklyn City Company said yesterday they would be ready to take over the property and operate it at once, leaving the settlement of details until later.

The Brooklyn City Company was organized in 1853 under franchises granted by various towns. The company officials assert that, if it pleases, it may charge a five-cent fare in each of the zones covered by the several franchises. If this is done, a passenger will have to pay 15 cents for the trip on the Flatbush Avenue line from Park Row to Bergen Beach, and from the Thirty-ninth Street Ferry to Fort Hamilton, instead of the present charge of 5 cents.

H. Hobart Porter, the new manager of the property, will take up his duties today, in the offices of the company, in Clinton Street, where the offices of the B. R. T. Company also are.

SUPPORTS RAILWAYS' MOTION.

Service Board Asks Reargument in Quimby Fare Case.

A brief in support of a motion made by the New York State Railways for a reargument in the Quimby case, in which the Court of Appeals decided that the Public Service Commissions had no power to permit the increase of fares, was filed with the court yesterday by the Public Service Commission of this district. Terence Farley, counsel for the Commission, prepared the brief and it was explained that a reargument might result in the presentation of new views and a new or modified decision by the court.

Mr. Farley contends that the Legislature has delegated to the Commission the entire legislative power to regulate fares on street surface railroads and that the Commission's power in this respect is paramount to franchise provisions establishing rates of fare. This in regard to the decision covering the contention between the City of Buffalo and a railroad company. Mr. Farley's brief says the Court of Appeals specifically held that the Legislature had given the Commissions power to regulate fares, whether the contracts were between a municipality and a railroad company or not.

BAUER FOR FREE TROLLEYS.

Tells Commission Business Centres Should Stand the Expense.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Street cars should be run by cities as elevators are operated by owners of skyscrapers, without charge to passengers, Ralph S. Bauer, President of the Associated Boards of Trade of Essex County, Mass., told the Federal Electric Railways Commission today. The business community should be glad to pay the expense, he said, because car riders are "messengers of prosperity."

"If it is good business for the public to take tolls off roads and bridges and spend millions to keep them up for the free use of the people," Mr. Bauer said, "I contend it is better business policy to take over the moving highways and carry people free. The service is almost entirely a social and not a transportation problem."

Breakfast Nets $250,000.

Approximately $250,000 in pledges was handed in yesterday at the breakfast rally of the United Building Fund Campaign of the Federated Jewish Institutions. The meeting brought together the various division heads, who made their reports covering the last few days.

CHICAGO PHYSICIAN SLAIN.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—The Chicago police have another murder to solve, the third in practically the same number of weeks. Dr. A. R. Karreman, a wealthy physician, was found murdered early today in his home, at 4,417 Stewart Avenue. The house had been set afire in an attempt to obliterate evidence of the crime.

The physician was found lying in the swinging settee in his little frame cottage. He had been severely beaten, four of his ribs being broken. A fire had been built on the floor under the swinging casket. An examination of the body showed that the murderer had choked the doctor to death with a rope besides beating and kicking him.

Five arrests have been made in the case. Two of the men in custody are former janitors employed by the doctor. Two other men are held in the Central Detective Bureau, and the police refuse to divulge any information regarding them. The other prisoner, believed to be a drug addict, is Julius Buxbaum, who volunteered the information that he had had some trouble with a South Side doctor who refused to sell him drugs.

Indict Drivers for Girls' Deaths.

John Winkler, Jr., of 1,439 Myrtle Avenue, Brooklyn, member of a well-known Brooklyn family, was indicted by the Queens County Grand Jury yesterday on a charge of violation of the highway law. The indictment grew out of an automobile which Winkler was driving and which resulted in the death of two young women, Bessie Atwell, 20 years old, of 117 Cooper Street, Brooklyn, and Mabel Minstadt, 19 years old, of 290 Himrod Street, Brooklyn.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Baseball's Golden Jubilee in Redland will be celebrated with the opening of the world's series tomorrow afternoon, when the Cincinnati Club, champions of the National League, will clash with the Chicago White Sox, the pennant winners in the American League. Fifty years back, a baseball club which wore red hose and chin whiskers went through a whole season without meeting defeat. From that time until this season the Queen City of the middle West has never had a winning ball club. It is little wonder that Cincinnati is all excited and fussed up. It is fifty long years since Redland fans have had a winner and it may be fifty more before they have another. That's why they are making the most of their victory this year.

The opening game tomorrow afternoon will begin at 2 o'clock. Down to the last detail everything is in readiness for baseball's blue ribbon event, except the weather. A threatening gray haze hung over the Ohio River tonight. There was a suggestion of rain in the humid atmosphere, and a shower or two moistened the pavements in the early evening.

The two clubs held their final practice at Redland Park today, and the National Commission will meet here tomorrow morning to assign Umpires Rigler and Quigley of the National staff and Umpires Evans and Nallin of the American League to their duties. As this is a National League city, the veteran Rigler will probably be the umpire who will occupy the place of honor behind the catcher.

The all important question before the opening of a series: "Who is going to pitch?" has been answered this year. It is the positive intention that Manager Gleason will pick Eddie Cicotte, who pitched the Giants to defeat in the opening game in 1917. Cicotte did the bulk of the work in winning the pennant for Chicago during the season just ended, and Gleason has a world of confidence in Eddie and his trick pitching.

Manager Moran announced tonight that he planned to start Dutch Reuther. Another old Redland warhorse, Hod Eller of Redland and Detroit fame, will be the more strenuous work while Ruether took it easy.

A Holiday in Redland.

Cincinnati will enjoy a holiday tomorrow. Some of the largest business concerns in the city will give their employes a day off to go to the ball game. Thousands of these workers will not be able to get tickets and will have to watch the details of the game on the scoreboards in front of the newspaper offices or in half a dozen halls and theatres. One of the leading hotels here has installed a scoreboard in its ballroom and will entertain a large crowd at $1 per.

The police have made elaborate preparations to handle the crowds, and full reserves available will be on duty tomorrow. Many of the streets have been closed to automobile traffic, for an overwhelming influx of machines is expected tomorrow. While Cincinnati fans have confidence in Pat Moran and his Reds and have plastered the whole city with flaunting banners inscribed to that effect, there is no spontaneous outburst of confidence like the Reds display. Cincinnati fans pray and pray, and even talk, for the best, but there is now apparent a strong undercurrent of feeling here that the White Sox are the better team. This is the honest opinion of the more conservative fans.

On form it appears that the White Sox, with their experience of 1917 and with the fighting club which pounded its way to the American League pennant through the last stretch, appear the logical winner has experienced in years, will win. Chicago won the pennant by a harder fight in a league which is accredited the strongest of the two major baseball organizations. The National League Cincinnati's strongest opposition came from the New York Giants, a club which started out unusually well and faltered when the going and hot weather were more than the Manhattan veterans could stand. During the second half of the season it must be admitted that the opposition put up by the Giants was woefully weak.

On the other hand, Cincinnati has shown a smooth working, compact team play, and an ability to concentrate its attack and win against the greatest odds. There is the Reds' never-say-die, this fighting, uphill gameness. In pitching Cincinnati appears to have the better of the argument.

Dope May Go Astray.

Baseball form in the world series games has not always been an accurate indication of ability to win. Some world's series favorites have been defeated. Look at the Athletics in 1914, as 8-to-5 favorite over the Braves. Look at the Giants when they were made favorites over the Athletics and the Boston Red Sox. The baseball dope all points to a White Sox victory, but baseball dope, just like the dope on racehorses, oftentimes goes badly astray.

There was a snappy, snappy tone to the work of the White Sox when they scrimmaged at Redland Park this morning. Gleason batted out grounders to the infield and the wonderful inner works performed true to reputation. Weaver, Risberg, Eddie Collins and Chuck Gandil ran through the drills with smoothness. Cicotte told his friends yesterday that the lameness which impaired his pitching arm a few weeks ago had entirely disappeared and he confided to them that he believed that he would stand the strain of the hard work which it will be called upon to perform in the series.

Cicotte warmed up today with Schalk. Lefty Williams and Little Dick Kerr also limbered up, and Big Bill James was tossing the ball around. It is whispered around that James is ready to stage the greatest of all comebacks in this series, if he gets a chance.

The Reds held their final workout this afternoon under the guidance of the famous pair of Chicago infielders, Joe Tinker and Johnny Evers. These former stars, who were the life of the peerless Cubs of long ago, were in uniform and injected a whole lot of life and pepper into the work of the Reds. Jack Pfeister, who also was a member of Frank Chance's famous world's champions, gave the players a lot of advice on the old master's baffling tactics. Grover Alexander pitched to the batsmen and gave them a lot of side-arm pitching patterned after Cicotte's best style. Charley Dee and Bressler also pitched to the batters, and if eye of battle, cattle grunts and saying the Reds are in fine shape for tomorrow's game.

Wrote Scouted for Reds.

After the practice Tinker and Evers talked to the players for some time, giving them valuable pointers. Evers has been Moran's first lieutenant in pitching duty for the series, and it has come to light that during the last two weeks of the season the Little Trojan did all the scouting for Moran. He followed and watched the White Sox in every move they made on the field, took voluminous notes, and has all their tricks and plays down cold.

"There is not a better baseball tactician in the game than Evers and it is believed that in his observations of the White Sox he has accomplished the most clever scouting yet ever attempted in baseball," Manager Moran said today. "During the past few days Evers has imparted all of the knowledge he collected to the members of Moran's team and they will make the best use of it in the series.

That Cincinnati is not overconfident of winning is shown in the betting. Local fans have grabbed up all the bets in sight, but have demanded odds. Bets have been made by Cincinnati fans at 10 to 8, 4 to 3, and there is one bet on record where Charles Stuart Sternbergh has been held enough to offer even money on the chances of Moran's team. A prominent business man here, who is an enthusiastic Red supporter, has bet $5,000 at even money on the Reds to win the series. He himself confesses that he was prompted more by his local pride than by his cool judgment, but he is so enthusiastic about Moran's team that he is willing to lose that amount.

Tickets for the opening game are as hard to get as gold nuggets tonight. This afternoon a pair of tickets brought $140, which comes pretty near being a high water mark for baseball postscards. There is no question about this one, as it was made in the cafe of a prominent hotel. Government agents have been scouting around for the last few days, trying to get a line on the men who are profiteering in tickets. It is a difficult job, and those who pay high prices are not willing to give the names of those from whom their tickets were purchased.

Pay Exorbitant Prices.

There are many men here in Cincinnati who are so disappointed because they were not among the fortunate ones in the drawing of the tickets by lot that they are only too willing to pay exorbitant prices and keep their mouths shut about it. There is a 50 per cent. tax on the price of tickets sold in excess of the regular price, and that is why those who are dealing in the tickets and those who are buying them are so silent about the transaction. The club officials have done everything in their power to keep the tickets out of the hands of the professional ticket sharks, but without success. They claim to have a record of every ticket, yet the sale of tickets at enormous prices continues in every hotel.

The scarcity of hotel rooms became acute tonight. At a late hour many of the arrivals had no place to sleep, and were only too glad to grab chances to get rooms in private houses. The hotels and private banquet room in one of the hotels which contains no less than fifteen cots, and these were quickly filled. It is a holyday for the Cincinnati hotels, and they are making the most of it.

Fortunately Cincinnati is exceptionally well off in restaurants, and the folks are being fed without any trouble. Extra trains from all parts of the country flocked into the city tonight, and the opening game of the series tomorrow will see the most representative gathering that has watched a series since the days of the old Polo Grounds. Not delegations here comes from Cleveland. They are all red hot American League fans, for there is not a man or boy in Cleveland, to say nothing of the women fans, who does not believe that the Tribe of Indians are a better ball club than the Reds. Cleveland is betting heavily on the White Sox, and is offering odds of 5 to 4.

All the trains tonight brought in large delegations of Chicago fans. In the Chicago crowd were 200 members of the Woodland Bards who brought their own brass band and refreshments. They were headed by Chief Bard, Jack Farrell, who led them in singing their newest chant, which goes something like this:

"Oh, Sox, bring home the rocks; no hostile knocks; no dreadful shocks shall scare you, Sox"—and the rocks of the final statements of Managers Moran and Gleason spill over with confidence. They are as follows:

"I am confident that the Reds will win. The team is the best in the National League, and I feel that it is better than any in the American."—Manager Moran of the Reds.

"I think the White Sox are the fastest bunch we have on any ball field. I am eager for the battles to begin, and all the boys are confident."—Manager Gleason of the White Sox.

Gossip From Redland.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Redland fans are expecting much of Kopf, Rath and Daubert, assuming there will be many ground hit balls. This trio is expected to execute many double plays, and choke off the Sox when they get on the bases. A record of Red Legs double plays since Aug. 1, discloses the fact that Kopf has started ten and figured in four others, while Rath has started three and figured in seventeen more, in addition to making one unassisted double play.

A most contented man is Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio. He was fortunate enough to obtain the entire bridal suite at the Sinton. He made his reservation weeks ago. Barney Oldfield, retired auto racing driver, has engaged the bridal suite at the Gibson for himself and party of friends.

Will the Reds' one dreaded hoodoo, the double steal, rise to confront the team this coming week? Can the Reds either make the play or stop it with the White Sox as their adversaries? These two questions are receiving a lot of attention on the eve of the opening battle. The White Sox are specialists in the play, while the National League Champions are notoriously weak in comparison, both in making and stopping the play. The play is expected to have its part in determining the result of the series.

World's series visitors flocked to the Latonia race track in droves today, giving the course a holiday appearance. The track management will continue its daily racing during the series games, although at first it was thought racing would be suspended because of the greater baseball attraction. The officials are now taking the view that many prospective baseball spectators will be turned away at the ball park, and will seek diversion at the beautiful Latonia course.

A distinct Gubernatorial flavor will be given the games here. Governor Cox of Ohio will be an honored guest, and Governor James P. Goodrich of Indiana and Governor J. C. Black of Kentucky will also be present.

Not all residents of Chicago are loyal to the White Sox, despite the fact that Cincinnati fans are as one in proclaiming their adherence to Moran's men. Sydney Gottlieb of Chicago, the man who gave Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, his first professional baseball job with St. Paul, is understood to have placed a wager that Eddie Cicotte is beaten in the first game the famous shine ball artist pitches. Gottlieb is an old ball player himself, having played in the outfield for the Navies, at one time a famous amateur team.

Mayor Galvin of Cincinnati has been swamped with requests for tickets to the game. The requests have come from dozens of Mayors of other cities, police officials, authors, artists, railroad Presidents, merchant princes, and even one from an Indian, a chap who calls himself John White Deerfoot of Oklahoma. The replies to all requests have been the same, "See Garry Herrmann."

Ticket speculators are being carefully watched by the Federal authorities, whose chief concern is to see that the scalpers make their war tax returns conform with their charges for tickets. The speculators seem to have overlooked the fact that they must take out licenses to pay their trade, and this gives further reason for the Federal agents to be on the alert.

A delegation of Cuban sport writers, led by Victor Munoz, came into town late Monday night, together with several other Cubans who are just fans. The writers accompanying Munoz were Ramon O. Osuna and Aurelio R. Vasques. The delegation is evincing unusual interest in Adolpho Luque's chances of starting his team to a victory in at least one of the games.

CINCINNATI DOUBTS WEATHER FORECAST

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Cincinnati is rather betwixt and between tonight. It doesn't know whether to lay out its Sunday-go-to-meeting clothes or roll the wrinkles out of its umbrellas and prepare for the worst. Just as it was a-tiptoe to start tomorrow with shoes polished, clothes pressed, hands blaring, the brazen, merciless Weather Bureau waded into the general gayety with the announcement that it might rain tomorrow. Then, as the scowls were getting deep and ominous and the ripples of laughter were few and almost as far between as drinks, the same brazen and merciless W. B. changed its mind and glibly declared that the forecast for tomorrow was for a "clear, bright day, with moderate temperature."

No wonder Cincinnati didn't know where it was at tonight. No wonder it doubted the sun would ever shine again. It rained a little tonight, just enough to dampen the streets and the ardor of the festive crowd, and just enough to make the fans skeptical about the belated but none the less welcome prediction concerning sunshine and all its ermemines for the opening of the world's series between the Reds and White Sox.

Ordinarily Cincinnati would welcome anything wet. But it doesn't like water. So, when the first announcement forecasting rain leaked forth from the Weather Bureau, it groaned an answering chorus of tens of thousands of tremolo voices.

When the Weather Bureau first sent out word of impending showers the populace got busy with questions. The conversation ran like this:

Fans—"What is that about the weather?"

Weather Bureau—"Probably showers."

Fans—"What's that?"

W. B., retreating behind desk—"Probably showers."

Fans—"Go on, you poor fish, what you tryin' to do? Kid somebody?"

W. B.—"I am simply announcing as is my duty that my most recent investigations of meteorological conditions in this vicinity indicate intermittent precipitations for tomorrow."

Fans—"Well, what the blank do you know about that?"

And so there is a rift tonight in the hate of Redland's joyous anticipation. Worry does not prevade the entire city, however. Not by any manner of means. For instance, there's that little group over there chipping in to buy a loving cup for the Weather Bureau, on the theory that his first prediction was right. They are the hotel proprietors, the whole-souled and well heeled bonifaces, to heap whose already bursting coffers weary hotel clerks quote "temporary rates that make them blush," and proceed to place four or five patrons in one single room. Then there's that larger gathering of taxi drivers. They are smashing their meters with hammers and studying little arithmetics for larger figures to demand of passengers.

These two varieties of business men are not fretting perceptibly over the possibility that the world's series crowd will be held in Cincinnati by storms. They are rallying around the official weather man and will strive, it is understood, to elect him Mayor at the next election.

What Other Prophets Say.

Anyway, there are opposition prophets who declare the official prognosticator is all wrong. They used to know him, they say, when he was licked stealing cherries, and they wouldn't trust him to keep a single doorstep clear of snow on a blazing August day. Some weather-wise oldest inhabitants clutch a world's series ticket in one hand, run the other through tangled whiskers and proclaim boldly that tomorrow will be clear and warm, an ideal day for baseball.

If tomorrow is such another day as its two predecessors the first encounter between the Reds and the White Sox will be staged under perfect conditions. It is a bit cloudy tonight, but Monday was the oldest summer day with a temperature which hovered around 80 degrees, and this morning was akin to it. With practically no breeze stirring it has been such weather as ball players like. Weather which keeps their joints supple, and their bones, both above and below the neck, working easily. It will be well for the contending athletes for various reasons. One is that the difference between success or failure in the series will be measured in tangible terms of ducats and sequins. Another is that in this great annual conflict the players work under a vast microscope and every slip, as well as every star feat, is magnified many diameters. Blunders which would hardly creep into a headline in an ordinary game in the season's course, will be blared all over the country during this conclusive clash and will rise in verbal shrouds from the bleachers to confront the guilty man in years to come.

Still another incentive for each man to do his best is that a highly critical crowd will be on hand. Among the onlookers will be most of the shrewdest men of baseball, the players whose names draw throngs to ball fields throughout the season. And they will be there not only as experts but as authors. That is what may well give stage fright to the simple, struggling player out there where the battle rages.

Those Player-Experts.

It was all right enough to meet these stars when they were only ball players in uniform on an opposing team. Then one might catch a big fly on them or nip them at second or even strike them out. But to have them turn up in simple but elegant quizzers clothes in the stands and again cast a every move and then maybe pillory one throughout the land in biting, polished terms for a little mistake that few ordinary fans would notice—that's nerve racking.

Among the thousands arriving in this city today were several of these literary lighthouses. Each walked in isolated grandeur and with brows wrinkled in apparent thought as behooves a critic author. Four paces to the rear came the writer's secretary, a hard working newspaper man with a fountain pen carried on a purple cushion. Finally trudged porters with typewriters and other luggage.

Arrived at the hotel and once snugly ensconced in his room, each baseball player-author relaxed. He cast aside the mantle of care and several other garments. He stretched himself upon the bed and fell into what, with an ordinary person, would have appeared deep slumber. With him, however, it must have been only a trance, in the course of which he dictated copiously and profoundly, for the newspaper man's typewriter soon ceased clattering, and the author awoke his perfectly good advance story for the Wednesday papers was completed.

DEMAND $100 FOR SEATS.

Scalpers Make Gross Profit of 600 Per Cent. on Series Tickets.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Ticket scalpers apparently have been foiled in their efforts to obtain any considerable number of admission slips to the Chicago games of the world's series, for a round of their offices today revealed virtually no grandstand seats on sale, and only a few box seats.

The demand for tickets so greatly exceeds the supply, however, that the scalpers are making a gross profit of more than 600 per cent. on what few pasteboards they have obtained. For a set of box tickets for the three games here Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, the ticket venders demand $100, the face value of the tickets being $16.50. Grandstand seats, the normal value of which is $9.90 for the three games, bring $60 with only a few on sale. The net profit is cut down, however, by the 50 per cent. tax which must be paid on the advance in prices.

The scalpers insist, however, that they will have plenty of tickets by Friday, and are willing to take unlimited orders. One fan today offered $100 for tickets for the three games, apparently without success.

GOTHAMITES DIG UP SOME BETS ON REDS

Rumor of Cicotte's Sore Arm Starts Real Money a-Flutter and Odds Shift.

The report to the effect that Eddie Cicotte has a sore arm, which was current in New York yesterday, had a material effect on the world series betting. Whereas the White Sox had ruled favorites at odds of 7 to 10 late last week, the quotations suddenly shifted, and last night the best price to be had was 5 to 6. The sudden appearance of thousands of dollars of Cincinnati money no doubt was occasioned by the rumored indisposition of Kid Gleason's star pitcher. In spite of the fact that loud denials permeated the byways and highways of this sportive city, those inclined to the cause of the Reds were content to trail with the original rumor, and there was more or less of what the poets describe as a mad rush to get down "hook, line, and sinker" on the National League champions.

In some instances even money wagers were recorded. In Wall Street one bet of a $1,000 was made on the Reds at even money. Last night at John Doyle's, a wealth of Cincinnati money suddenly floated forth and several thousand-dollar bets were registered. One of $5,000 to $7,000 on the Reds was covered. The influx of National League money was so heavy that the odds makers were of the opinion the clubs would go to the post this afternoon with 9 to 10 being quoted, almost even money.

Until yesterday it seemed that, so far as this city was concerned, the Reds would carry little except moral support into the series with the White Sox. The dearth of Red money was discouraging to those who were anxious to back their opinion that the White Sox would win. They were fearful lest their money would go begging, during the late afternoon and last night the situation underwent a sudden and decidedly surprising turn. Those who had persisted in keeping paddocks on their bank rolls suddenly unlimbered and opened a barrage of dollars that was little short of startling.

It was apparent that National League fans have been afraid only of the sterling right arm of Cicotte. They have been afraid to risk their spendable dollars on a gamble against the cunning of the Chicago star. They have figured that he would be too much of a barrier for the Reds to overcome, but with the report that he was nursing a sore arm, they began "kicking in" with an enthusiasm that made all hands sit up and take a quantity of notice.

The Jamaica race track yesterday afternoon a wager of $3,000 against $3,600 was made, with the Sox the favorites. It was one of a number of bets that were made there. Most of the others, however, were considerably smaller. Hundred-dollar bets were common, but in every instance the Sox were odds-on choices.

In the Bronx, close by Billy Gibson's headquarters, a wager of $9,000 to $10,000 was witnessed. The Sox were again the favorites. It was the largest bet that has been located in this centre of activity. In the same vicinity many other wagers were recorded, but they were small. Thousand-dollar bets were not uncommon, but for the most part, the betting was under the $500 mark.

At another place a wager of $4,000 to $5,000 was made that the White Sox would win the first game. But last night the best that was being offered was even money on the first game. There did not appear to be as much of a tendency to make bets on the outcome of individual games as there was to get down on the series. Wherever odds were being quoted the prevailing figures were 5 to 6 against the Sox. There was plenty of wagering at this quotation.

For a time last week it seemed as if this city were going to lay off the series entirely. It appeared that less money would change hands hereabouts than ever before in the history of world's series, but the eleventh-hour rush has put a sufficient amount at stake to reach the standard set in previous seasons. John Doyle, who manages to keep his finger on the public pulse with a pretty certain degree of accuracy, ventured a rough guess that more than $2,000,000 had been wagered and that this amount undoubtedly would be greatly increased during the morning hours today. In Wall Street the belief prevails that the backwardness of that usual betting centre would be shed this morning and that before the Reds and the White Sox meet in the opening game of the series this afternoon quite a little money would be risked.

If the report that Cicotte is suffering from a sore arm proves true there is not the slightest doubt that there will be a rush to hedge on the part of many who have backed the White Sox.

REDLAND FIELD IS READY FOR OPENER

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—The work of transforming Redland Field into perfect condition for the opening world's series game has been completed. The local park has been made spick and span for tomorrow's historic clash.

Redland Field of today presents a striking contrast with the Redland Field of former years, when there was little hope of National League pennants here, and only dim visions of world's series activities. The stands have been in charge of a corps of carpenters and laborers since it became definitely determined that Cincinnati would participate in the series, and today they are ready for the great hordes of fans who have gobbled up all the available tickets.

Temporary stands have been constructed to increase the seating capacity. The stands have been massaged, scraped, and painted until they shine, the seats have been carefully numbered, in order to avoid confusion as far as is possible, and the grounds on which the Redlegs and the White Sox will struggle for pelf and glory has been manicured by a corps of capable gardeners. This latter phase of the preparatory work has been under the careful direction of one Matty Schwab, who is to Redland Field what Hennery Fabian is to the Polo Grounds.

The main thing that bothers the local club now is the impossibility of making the seating accommodations meet the demand. There are not enough seats to satisfy the hungry fans. It is estimated that 30,000 specials will be crammed into Redland Field under ordinary circumstances. This is no ordinary occasion, however, and there is every indication that thousands will be disappointed tomorrow, despite the temporary additions to the stands. The construction work just completed will make it possible to cram 35,000 fans into the stands.

A staff of 160 new hands has been schooled under Frank Mills in the seating arrangements. These men have been employed as ushers for the Cincinnati games in order to expedite the work of seating the spectators. Signs will be installed at the entrances and in the various sections of the stands, and purchasers of tickets are implored to familiarize themselves with the numerical information on their tickets before they leave on the tip of their tongues the section, row, and seat numbers of their tickets.

The Hotel Sinton is the centre of baseball here. The White Sox have registered there. The officials in charge of the games have taken up their headquarters there and many of the visitors for the series are making the hotel their headquarters. Others are divided between the Metropole, Gibson, and Havlin Hotels, while still others, unfortunate in the matter of securing hotel accommodations, are scattered over various areas of the town in private residences where rooms have been taken advantage of the occasion to provide sleeping accommodations for a consideration.

The officials at the Sinton have estimated that their grocery and meat bills will soar to $5,000 a day, while the liquid flow continues. The bakeshop at this hotel now is turning out 7,000 rolls a day for the hungry transients. The officials are considering a plan to transform the lobby into a dining room, leaf-yard style, thereby providing the guests with a glimpse of the "notables" in the act of eating.

When the White Sox contingent registered, their names consumed a whole page on the hotel's register. There was just room enough for one more name on the page, and there was a short and lively scrimmage among the guests about the desk for the honor of filling this space on the historic parchment. The New York man was successful in the scramble, and appended his signature at the foot of the list of baseball celebrities. He was Louis A. Silversmith.

A number of the usual freak bets that go with world's series were made. There has been considerable wagering that Chick Gandil would outhit Jake Daubert and that Eddie Roush would outbat Joe Jackson in the series. These bets have all been at even money. A bet of $10 to $200 was made that if Eddie Cicotte started in the first game he would not finish the contest. Another bet of $1,000 to $500 was made that the series would not go more than seven games, and this in spite of the fact that one club must win five games to clinch the series this season.

PITCHING IS MOST IMPORTANT FACTOR

Real Test for Managers Rests in Naming Boxmen and Making Changes, Says Matty.

CICOTTE MAY NOT BE FIT

Chicago Star Had to Work Hard Up to Final Week of Season—Reds' Twisters Has Rest.

This is the fourth of a series of articles on the world's series written for THE NEW YORK TIMES by Christy Mathewson, who will also describe the games as they are played.

By CHRISTY MATHEWSON.

The stage is all set now, and it only remains for the umpires to ring up the curtain. We will soon have results instead of predictions, and I think we are about to see one of the best contest world's series that has been played in several years. I look for it to go to eight games at least, and, if it does extend that far, it will certainly be a fine battle.

Right from the start it is going to be a contest of wits between Managers Pat Moran and Kid Gleason—a battle where good judgment at the right moments may be the turning point to success. Much will depend on the manner in which the pitchers are handled, for when you get right down to it pitchers are the important factors in any baseball game, whether it is in the regular season or in a world's series.

It is one thing to have a plan of battle mapped out for a series and something else to be able to follow it. If a manager is able to go through a series according to the plans he made in advance he has to admit to a lot of luck. The most important job for a manager is to be able to make quick decisions and the right ones, too, as unexpected conditions confront him.

Naturally the personalities of the managers count heavily. Moran and Gleason are of entirely different temperaments and handle men in a vastly different manner. But when it comes to making quick changes they play the game very much alike. Moran is generally credited with being far more methodical than Gleason, but I have read where he has his plans all mapped out and will carry them through without variation. Of course, that is absurd. A good General always has a plan of battle, but the best General is the one who can and will change his plans to meet conditions.

As a matter of fact, Moran's plans amount to some instructions to his pitchers on the matter of working with certain batters on the White Sox team. He has made something of a study of the styles of Jackson, Collins, Felsch and other dangerous hitters of the Chicago club, and he will wisely try to send his hurlers against the weakness of the batter. But he is not going to go stubbornly through with a plan that may be upset in the first few innings of the first game.

Tanks Pitchers Promptly.

Gleason is a manager who will yank a pitcher out of the box in a hurry if he thinks the hurman is in any danger. He has no sympathy for the pitcher's feelings in the matter. Gleason is a sort of rugged leader of the old school who thinks only of winning.

The opening game will undoubtedly bring together Eller and Cicotte. These are the two pitching aces. If both go through the first game and twirl good ball for a close finish, the series will probably be long drawn out for these stars will come back to each other again. But the whole complexion of the series may be changed if either one of them is hit hard right at the start and knocked out of the box. Then will come the question of selecting the right relief man and the reserve forces among the pitchers will come into play.

Both Moran and Gleason have enough twirlers to carry them through the series in regular order without much shifting in the way. But, if it comes to using relief pitchers, I think the Reds have the advantage. Their staff is generally stronger on the whole. Luque and Fisher, for instance, may not start in a game, but either one, if brought into a contest in an emergency, is apt to pitch airtight ball. Fisher has proved to be a very good man for a few innings.

The White Sox have two really clever pitchers in Cicotte and Williams, but these two cannot work the entire series. The games will be played every day, giving interruptions through bad weather, and neither Cicotte nor Williams can hope to get into more than two games each and do their best. Kerr is a good pitcher, and has been up among the leaders, but when it comes to the tallest of the staff the Reds have the better men, on the average, in my opinion. The longer the series lasts the better it should be for the Reds. The White Sox must win quickly.

Another thing to remember is the effect a layoff is apt to have on pitchers, as far as the whole team is concerned. I think it is of advantage to get into the series as soon as possible after winning the pennant. The players are usually keyed up and they have no chance to lose the vim that carried them to the championship in their own leagues.

Need Long Rest or None.

With pitchers I happen to know that it is different. A pitcher should either have a real good rest before the world's series or he should not be taken out of his turn at all. It takes fully ten days for a pitcher to get a beneficial layoff, and if he cannot have that much time he had better take no chances on his arm with a short rest.

I recall in 1908, the strain finally told on my arm, though I had not lost my confidence in the least. I had had to work very hard right up to the finish that year and had little chance to rest before the bowerly came with the Cubs. I pitched a game on Saturday, and then had to come back for the final and deciding battle for the championship the following Thursday. I had worked my best without having had a chance to give my arm a long rest that I did not have as much as I usually did have in those days. I did not have enough to offset the breaks that went against me and lost the contest. Pitcher beats. We lost the victory and championship.

In this respect the Reds have had an advantage. They clinched their pennant two weeks before the beginning of the series, and Moran has had an opportunity to get his pitchers in the best possible shape. It is my opinion, without pretending to know the exact condition that the Cincinnati staff is now in better condition for a hard series than is the Chicago staff. No one knows how to train them to take the kinks out for the big games better than Moran.

Eddie Cicotte, upon whom so much will depend, had to pitch right up to the game which clinched the pennant for the White Sox in the final week of the series. He has had less than a week to work up for his first start if he works the opener, as I expect he will. And that may not prove to be enough. If he blows up for a single inning it may cost the White Sox the championship, for I think the first battle is going to have a very strong bearing on the outcome, especially if the Reds win it. For the Reds will be wild men if they get away flying.

So when it comes down to the real battle, it will be Moran matching wits against Gleason, not in the matter of directing plays on the field, for there is not much of that in any series—not nearly as much as you may think—but in detecting signs of wavering on the part of the pitchers and getting the new man in at the right moment.

Fans in Redland Permitted to Sleep on Benches in Park

CINCINNATI, Sept. 30.—Because of the crowded conditions of the hotels and boarding houses in this city it was officially announced this afternoon that those who are unable to find accommodations will be permitted to sleep on the benches in the park. They will have police protection, and arrangements have been made to increase the number of policemen to guard against thieves as much as possible. It seems as if every inch of available room in this city has been taken, and the thousands of fans who arrived late in the afternoon and early last evening found it impossible to find sleeping space. It was to afford these fans some place to rest that the order permitting sleeping on the park benches was issued.

NERVES MAY DECIDE IT.

Experience Is Likely to Play Part in the World Series.

In the final preliminary analysis of the world's series there is one vital factor which demands much consideration. It is the psychology of the game. In baseball there are two expressions, "He's a good money player," or "It's a good money club," which, when defined, means the mental attitude of a player or collection of players in a crisis. It means the player or club is able to meet a crucial test without suffering from stage fright or blowing up. A player may be one of the greatest natural players in the game, but his temperament may be such that it prevents him from meeting emergencies upon which must depend without having his playing seriously affected by nervousness. The player who in the pinches is able to perform at his best is a "good money player."

This psychological condition applies not only to baseball, but to all sports. There have been boxers in the past who have been known as "gymnasium champions." In training they have had all the earmarks, all the essentials, of champions, but once in the ring with the big test facing them they have suffered from nerves and have failed. And nerves must be weighed in the balance as the Chicago White Sox and Cincinnati Reds parade to the post for the first game of the world's series in Cincinnati this afternoon. Will either of the teams "blow up" And if such a thing happens, which club will it be? Those are the important questions which present themselves at the eleventh hour.

In this respect experience counts for a great deal. The player who has been through one or more world's series is bound to enter the fracas possessed of more confidence in his ability to cope with the situation than the youngster who is going under the strain for the first time.

Several years ago John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, wrote an article on the "Psychology of Baseball" in which he treated the subject at length. He explained the reason for keeping young and promising players, who were coming into the big leagues for the first time on the bench for many weeks before turning them loose on the diamond. He said that by confining them to the bench they became accustomed to their surroundings; that they were given time to steady their nerves. He has found the system of most benefit in developing young players.

So, it is found by this connection the White Sox appear to have a decided edge in the psychology of the game. Kid Gleason is leading a veteran combination against the Reds. Every regular player on his club has been in at least one world's series before. Against this Pat Moran has three players who have had previous experience in world's series work. Of course this does not necessarily mean that the Reds are destined to break under the strain or that any individual members of the club are going to undergo an attack of nerves at a crucial moment.

The Reds may prove to be another sensation such as the Boston Braves in 1914, when the Miracle Men, that famous machine of Connie Mack's and rode rough-shod over it. The Athletics of that year shouldered oodles of experience. The Braves did not. But the Braves were supported by a confidence born of a knowledge that they had come from nowhere in July to a National League championship in October. They had overcome all opposition and were imbued with the belief that they were unbeatable.

This may prove to be the case with the Reds. They started the season without any blare of trumpets heralding their approach. They were conceded a chance to finish in the first division, but none dreamed that they would be found battling for baseball's premier honors. The knowledge that they have accomplished great things may give them the confidence which, generally, is generated by experience alone. However, without taking in possibilities it must be admitted that the Sox carry the bulk of experience and confidence.

Ray Schalk, Chick Gandil, Eddie Collins, Swede Risberg, Buck Weaver, Joe Jackson, Happy Felsch, Byrd Lynn, John Collins, McMullin, Eddie Cicotte, Claude Williams, and Urban Faber all were members of the White Sox that defeated the Giants in the series of 1917. And that means something. It means they are packing all the confidence in the world.

Risberg was a substitute at that time. He viewed the series from the bench. McMullin was a regular infielder, holding down third base while Weaver covered short. But in two years Risberg has displaced McMullin and the latter is now the utility player.

On the other hand, Moran has Jim Rariden, who caught for the Giants against the White Sox; Jake Daubert, who played first base when the Brooklyn Dodgers were defeated by the Boston Red Sox in 1916, and Slim Sallee, who pitched for the

KING PLAUDIT RETURNS TO HIS BEST FORM AND DEFEATS OVER THERE ON JAMAICA TRACK

KING PLAUDIT IS JAMAICA WINNER

Has Little Trouble in Defeating the Favorite, Over There, by Three Lengths.

ALBERT A. RUNS GOOD RACE

The Brookside Stable's King Plaudit, which refused to break when he was sent to the post a well-played favorite at Aqueduct last week, found his racing legs at Jamaica yesterday and made very good use of them. He showed the speed that was expected of him and had little trouble in defeating W. R. Coe's Over There over a distance of a mile and seventy yards, with Pastoral Swain and Veteran bringing up the rear in the field of four.

George Odom, who trains King Plaudit, was disappointed but not discouraged when his racer failed to start at Aqueduct, and since that time he has been schooling the colt at the barrier so as to have no mishaps of that kind again. King Plaudit showed the advantage of the schooling, for he broke as nicely yesterday as could be asked of any horse, and, once under way, had so much speed that Over There could never get within striking distance of him.

As the result of the showing King Plaudit made, Odom now intends to ship him to Kentucky as a candidate for the $50,000 Championship Stakes at Latonia, in which race, if he starts, he will have to meet Mad Hatter, another of the recent sensations of the East.

King Plaudit was not so heavily supported yesterday as on the previous occasion, for those who had been burned were fearful of the fire and gave the son of Plaudit a rather wide berth. Over There, which had performed very creditably this season, when not put in against horses that clearly outclassed him, was made the favorite, although the Brookside Stable's entry was not without supporters and was favored toward post time until the price on him went down from 8 to 5 to 11 to 10.

King Plaudit Starts Well.

The start was made in front of the stand and before the horses had reached the first turn King Plaudit was in front. He had rushed up from a rail position, while Over There was sent across but failed to get over in time. King Plaudit was full of running and, when he reached the back stretch, he began to draw away from the Coe colt. Davies had him under a strong pull all through that first three-quarters while Fairbrother was letting Over There run smoothly and waiting for the turn into the stretch when he would make his drive at the leader.

King Plaudit held the rail and turning into the stretch increased his pace. Fairbrother went to the whip on Over There and the colt did his best, but he could not get up. King Plaudit was drawing away with every stride, until at the finish line he was three lengths in front and had proved to be by long odds the best horse in the race. He had a concession of three pounds in the weights from Over There, but the ease with which he won indicated that he could have done the trick at even weights just as well. Pastoral Swain and Veteran were scarcely conscious that they were in the same race after they had gone half a mile and were lost sight of. They came trailing in some eight or ten lengths back.

The feature on the card was the Gowanus Stakes at a mile and a sixteenth, and went to Richard Cook's Albert A., which defeated Whimsy, Tetley and others in a hard drive. There were six starters in this race, but the event did not bring out any of the real handicap performers. Whimsy, because of his recent victory, was made the favorite, but there was also some support for Recount, Woodtrap and Thistledon. The victory of Albert A. was a surprise, as he had been neglected in the speculating.

Whimsy Makes Fine Effort.

Whimsy ran a good race and made a fine effort. He went into the lead shortly after the start, but Albert A. came up and was permitted to set the pace. Albert A. set a faster pace than had been looked for, and Whimsy was kept doing his best to remain close up. These two raced with each other around the turn, and into the stretch, and there Whimsy was sent on by Davies in an effort to overtake the leader. But Whimsy found himself tiring in the final furlong, and, though he held on gamely Albert A. lasted to take the victory, Whimsy was eight lengths in front of Tetley for the place.

Neither Recount nor Woodtrap ran anywhere near to form. Recount, which has apparently lost his former speed, just managed to beat out Woodtrap. The latter ran a very poor race, and his effort is not what should be expected from him. He has defeated much better horses than he raced against yesterday, but he never attempted to get up to the leaders, and showed none of the speed at the finish which he usually develops.

W. V. Casey's Brighton Gold proved much the best in the first race of the day, a five and a half furlong dash for two-year-olds. Bright Gold easily defeated Weary, which was a favorite, the latter taking the place from Incinerator. Bright Gold rushed into the lead a few strides from the post and began to draw away until she had a length and a half to spare at the finish. Sister Helene raced after her all the way to the head of the stretch when she gave up the chase. Weary was off badly, and was last through the back stretch, but on the turn he began to come along and in the stretch had passed all but the leader, which he could not catch.

Al Goodin's Miss Kruter which has been knocking at the door for some months finally got her nose down in front in the second race, in which she defeated Koh-I-Noor and Mary Belle, the latter having won four victories in a row previous to this start. Mary Belle had been winning by very narrow margins and yesterday she did not get away well enough to make the decision close. Koh-I-Noor raced into the lead and, had she been handled, might have won, for she had gained an advantage of two lengths by the time she turned into the stretch and was running smoothly. Miss Kruter was second, but, turning into the stretch, Apel allowed Koh-I-Noor to go wide, while Miss Kruter was held close to the rail and the distance of the lead was lost. Koh-I-Noor tried hard in the last furlong, but Miss Kruter had enough left to win by a nose. Mary Belle was defeated for the place by eight lengths.

Toto Runs Good Race.

F. D. Weir's Toto ran another of his good races in the fifth event, which was a five and a half furlong sprint and down on the card as the Boulevard Handicap. Right Angle was the public choice, for Toto, since his last victory, had run a very bad race and finished last. Toto appears to run according to the company he finds himself with. Apparently he felt he had dropped into the right spot yesterday, for he went up with Right Angle soon after the break and the two raced away from the balance of the field. Right Angle had plenty of speed and set a fast pace, but could never shake off Toto. Finally, turning into the stretch, Toto began to move up and in the final furlong took the lead to win by a neck. Arnold took third from Young Jennison's Footspridd romped off with the race for two-year-olds at five furlongs. She raced to the front with J. W. May's Head Over Heels and the two fought it out in the stretch, Pontypridd drawing away to win by three lengths. Lanetta took third from Betty J. Edwina, which had been fancied by some, rallied to run with her usual speed and was far back among the also rans.

PERISCOPE IS DRIVEN TO WORLD'S RECORD

Dodge Wins Kentucky Trotters' Futurity with His Filly in Five-Heat Race.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 30.—The feature of the second day's racing at the meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association today was the Kentucky Futurity for three-year-olds, the result being in doubt until the fifth and final heat. In the first mile Periscope, the favorite, after leading into the stretch, broke and Brussiloff won easily. The second heat was a close finish between Periscope and Brussiloff, the latter winning by a narrow margin. Periscope won the next three heats with ease and the time of the race constitutes a world's record for five heats for trotters of that age.

The winner is trained, driven, and owned by J. L. Dodge of Lexington, who bought her from her breeder, John E. Madden, for $10,000 when the filly was beginning her two-year-old racing career.

Early Dreams made the three fastest heats of the season in his winning race, the 2:06 Class for Trotters, averaging 2:03¾.

Brown Establishes New Mark for Course in Harlem Road Race.

H. E. Brown, running from scratch yesterday afternoon in a five-mile road race of the Harbrook Heights Athletic Club over the course of the Harlem Heights Athletic Club, established a new record of 26:10 for the course and distance, clipping seven seconds off the former mark, which had stood for several weeks. Brown was the only entry to start from the back mark, and although he succeeded in picking up the allowance from all of the field except one, he could not overtake James Hoban, who broke the worsted in first place. Hoban started with the liberal handicap allowance of three minutes, and finished in the actual time of 29:48. Third honors went to Willie Prock, with one minute, who finished ahead of G. Menz, with two and one-half minutes. Jimmie Murray, a two-minute starter, was fifth. Fifteen starters got off with the gun.

KERNAN BACK AT SYRACUSE.

Apologizes to Coach Meehan for Recent Insubordination.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 30.—Jim Kernan, half back of the Syracuse eleven who was dismissed from the squad recently for talking back to Field Coach Meehan, apologized today to the coach and matters have been straightened out so that he will soon return to the squad. He was not out in togs, but he will be out in a few days.

The work today for the Varsity players was a scrimmage with the freshmen team which lasted twenty minutes and which resulted in the first string players getting three touchdowns against the yearlings.

On account of Saturday being Yom Kippur the Orange team will be somewhat crippled against the University of Vermont. Three regulars, Captain Alexander, left guard; Segal, right tackle, and Johnny Barsha, full back, will be absent from the field on that day. It is feared also that Ackie, quarter back, will be out of the game. He was kicked on the leg last Saturday and was hobbling around the field today.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The Army squad had a long, hard scrimmage today, and in the cool and snappy weather was able to go at full tilt all afternoon. Four teams and a host of substitutes were used, some of the men who played in Saturday's game being absent. The main task of the coaches seemed to be to find the best men to fill the vacant positions.

Warren, a fast and husky plebe, showed up well in the backfield and evidently will be called to fill Lystad's berth until the latter recovers from injuries received in yesterday's workout. A. Ordway, though small, is a fast recruit from the Cullum Hall squad, and attracted attention today by his long end runs. He seems destined to hold a position on the first team backfield. Byers, at end, and Himmelfer, at guard, did good work. It is possible that the latter may be included in the lineup of the big team before the end of the week.

Paul Beats Jones, 2 Up.

Charles Paul, 1916 club champion at the Gedney Farms Country Club, again won the title for 1919, winning from Jay S. Jones, champion of 1916-17, by 2 up in 36 holes. At the completion of the first round of eighteen holes Paul was 2 up, but by steady and exceptionally good play his lead was reduced in the afternoon to 3 down at the twelfth. Paul won the next three holes, bringing the match all even and finally winning by 2 up.

1. You see ours made up!
2. We fit you before you order instead of afterwards!
3. We charge nothing for our label!

How's that for summing up the difference between our clothes and those of the best custom tailors'?

As for fabrics—we hate to rub it in, but unless we "tell the world" ourselves, how is everybody going to know that we are the largest importers of fine Scottish and English woolens in all these forty-eight states?

Tailoring? As fine as the fabrics! Would never pay to use the best of woolens and then skimp the workmanship.

Hats, shoes and fixings of the sort we're glad to have worn with our clothing.

IRISH KISS FIRST IN CLOSE FINISH

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., Sept. 30.—Despite the fact that many of the best horses had been shipped to Laurel, enough racers remained here to provide a good day of sport for the final day of the Autumn meeting of the Harford Agricultural and Breeders' Association this afternoon. The meeting was one of the most successful that has been conducted here in several years.

Mrs. R. A. Smith scored a victory with her Irish Kiss in one of the closest finishes of the day. This was in the fifth race at a mile and seventy yards, which brought out some good performers. Irish Kiss defeated The Belgian 2d and Dairyman among others, but had to be hustled up at the finish to win by a nose.

The start for the race was bad and Betty Bluff, which had been highly regarded, was practically left at the post. She was caught in the webbing as the barrier was sprung, and before she could be sent on her way she was almost hopelessly out of the contest. She did manage to get up among the trailers and take fourth, and, with a good start, might have won. Irish Kiss was kept off the early pace, while The Belgian 2d and Dairyman raced to the front. Pierce brought Irish Kiss up, entering the stretch, and had to drive hard to catch the leaders. Irish Kiss and the Belgian 2d ran what appeared to be a dead heat for the last hundred yards, and Irish Kiss just managed to get his head over first. The Belgian had but a slightly better advantage over Dairyman.

Ral Parr scored again in the first race of the day, with The Wit, which defeated a field of seven two-year-old maidens over a six-furlong route. Sea Mine was second and Link Boy third. The Wit was off slowly and was far back of the others until the final furlong, when he was rushed up and caught the leaders to win by a length and a half. Sea Mine ran a fine race, but Link Boy tired after setting the pace for most of the distance.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Claiming; for maiden two-year-olds; six furlongs. The Wit, 110 pounds, (Coltiletti,) $8, $4.40, and $2.70, won; Sea Mine, 107, (Hamilton,) $16.10 and $6.10, second; Link Boy, 115, (Stalker,) $2.40, third. Time—1:13 1-5. BLACKIE DAW IS WINNER BY A NOSE

Gains Verdict by Narrow Margin Over American Ace in Latonia Handicap.

LATONIA, Ky., Sept. 30.—A. L. Kirby's Blackie Daw, which seems now to be running at his best form, won a close victory here today in the Industrial Handicap at six furlongs, in which he met three other high-class sprinters and was put to the last ounce of endurance to gain the verdict. He captured the purse by a nose from American Ace, while King Gorin was third and George Starr brought up the rear.

American Ace set a fast pace from the barrier, and at once time was two lengths in front of Blackie Daw. But Groth got the latter under full speed at the head of the stretch and sent him into the lead. American Ace was far from beaten at that stage of the running, and made a game effort to gain back first place. He came with such a rush on his renewed effort that Blackie Daw was fast being overtaken. The finish line was reached just in time for the victor.

Moss Goldblatt's Jorico gave a fine demonstration of speed in the opening event of the dayand captured a six furlong race from Mahoney. Lady Fair Play, and others. Jorico moved into the lead at once, and, setting a very fast pace, was four lengths to the good at one time. Mahoney began to move up at the head of the stretch and gained some through the last furlong, but Jorico ran gamely and got under the wire with a length to spare.

G. M. Hendrie's Estero graduated from the maiden class in the second race, which was for two-year-old fillies. Estero was kept off the pace until she reached the head of the stretch, where she moved up and passed Miss Patty to gain the verdict by a nose.

The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—For three year olds; purse, $1,600; six furlongs. Jorico, 109 pounds, (Robinson,) $8.70, $5, and $4.20, won; Mahoney, 108, (Lunsford,) $10.20 and $6.70, second; Lady Fair Play, 105, (Burns,) $6.60, third. Time—1:12 4-5. Bagpipe, Major Parke, Irvin Morse John, and Rose Dee also ran.

Nature's Silent Partner

The study of nature as it pertains to the human body is full of wonder, interest and mystery. Every single part has a most important duty to perform.

The cushion at the bottom of the foot is to ease and lighten the step and to protect the arch. But, since it was not nature's intention for us to wear shoes or walk on hard streets, the cushion does not perform its task completely.

The Dr. A. Reed Cushion Shoe with the built-in cushion takes up the work of protection where Nature's cushion leaves off.

SHAWNEE-ON-DELAWARE, Penn., Sept. 30.—Golfing leaders among American women began to topple this morning during the first round of match play for the twenty-third annual national championship, over the links of the Shawnee Country Club. No less a headliner than Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal of Ravisloe, always a player near the top and runner-up in the title series of 1914, as well as a former Western champion, took a tumble today at the end of the closest match of the round. Her conqueror was Mrs. G. Henry Stetson of Huntingdon Valley, Philadelphia, on the home green.

The New York group of contestants was diminished by several, but the most serious loss came with the elimination of Mrs. Thomas Hucknall of Forest Hills, a semi-finalist in the last national championship tournament in 1916 and a recent runner-up in the metropolitan series. Mrs. Hucknall lost by 2 and 1 to one of the newcomers this year, Miss Irene Peacock of the Thousand Islands.

Today's performances by these debutantes in national golfing were, all in all, successful. Miss Elizabeth Gordon of Metacomet, Providence, took the measure of another metropolitan player, Miss Molly S. Conroy of Fox Hills, by the wide margin of 7 and 6. Another dangerous "comer" was Miss Glena Collette, also playing from Metacomet. Her victim was the tried and experienced Mrs. Stuart Pritchard of Midlothian, a Westerner with golfing laurels a-plenty, who had won the championship of Chicago while playing as Miss Myra Helmer.

An unfortunate trick of the draw brought a couple of leading New Yorkers together, Miss Marion Hollins of Westbrook, and Miss Beatrice Lounsbery of Bedford, and the expected result followed. The Metropolitan champion won at the sixteenth hole, 4 and 2. Indeed, Miss Hollins had already been regarded as a strong challenger, and as a result of her round this morning several wagers were offered around Inn today at even money on her in her match tomorrow in the second round, against the present champion, Miss Alexa V. Stirling of Atlanta.

Favorites Are Winners.

Another day of ideal golfing weather favored the thirty-two qualifiers, and early starts were made from the first tee. The morning dew on the course, more in evidence here in the Water Gap region than on other courses, because of the rugged mountainous bowl which surrounds Shawnee, proved some little disadvantage to many of the women for the first few holes, but a warning sun appeared in time to taper off the matches with perfect conditions on the fairways.

Miss Stirling and her two chief rivals for the 1919 title, Mrs. W. A. Gavin of South Shore, and Miss Mildred Caverley of Philadelphia, had ample success today to send them all along into the second round. The champion from Atlanta was matched against Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, the Philadelphia veteran of women's competitions, and again her true driving and businesslike use of her irons stood her in good enough stead to pull out a victory by 3 and 1.

Mrs. Gavin's advance was somewhat more impressive over the shortcomings of the young Chicago girl, Miss Edith Cummings of Onwentsia, and she was adjudged winner on the fourteenth by 5 up and 4 to go. Miss Caverley, runner-up to Miss Stirling in 1916, ousted a New York metropolitan contestant, Miss E. A. Hardin of Baltusrol, by 4 and 2. Miss Caverley, accidentally, rounded the outward trip in a 40, by several strokes the best women's performance yet on the tricky, trapped, hazarded Shawnee links. She was 5 up at the turn for home, and although a large total of 7 strokes came her way on the tenth, and although she picked up and conceded both the twelfth and thirteenth holes to Miss Hardin, she still had enough left to win handily.

Mrs. Gavin played good golf today for the benefit of the enthusiastic gallery which trailed her, but it will behoove her to polish off some of the rough edges of her game before tackling stronger opponents. Her driving was at times dangerously ragged, with pulls, hooks and what-not, and on not a few of the greens she failed in ordinarily simple putts. The fair abundance of Shawnee brooks also loomed ominously before her on several holes. On the fourth, for instance, she took the flavor out of her 190-yard drive by putting her spoon shot into a brook, where she had to drop another ball. But her pitch to the green was redeeming and she finally holed out in a 6.

On the second hole Mrs. Gavin was plainly lucky. She eased up on her grip just enough to pull her drive through a grove of trees. Nine times out of ten a ball through trees strikes a branch or a trunk. Mrs. Gavin's, however, picked an astonishing path through the obstructions and gave her a pretty lie, but on the second she wasted her good fortune by hooking to the rough. All in all, the English woman should have suffered more penalties today.

Mrs. Gavin's Game Improves.

At the sixth her first two shots with the wood were excellently directed, but the second was about sixty yards short and again her pitch failed to carry her within sure putting distance. Here she took three putts when a longer approach would have necessitated only two. After the turn, however, Mrs. Gavin improved her game. Both the tenth and eleventh holes were cupped in par figures after her strokes had been exactly right. She putted away a stroke on the twelfth, although this hole ultimately became hers when Miss Cummings wasted still another, and they divided honors at the thirteenth and fourteenth.

Their cards:

Out—
Mrs. Gavin.....4 5 5 6 5 6 5 4 5—45
Miss Cummings....7 7 5 5 6 5 4 4 6—50

In—
Mrs. Gavin.....5 4 4 6 6
Miss Cummings....6 7 5 4 9

Miss Lounsbery held Miss Hollins all even for the first half of the match, after a succession of unusual golfing incidents. For instance, on the second hole both lost their balls on hooks to the long grass bordering on a brook. A careful search was rewarded finally with the discovery of one ball and Miss Hollins played it. The young Bedford miss gave up the search and conceded the hole, but as they were teeing up for the third Miss Lounsbery discovered they were both playing with the same make of ball. Both pills were new, and without distinctive markings, so it was decided to call the second a halved hole since a doubt existed over the ownership of the ball. Miss Hollins had played.

Coming to the thirteenth they were still on even terms and both sliced the drives. The metropolitan champion got on in two strokes, however, and became 1 up when Miss Lounsbery took a 6 to hole out. Miss Hollins meant business thenceforth and won the fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth, giving her the match, but only after periodical visits into sand traps and bushes. Miss Lounsbery's putting as the match ended was decidedly off at times, and frequently she took three taps to gain the cup.

Miss Stirling found an opponent who pressed her closely at every hole when she was matched today with Mrs. Fox. It was not until the sixteenth hole had been holed that the champion got even a dormie advantage, and on the seventeenth she came near a disaster, first on her drive and then on the green. Here Miss Stirling hooked her tee shot to the long, rough, thick grass near a bordering roadway, was short on her second stroke, and ran her approach to the far edge across the green. Her first putt again was too strong and came to a stop six feet beyond the pin. She missed this putt and took a 6 for the hole, just one stroke under Mrs. Fox, who had topped two shots trying to reach the green.

Plays Erratic Golf.

Miss Stirling had an erratic day, with flashes of her brilliant championship ability and now and then a return to the style of her playing as a beginner. On three holes, the fourth, fifth and eleventh, she took 5s whereas each is par 4, and then again she astonished an admiring retinue of followers by such remarkable work as on the fifteenth. Here is a 342-yard hole with a regulation of four necessary strokes. Yet the little girl from the South put a carry of 150 yards on her brassie second shot and went down to a birdie 3 by a difficult putt fifteen feet long.

Miss Stirling won today, however, by her ability to use every club in her caddy bag with equal proficiency. Mrs. Fox often outdrove her and often stayed from the tees with wide advantages when Miss Stirling pulled her drives off the course. Yet with the mid-iron and the mashie the champion invariably regained her losses and reached the greens on equal footing with her opponent.

Miss Rosenthal lost to Mrs. Stetson, ordinarily an inferior player, by one of those aggravating turns of golf which come just as unexpectedly as they are unwelcome. They reached the turn nip and tuck and with such tight and close playing that an exciting finish was forecast. The Philadelphia woman had won the second and fourth, but Miss Rosenthal had pared down this lead to all even at the turn by taking the seventh and eighth.

Coming to the home green only two of the holes on the inward trip had been won, all the others going halved. At the eighteenth Miss Rosenthal was slightly short of the green on her drive, and, playing the honor, she chipped to within three feet of the cup. Mrs. Stetson ran up dead to the pin and laid the Chicagoan a perfect stymie. Miss Rosenthal took careful appraisal of the curve of the sloping green and endeavored to play around the Stetson ball, but instead she hit it and advanced it a little closer. It was easy for Mrs. Stetson to hole out for a 3 and Miss Rosenthal took a 4.

Down in the lower half of the bracket Mrs. E. L. Byfield of Ravisloe, a sister of Miss Rosenthal, had better fortune. She won from Mrs. A. K. Bilstein of Bala, Philadelphia, by 1 up, and will meet Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson of Onwentsia, the former Miss Kate Harley of Boston, who won the national championship in 1903 and in 1914, in the second round tomorrow.

Two prominent New Yorkers of considerable golfing experience came through today over newcomers. Mrs. Quentin F. Fletcher of South Shore needed only twelve holes to win from Mrs. Stephen P. Nash of Baltusrol by 5 and 6. Mrs. F. E. DuBois of Raritan Valley, better known to the golfing world when she was Mrs. L. E. Stockton, eliminated Miss Sarah Fownes, a sister of William C. Fownes, former national amateur title holder, by 2 up.

Upper Half.

FIRST ROUND — Miss Elizabeth Gordon, Metacomet, defeated Miss M. A. Conroy, Fox Hills, 7 and 6; Mrs. G. Henry Stetson, Huntington Valley, defeated Miss Elaine Rosenthal, Ravisloe, 1 up; Miss Alexa W. Stirling, Atlanta, defeated Mrs. Caleb F. Fox, Huntingdon Valley, 3 and 1; Miss Marion Hollins, Westbrook, defeated Miss Beatrice Lounsbery, Bedford, 4 and 2; Mrs. C. H. Vanderbeck, Philadelphia Cricket Club, defeated Mrs. Thurston Wright, Allegheny, 5 and 4; Mrs. F. C. Leith, Jr., Indian Hill, defeated Miss Fanny C. Osgood, Brookline, 1 up; Mrs. J. Raymond Price, Oakmont, defeated Mrs. Ralph Hammer, Flushing, 5 and 4; Mrs. Ronald H. Barlow, Merion Cricket Club, defeated Mrs. H. C. Smith, North Hills, 5 and 4.

Lower Half.

FIRST ROUND—Miss Mildred Caverly, Philadelphia Cricket Club, defeated Miss E. A. Hardin, Baltusrol, 4 and 2; Mrs. W. A. Gavin, South Shore, defeated Miss Edith Cummings, Onwentsia, 5 and 4; Mrs E. L. Byfield, Ravisloe, defeated Mrs. A. K. Bilstein, Bala, 1 up; Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson, Onwentsia, defeated Miss Rosamond Sherwood, St. George's, 4 and 2; Miss Irene Peacock, Thousand Islands, defeated Mrs. Thomas Hucknall, Forest Hill, 2 and 1; Mrs. Quentin Feltner, South Shore, defeated Mrs. Stephen P. Nash, Baltusrol, 5 and 6; Miss Glena Collette, Metacomet, defeated Mrs. Stuart Pritchard, Midlothian, 7 and 6; Mrs. F. E. Du Bois, Raritan Valley, defeated Miss Sarah Fownes, Oakmont, 2 up.

PICK LESLEY CUP PLAYERS.

Marston Only Prominent Golfer Missing from New York Team.

Still withholding the name of the twelfth member of the New York team of golfers who will be entered against the Pennsylvanians and Bay Staters Friday and Saturday in the Lesley Cup matches at Southampton, the Metropolitan Golf Association last night made known eleven of the district leaders who will play. Unfortunately Max R. Marston, New Jersey champion, is still missing. This metropolitan player has recently been reported to have decided to pool interests with his Philadelphia friends for the matches and play on the Quaker domes, and as yet no definite decision is forthcoming to settle the misgivings among New Yorkers.

Findlay S. Douglas will again captain the metropolitan team, and will have for a backing all the stars of the district, excepting Marston. John G. Anderson of Siwanoy is undoubtedly the choice for No. 1 man, with Oswald Kirkby, metropolitan champion, close behind him. Others are as follows: A. L. Walker, Jr., the Columbia University student, present intercollegiate champion and runner-up to Kirkby in the metropolitan title play; A. F. Kammer, Baltusrol; Grant Peacock, Princeton; W. M. Reekie, Lakewood, winner early in the season; Gardiner W. White, Nassau champion; John N. Stearns, Jr., Nassau; Jess W. Sweetser, Ardsley; Frank Dyer and Archie Mollwaine.

The New Yorkers will meet strong opposition on the opening day at the National links. The draw bucks them against the strong Pennsylvania group headed by S. Davidson Herron, national amateur champion, on Friday and the winner of this match will meet the Massachusetts team on Saturday. The downeasters were suddenly weakened when it was announced this week that Francis Ouimet would not be able to compete.

GENNERT WILL NOT PLAY.

Former Princeton Centre Opposed to Professional Football.

Alfred G. Gennert, former Princeton centre, who was mentioned a few days ago as one of the probable players of the professional football team which is being organized to play at the Polo Grounds during the coming season, takes decided exception to the use of his name by those behind the project. "I have never been approached on this subject by any representative of the National Exhibition Company or any other professional club," declared Mr. Gennert yesterday, "and the use of my name in this connection is wholly unauthorized and inexcusable. I would not play football for money on Sunday, or on any other afternoon. I believe that any attempt to professionalize football is a direct attack on the best traditions of the game and should be resented by all loyal devotees."

YALE SECONDS HOLD THE 'VARSITY WELL

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 30.—Jim Braden's field goal from the thirty-five-yard line proved the only score registered by the Yale 'Varsity in today's ten-minute scrimmage practice. The regulars were unable to gain ground consistently and reached the thirty-five-yard line only once. On this occasion they were held until the fourth down, when Braden's score removed the obstacle.

The practice today was divided between a long signal and a short scrimmage drill. Captain Tim Callahan returned to the snap back position after a week's absence, caused by a muscle bruise, but retired when scrimmaging commenced. Galvin, who has rapidly progressed from the fourth eleven within a week, was used at centre. Although John Acosta has been displaying form comparable with that of Captain Callahan, Galvin's improved showing has delighted the coaches.

The five-minute scrimmage period which closed today's practice was designed to develop the defensive game of the Varsity. The scrubs were given the ball on the 'Varsity ten-yard line and Quarter Back Gaillard of the reserve team plowed into centre for six yards. Here the 'Varsity rush line held and, on fourth down, Swingley, scrub half back, tried a forward pass which went incomplete. The scrubs were given another trial at the 'Varsity ten-yard line, and Swingley attempted a field goal, which hit the crossbar. Paul Crane, scrub half back, was slightly injured during one of the scrimmages, but resumed playing. The 'Varsity lineup for the scrimmaging was as follows:

Bucknam to Captain Colby.

WATERVILLE, Me., Sept. 30.—Everett W. Bucknam of Harrington, a senior, was elected Captain of the Colby College football team today. Last year he was Captain of the naval reserves team at Hingham, Mass. He also has been elected Captain of the baseball nine, of which he is a pitcher.

PRINCETON SHOWS POWERFUL ATTACK

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 30.—Today's practice for the Orange and Black players was a continuation of the strenuous program planned by Bill Roper and his assistants for this week. A twenty-minute scrimmage, the longest of the season, between Teams A and B topped off the day's work.

All attention is now being devoted to instilling enough teamwork into the first string men so that eleven men will be able to take the field against Trinity on Saturday with some idea of concerted action. The personnel of the first two teams, although there have been one or two replacements for one cause or another, has been practically the same during the last three workouts.

Roper is going to follow this plan throughout the week, to accustom the men to each others play and to develop a few simple plays which they will be familiar with Saturday. Today he delivered a blackboard lecture on offensive plays before practice was resumed. There is no secrecy about this year's workouts. The talk was held in front of the baseball score board and the grandstand was filled with spectators.

After some work in falling on the ball for the linesmen and signal practice for all the tentative elevens, scrimmage began. The first team's line, with the veterans McGraw and Purnell at the centre, presented splendid interference for the backfield quartet. Behind this line, was again all quarter, Bohlen, under his generalship Team A, twice crossed Team B's goal line. Mehlenbacher and Hatsey, at guards, and Scudder at centre brought up the middle, trio of forwards, and Harvey and McMorrow were at the wings. Carpenter replaced Halsey late in the game. Lourie, who has been transformed from a quarter into a half back, was a fast ball, with Garrity as his running mate, and Ogle was at full back.

The second team was given the ball and allowed to keep it in an attempt to score on Team A. Murray had one drop kick from the forty-yard line blocked, and sent another from the same mark wide of the posts. Hoobler quarterbacked Team B, with Deutsman at full back. Thomas and McPhee alternated at left half back, with Murray playing opposite. Thomas and Baker at the ends, Holmes and Dickinson tackles, Taylor and Speers guards, and Cooper at centre completed this eleven.

No Hot Iron

Dud does his work as well as any tailor—better, in fact; for he uses no hot iron—no danger of scorching or burning; no heat or steam to take the life out of the cloth and make it shiny.

At Home or Traveling

He presses, stretches and creases 'em in one operation—all automatically. Works anywhere and any time that happens handy—closet—or in your suit case when you travel—keeping bagginess and wrinkles out of your trousers and keeping a knife-edge crease in, is about the easiest and simplest thing in the world. Simply put them in the Dud Duzzit Press when you take them off and they'll be creased like new when you want to put them on again—whether that's in 15 minutes, next morning, or next week.

AUTOCRACY IN STRIKES.

The record in the Bethlehem strike shows that it was called before the time set for the conference with the company asked by the leaders of the strike. Moreover, the demand was not for a conference between the company and its workers, for the establishment of collective bargaining, but for the substitution of collective bargaining with the Federation for collective bargaining already in existence, and approved by the War Labor Board and the metal section of the Federation. Furthermore, the Bethlehem workers were not allowed to vote upon the strike. In the strike against the Steel Corporation there was the pretense of a referendum. The vote was never stated in numbers, but only in percentage of those voting. Only 100,000 were entitled to vote, according to Mr. FITZPATRICK'S testimony, and if the vote was unanimous that would base the strike against the Steel Trust upon the mandate of a minority of a minority of the workers, and an even more insignificant fraction of those affected by the strike vote.

That is a mockery of the democratization of industry. In estimating the strength of the strike sentiment, it is also necessary to distinguish between those actively striking and those made idle by the strike. The strikers' statements call all idle workers strikers, the truth being that nobody knows exactly how few or many the strikers are. If it were possible to deduct from the number of idle the number who would prefer to work if assured that they could work in peace, and without the stigma attaching to working during a strike, the number of those remaining as free-will supporters of FOSTER and FITZPATRICK would be much smaller.

It is on this record that the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy challenges Mr. GARY'S statement that the success of the steel strike would involve a danger to our scheme of government. Says the Alliance: "Collective bargaining is possible only where labor is organized." Nothing could be truer. But the steel strike reveals a campaign against collective bargaining when labor is organized outside of the Federation. In the view of Mr. FOSTER, Mr. FITZPATRICK, and even, it would seem, of Mr. GOMPERS, labor cannot bargain collectively except through the Federation. All other forms of collective bargaining are bogus, regardless of the satisfaction of the parties to the bargain. The Alliance thinks that the moral issue of the strike is the recognition of the Federation. That is something different from the recognition of collective bargaining or the organization of labor. Both of those helps toward industrial peace and justice were in force in the steel trade. If the strike had succeeded, that would have meant, in Mr. GARY'S words, an industrial upheaval, and perhaps a social upheaval.

With the failure of the strike that evil is averted, and there is substituted a danger to the sort of unionism represented by Mr. FOSTER and by Mr. GOMPERS so long as they are workers together. If Mr. GOMPERS fails to dissociate himself from the radicals who are responsible for the steel strike, he is in danger of suffering from their attempt to take control of the Federation as a step toward control of the Government and the establishment of the rule of the minority in American politics. There is reason and truth in Secretary REDFIELD'S statement that "organized labor is losing the sympathy of the general public, and unless its attitude and actions undergo alterations very soon the union movement will suffer a serious reverse."

MR. JOHNSON'S TELEGRAMS.

Senator JOHNSON is getting a good many telegrams these days. He got one from a few bankers and business men, among whom we notice with peculiar interest the name of MEYER LISSNER, who has been an ardent Johnson man since Johnsonism began. These telegrams applauded his course and told him to keep on with it.

On the same day he got a telegram from between twenty and thirty prominent Californians, headed by CHARLES C. MOORE, Director of the State Council of Defense and President of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, urging him to withdraw his opposition to the Treaty. While the only recognizable names on the other list were those of MEYER LISSNER, Judge MORROW, Mr. CROCKER, and a few Johnson officeholders, we find on the list headed by Mr. MOORE such names as those of Chief Justice ANGELLOTTI of California, BENJAMIN IDE WHEELER, President of California University; RAY LYMAN WILBUR, President of Leland Stanford Junior University; JAMES MILLS and JAMES K. MOFFAT, Regents of the State University.

This telegram read in part as follows:

> We have heard the President's message on the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations. We have also considered carefully all the objections offered to ratification. The issue is the most important presented to the American people since the civil war. It is far above all personality or partisanship. We are convinced that the Treaty should be ratified without amendment or reservations.
> Peace, and peace on a permanent basis of open arbitration, inquiry, and discussion before resort to war, is vital to the welfare of the American people and the welfare of the world. America must not be false to herself and refuse such a peace, except for the most weighty reasons. The objections to ratification are not weighty and should not hold us back.
> We appeal to you to withdraw your opposition. We are confident that in this we speak for an overwhelming majority of the people of California, and that your present position does not represent them truly.
> We leave Senator JOHNSON to a prayerful consideration of his telegrams. He may have received others. If he has not, then we think he will get more pleasure out of the telegram signed by his personal friends, political supporters, and virtual appointees to office than he will out of the one sent to him by these prominent, sober-minded, and influential citizens of California.

THE TRACTION TROUBLE GROWING.

The scandal and loss through the New York traction troubles have been so great that it would be hard to make them worse. Considerable progress is made in that direction by the separation of the Brooklyn lines into their original independence, with the loss of transfers between them. Progress on the same road in Manhattan is slower, with the prospect of outstripping Brooklyn in the lessening of service so far as its costs cannot be collected in fares. Without minimizing the security scandals and losses, it may be said that they fell, for the most part, on those dealing in the securities. Those neither buying nor selling them could neither lose nor gain, and there were great increases of transit accommodations through the betterment of the service given for a nickel. Both effects are now undergoing reversal. There may be happier days for the owners of the car lines. And the service can never be so bad as it was in either the horse-car or the cable era, but the rides for a nickel will be shorter, and more nickels must be paid for the same combinations of rides. There is some doubt how this will work out in increasing the takings of the companies, for there will be more walking than there has been, but the costs of operation will be lessened. When the cars were running only partly filled it was said that transfers ought to be given because it cost nothing to carry more people in the empty seats. The transfers filled the seats so successfully that the public demanded more cars, and then it appeared that it did cost something to give transfers. It cost so much, in fact, that the companies were bankrupted, and the public is losing them. The companies lost their profits by the lengthening of the average ride, and they must look for their financial salvation in the shortening of the service for a nickel.

So long as the average ride left a profit in a nickel all went well. But when the average ride cost more than was received, then the combination fell apart, regardless of security market scandals or financial manipulations. The shortening of rides and multiplication of fares touch the men, women, and children in the streets, and all of them. Now they are having reason for calling for relief from their deliverers and the punishers of the street-car combine. In no direction is this more marked than in that interborough travel which is now an inseparable part of our city life. The city has a hundred millions in bridges, and a faction has come to power which has thought that the utility of the bridges was measured by the return in dollars, rather than by the travel over the borough lines, making one borough as accessible as another. There have been harassing suits brought for the increase of rental of cars over the bridges, and now there is danger both that the rental will stop and that the rides over the bridge for nothing may be lost with the transfers.

If that should be realized, there would arise a wail which might cause pity in the stoutest hearted of the traction haters and arouse sympathy with the fare payers, so cruelly used by their friends. And who cannot see them wince as interborough travel is diverted from the bridges into the tunnel lines, whose bankruptcy has been so earnestly desired and so diligently promoted? Tunnel rides from Yonkers to Coney Island are not profitable, but there is much money in under-river rides for a nickel and without transfers. The subways and the elevated lines cannot be wrecked in the surface-line manner, and probably cannot be wrecked at all. It would be a gloomy day for the enemies of the dual subway system when the perception came to them that they had destroyed the transfer system only to enrich the system which was even more an object of their stoutest attack. The situation is liquid as it stands, but it will soon solidify beyond the bargain stage. It would still be possible to save a portion of the transfers, and not to divert an excess of travel from the bridges to the tunnels. But that depends on perception that no more harm worth mention can be done to the car lines, and that the wreck of the subway system is not possible without greater loss to the city.

THE SERIES.

Great things will be done today in Cincinnati. Between the veteran and crafty White Sox, upholders of the dignity of Chicago and the honor of the American League, and the rushing Reds, who came out of the West like young Lochinvar and carried off the National League championship to Cincinnati, hitherto the slough of perennial despond, will begin a mighty struggle for what is known as the world's championship. Ten thousand or so "experts" have analyzed the prospects in such detail that the average man is left about where he started, which is to say that his opinion on the outcome of the nine-game campaign depends largely on his prejudices. The White Sox ought to win, but the Reds are likely to win—here is the sum of a million words of expert testimony.

The men of Cincinnati go into the battle with a tremendous preponderance of popular support the country over, at least so say the wise. They are a dark-horse team, which accomplished the wholly unexpected; they brought a pennant to Cincinnati after the Cincinnati fan had wandered fifty years in the wilderness; they are Romance. The White Sox have only the humdrum claims of merit. No wonder the crowd so strongly favors the Reds and their Mr. MORAN. But this support seems to be purely moral; enthusiasm encourages a team, but the Reds might feel more hopeful if those who pray for their success were willing to put something a little more negotiable than good wishes behind their preference. The listening patrols of the great army of sporting writers now arriving on the battlefield have reported that little money is in sight; perhaps, they suggest, the canny Cincinnatians are holding it for bigger odds; at any rate, Chicago "rooters" are placed in the painful position of losing a great deal of glory and dignity if the series goes against them, and making very little money if they win. The glory of a world's championship is an old story in Chicago; but if Cincinnati wins, the celebration of the citizens of Ohio will be memorable.

Which is to say that the series is an important event in the Ohio Valley. In common language it is "the" series, the culmination of the baseball year; to Cincinnati it is the climactic moment of all eternity; truly "the serious," as the unlettered call it. Half the population of Ohio, Indiana, and Kentucky has jammed the Queen City; hotels are crowded as in convention week, Pullman cars used as emergency sleeping quarters fill the railroad yards; it is the duty of all good Cincinnatians to take boarders. Most of these visitors will get no nearer the ball park than the roofs of the factories on the other side of Western Avenue, where space is already selling at a front-foot rate comparable to that around Broadway and Wall Street. But whether they actually see the games or not, they will have been there.

Cincinnati is more excited over this series than when JOHN MORGAN'S cavalry raided through Indiana and threatened the suburbs. In those days the Dahlgren guns of ironclads in the river protected the town; their place is taken now by the menacing bats of Mr. ROUSH, Mr. GROH, and Mr. MAGEE. No doubt is felt in Cincinnati as to the identity of that one far-off divine event toward which the whole creation moved; that event is here; it begins at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Only one shadow hangs over the city; this supreme occasion arrived when the nation had gone dry. There is no dampness in Cincinnati now save that of the river, and Mill Creek, and the local Rhine; the amber brews that once inundated the Queen City are evaporated into history, as definitely and irrevocably past as the vineyards which NICHOLAS LONGWORTH and HENRY WADSWORTH LONGFELLOW hoped would make of the Ohio a new Moselle; they are gone, leaving only kindly memories and a permanent expansion in the typical Cincinnati waistband. How in these days of dryness can victory fitly be acclaimed in Cincinnati? How could the sting of unthinkable defeat be washed away?

"BE GAME; DON'T WORRY!"

Time was when moving day stood high up among our national jokes and the narrow straits of family life were celebrated in laughing rhyme. With rents soaring, apartments not to be had at any possible price, and moving vans, when obtainable, costing as much as two months' rent, the dismay of the family doomed to move is scarcely a laughing matter. Home life has not for years flourished exuberantly in this metropolis; but it has suffered no blow so severe as this moving day of 1919 is dealing it.

When BARRIE'S Grizel was disappointed in finding that the kirk in Thrums did not compare very favorably with the cathedral of her cockney days in London, Sentimental Tommy took her by the hand and said, "Never mind; you still have me!" To the unsympathetic bystander the wee Scotch lad would have seemed a sorry substitute for Saint Paul's of the soaring dome; but Grizel understood, and was comforted. It isn't the splendor of the kirk that really matters, nor yet the comfort of the old familiar home. It is the strange, human something that comes from the clasp of even the tiniest and most impotent hand.

Over in Brooklyn, where striking tenants have seen their household gods and goods literally dumped out upon the sidewalk, sympathetic neighbors hung placards on them: "Better Luck Is Coming!" and "Be Game; Don't Worry!" Of all the ills which the disordered world has brought this one of homelessness is the hardest to bear; but the world is still itself, and, for those who suffer together, happiness, though not yet in sight, is certainly round the corner.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Effects of War on the Fighters.

Few questions have received more widely divergent answers than that as to the effect produced by war on the minds and characters of those participating in it. On the one side stand the pacifists, who, using the only logic they know, declare that, as war is a brutal thing, it must, and therefore does, brutalize all who take part in it. The other extreme is represented by Lieutenant CONINGSBY DAWSON, who, possibly because he knows that war has had no brutalising effect on himself, comes close to insisting that it elevates, refines, and broadens everybody subjected to its influence.

Somewhere between the two, an article in the October Scribner's reveals, stands HENRI DE MAN, and his occupancy of this position may be explained by the fact that he was before the war, and still is, a pacifist, but a pacifist of such unusual sort that he joined the Belgian Army as soon as his country was invaded and never had any doubt as to either the rightness or the need of fighting this particular war till Germany was beaten.

His conclusion, from careful study of the soldiers in his own command and the soldiers of other armies that came under his observation, is that what war does to a man depends on what kind of a man he was when he went into it, and the formula he chooses to express his belief is that "the brutalising effect of combatant life is likely to be in inverse ratio to the previous mental development of the individual considered."

In that statement M. DE MAN does not go so far as explicitly to admit that war over elevates the soldier, but by implication he admits that with a sufficient mental development the brutalising effects of war are escaped, and that is quite enough to cause his exclusion from the pacifist fold, even if his voluntary acceptance of active service on the firing line had not already done so.

High Motives Give Protection.

According to this thoughtful and highly intelligent Belgian student of war psychology, we Americans have little or no need to worry about our own returning soldiers. Unlike the great majority of the men in the European armies, most of our men were literate, and, still more unlike the peasants and laborers who formed the European armies, the Americans, privates as well as officers, knew fairly well why they were in arms and for what they were fighting. They tried to kill the enemy not merely in the natural man's savage retaliation on the man who is trying to kill him, after first attacking and endangering his country, but in part at least for higher reasons—to make the world safe for democracy, to defend the weak against the strong, to prevent the triumph of injustice over justice. Fighting from less personal and selfish motives, the American soldier, M. DE MAN thinks, has returned home in a mood appreciably different from that of the typical European soldier, and is far less likely to use in gaining selfish and personal ends what he has learned as to the ease with which life can be taken in the accomplishment of a purpose.

These assertions are not entirely convincing, but they are at least plausible, and though a good many of the Americans who have returned from the war hear with some impatience the expression concerning it and themselves of what they call sentimental notions, it is not on that account at all certain that they lack the sentiments attributed to them by such observers as M. DE MAN.

A Rainfall Dispersed the Rioters.

A phenomenon often observed before in like circumstance, but none the less puzzling, marked the outbreak of savage lawlessness in Omaha. While the passions of the people were at their height, and when further and worse trouble was apprehended from the rioters, there came a heavy fall of rain. Immediately the streets were cleared and the combatants on both sides retreated to their homes and stayed there. Why they were willing to risk their lives amid flying bullets and swinging clubs, but were not willing to get their clothes wet, is a question that deserves investigation.

Possibly this curious recoiling from what might be described as a petty inconvenience or slight discomfort is to be explained by the fact that mobs always have been composed, for the most part, of people not very well supplied with changes of clothing—with people, that is, for whom a wetting was a real and serious danger to health. Experience with that danger, extending over many generations, may have created an instinctive and more or less subconscious appreciation of its reality and its seriousness, and that, after a fashion, would account not only for the observed behavior of many mobs when subjected to heavy rain, but also for the almost universal refusal of laboring men to work out of doors when doing so means getting and staying wet.

Such refusals are expensive, as they usually involve loss of wages and consequent deprivations, but they are the commonest of industrial incidents, and no boss, except in emergencies almost desperate, thinks of complaining about them. He, too, admits that men cannot be expected to work in the rain.

Prophecy Flying Too High.

Lieutenant Commander READ piloted the first airplane across the Atlantic and therefore speaks with some authority on the subject of aerial navigation, but it is one thing to be a qualified aviator and quite another to be a qualified prophet. So it is not unpardonably impertinent to put the dubitative characterization of "important if true" on his prediction, made in an address made before Harvard students, that it will "soon be possible" to drive an airplane around the world at a height of 60,000 feet, at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour.

"Possible" is a dangerous word—dangerous to attack with a universal negative, that is—but those who trust it are also in some peril, and, in all seriousness, nothing now known supports the Lieutenant Commander's forecast. Indeed, all of the available knowledge is against it, for an airplane, moving at the height of 60,000 feet, would be whirling its propellers in a vacuum, or something so near a vacuum as to be practically indistinguishable from it, and it would be contending, too, with an appallingly close approach to the cold of interstellar space. No aviator would be likely to live long or go far in those conditions.

To circle the earth in twenty-five hours with an airplane, some day, is not impossible, but when done it will be at a much lower level than 60,000 feet.

The Death of Mar Shimoon.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

My attention has been called to a letter in your issue of Aug. 10, bearing the signature of Mirza Ali-Kuli Khan. Your correspondent refers to the murder of Mar Shimoon, the Syrian Patriarch, and says that "the facts filed with the Foreign Offices of the allied Governments prove that Mar Shimoon was killed while making an attack upon the town of Salmas." The facts filed with the allied Governments prove nothing of the kind.

I have before me a copy of a telegram, dated March 26, 1918, sent by the British Consul at Tabriz to a prominent personage in London, which reads as follows: "Mar Shimoon, the Syrian Patriarch, from Turkey, was proceeding to Salmas when he was met by Simku, who invited him into his house and there shot him dead."

I have resided for some considerable time in Persia, and my experience is that the Persian Government, when called upon to account for some crime perpetrated in their country, have often forwarded "facts" to European Governments which were a pure romance. I have no doubt whatever that the "filed facts" as to the death of Mar Shimoon are one of these romances. Before the Shah is allowed to set foot in either America or Great Britain he ought to be brought to book for encouraging Simku, one of his subjects, to murder Mar Shimoon.

Mirza Ali-Kuli Khan has gone out of his way to attack Mr. Paul Shimmon, and says that "the Department of State at Washington has on file formal notices from the Assyrian associations in America disclaiming Paul Shimmon as their spokesman." I do not know the secrets of the Washington State Department, but I wish to say that I had before me in 1915 the original document appointing Mr. Paul Shimmon the representative of the Assyrian people in America. This document was in Syriac and bore the seal of the late Mar Shimoon and I translated it into English

WHAT HAIG SAID.

No Depreciation of Our Army in His Newcastle Speech.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A report once started dies hard. References crop up every once in a while to one which was started early in July, gaining credence and currency, that Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig had said in a speech at Newcastle, "Do not forget it was the British Empire that won the war."

The attention of Mr. Evelyn Wrench, Chairman of the General Committee of the British Branch of the English Speaking Union, was called to this report and he wrote to Sir Douglas Haig. This is what the British Field Marshal replied: "The omission to mention the American troops was certainly not due to any lack of appreciation on my part of their work. On the occasion in question at Newcastle I was speaking personally as one Britisher to another on the subject of our own part in the war. I pointed out to my hearers the difficulties of the situation and how greatly the people at home in England and Great Britain had helped the army. I had no occasion to mention the Americans because my references were to the middle part of the war, particularly the year 1917, when Americans had not yet taken part in the fighting. This year 1917, i. e., before the Americans had arrived, was one of the most critical periods of the war. At this time the German submarine campaign was at its height and the Newcastle and Northeast shipbuilding trades, to members of which I was speaking, did extraordinarily good work. At this time America was our great hope, and in the following year this hope was justified by the splendid work done by the United States Army, both in co-operation with the British and French armies and also when operating by themselves. On the battlefields of Europe there grew up a splendid feeling of comradeship and mutual respect between us. I am sure you hope as much as I do that this feeling will be continued in peace, and in particular by the interchange of our young men between British and American universities. To this movement, which had scarcely begun before the war, the war has given a great impulse."

It is evident that what the British Field Marshal said, and what he was understood by his auditors to say, was that it was not the British Army but the British Empire, not only the men on the firing lines, but the men and women back of the lines, that contributed Britain's share in the winning of the war—whatever the form of words he used.

May I add a brief extract from an address made at a private dinner to General Pershing held at the Carlton Hotel on the 16th day of July, 1919? Sir Douglas Haig paid warm tribute to the American soldiers in France, mentioning several divisions and corps by name. He referred to the warm personal friendship and admiration which he felt for General Pershing, adding: "In the great German attack of the Spring of 1918 our troops were inspired to withstand the German onslaught by the knowledge that they only had to hold on until the American army, then hurrying across the ocean, arrived to their aid. That is the measure of our debt to you. It is a great debt and one that we are glad to acknowledge. In the previous year, 1917, when General Pershing came to France with a small staff at the psychological moment, the effect of his arrival on all ranks of the allied armies was magical. In 1918 that first affair of yours at Cantigny was hailed by us with as keen a satisfaction as if it had been one of our own actions. Our pride at your action at Château-Thierry was very great." He referred to the action in the Argonne with high appreciation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I draw the attention of G. E. King and other Englishmen to the fact that the Irish people is a people distinct and different from the English people, with a different set of interests and hereditary traditions, and that as a result the first duty of an Irishman is to think first of Ireland and of no other country. Ireland is not a part of England, but a totally different country and people. The Irish people owned Ireland before the first Englishman was known to civilization. There are families in Ireland whose pedigrees go back to a point further than the whole English nation. Not only is Ireland much older than England, but it was Ireland and Irishmen that rescued the English from savagery and heathenism and brought them first within the circle of Christianity and civilization. What would men like C. E. King think, if the tribes of Central Africa, whom English missionaries are Christianizing today, should attempt to make of England a Central Africa colony, and after doing to the English what the English have done to Ireland expect the English to fight their battles for them—the first always in attack and last in retreat?

"Sinn Fein" doesn't mean "funk" or "Ourselves Alone" or "All for Ourselves." The words mean "We Ourselves," as any Gaelic grammar will tell the inquirer. They stand for that self-reliance whose motto is Ireland First, which, I hope, will make Ireland a great nation again, with the old Gaelic tongue, the sister to Latin and Greek, spoken through every Irish valley, with the young men and women of Ireland modeling themselves on the heroes of their own blood like Brian, Columbanus, Cuchulian, Shane O'Neill, Fionn, the son of Cumhail, and Columcille, and Ireland, again set at the centre of the world, rivaling the Ireland of the Middle Ages as the island of heroes and scholars.

Pay of County Employes.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your editorial in re "Taxes and City Wages" in today's TIMES strikes the right chord and is certainly very commendable. However, it does not go far enough in respect to the county employes, who are also paid by the city, yet at the same time some of the county officials have taken it upon themselves to increase some of their employes, who are underpaid and receive much less than $1,800 annually.

These employes are worthy of an advance and their cases have already been brought to the attention of the county officials, but were entirely ignored—in fact disregarded—and looked upon as one not deserving of advancement. I think the Board of Estimate should be called upon to look into these matters and ascertain why all employes should not receive a little recognition. The budget has already been made up in these departments, but why cannot they be compelled to make up a supplemental budget before final action is taken.

THE LITTLE CRIPPLED CHILDREN.

(East Side.)

The Little Crippled Children,
They ride to school in state;
Their parents never have to fear
They'll loiter or be late;
Beside each child there lies a crutch,
As well as book and slate.

And all the strong-limbed boys and girls
Look at them eager-eyed—
Wishing that they might have a crutch
And get a daily ride;
The Crippled Children's faces beam
With sweet, pathetic pride.

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

SEES EUROPE'S TRIAL NOW.

Banker Sisson Tells of Difficulties, But Has Hope in Conservatives.

Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company, who returned to his desk yesterday after a six weeks' trip through England, France, and Belgium, expressed the opinion that the situation abroad, while not reassuring, was not hopeless and not nearly so dismal as some of the alarmists have made it appear.

"This Winter will mark the real test of the situation," said Mr. Sisson. "The scarcity of coal, food, and raw materials for industry will have a most serious effect, particularly in Middle Europe and Italy. When people are cold and hungry and idle, the ground lies fallow for revolution. In spots, and possibly in large areas, that may come, but against it is the instinct of these people for creating and accumulating wealth, and for social order. In the long run, I feel it can be confidently asserted that the conservative forces will win the day, although there certainly will be difficult situations to overcome."

The state of affairs in Belgium, Mr. Sisson believed, was particularly bright. The people, he said, were returning to their tasks and both the country and its institutions were on a sound financial basis.

Of other former belligerents, Mr. Sisson was less optimistic. The labor problem in England is the great question of the moment, and the banker said he thought it would have to be fought out, but he was hopeful that the fundamental common sense of the British people would bring sanity and equity out of the conflict.

"England is watching the United States with the greatest interest and some apprehension," he continued. "Our entrance into the fields of shipping, foreign trade and international finance is not an entirely welcome one, but one with which, of course, she must reckon, although not without regret and fear of our rising prominence. That her views must be adjusted to these facts seems certain to us, and I have no doubt will follow.

"English Government officials and financiers view the exchange situation philosophically and on the whole are inclined to regard it as a good thing from their point of view, as they feel that it will restrict buying in this country, induce saving, and stimulate home production. There seems to be no question in the minds of English officials that they will be able to discharge their obligations to us, although they frankly say that they must at times ask us to be patient with them and allow them to work out their problems.

"Rapid progress is being made in France in its work of reconstruction. Her people are returning to work gradually and her devastated districts are rapidly reviving. It will, of course, be years before much of this destruction can be replaced, but the rest of France is busy and prosperous. A great deal of money was spent there during the war by England and the United States, and its effects are manifest.

"France, of course, has an enormous indebtedness, and the French Government has not yet undertaken to collect the taxes from the French people which a sound financial policy would dictate. That this situation must be faced with courage and sacrifice sooner or later is obvious to the outsider, but France herself does not yet seem, as a whole, to have awakened to it. Her Governments have apparently regarded it as politically inexpedient to raise the question.

"Italy faces a serious situation, particularly through lack of coal and social unrest. The same situation applies throughout Middle Europe, and the coming Winter will undoubtedly be the crucial period in its history.

"Germany is setting about its task of rehabilitation intelligently and industriously, on the whole, and if the necessities of life can be provided to her people it seems reasonably certain that Germany will come back rapidly. Germany has perhaps in a higher degree than most of her neighbors industrial will power and economic sense, which are certain to make for her quick recovery, if working conditions are at all favorable. Already the interchange of trade between Germany, France, and England has begun, and animosities of the war, so far as commercial relations are concerned, are being rapidly forgotten.

"My most vivid impression of the European situation as a whole was received from two great labor parades I saw, the first in the streets of London and the last in the streets of Brussels, labor militant and aggressive, feeling its power and determined to gain a more equitable distribution of the wealth it helps to create, and a larger voice in both industry and government. This is a movement which must be reckoned with, and upon it the future of Europe, and perhaps of the world, hangs in the balance. I came away with the feeling that civilization is today walking a tight rope across the chasm between the old order and the new, balancing as well skillfully, but painfully, these conflicting forces which threaten its fall, but so far making progress toward its goal.

"Of course the obvious lesson of the whole European situation is that it can be saved only by production and thrift. This the European economists and financiers thoroughly understand, and they are doing everything in their power to stimulate such activities."

TO FIGHT FOR FREE COURTS.

Supporters of Newburger and Smith Plan an Aggressive Campaign.

Representatives of the Independent Democratic and non-partisan organizations who favor the election of Supreme Court Justice Joseph E. Newburger and City Court Justice Richard H. Smith met at the Hotel Astor last night and formulated campaign plans. Henry de Forest Baldwin was chairman of the meeting and Miss Isabella Pettus secretary. A Committee of Three was appointed to arrange for a Campaign Committee of Fifty.

The Committee of Three consists of William J. Scheffelin, head of the Citizens Union; former Supreme Court Justice Clarence J. Shearn, representing the Committee of the Bar which includes the lawyers' associations, and William F. Schneider, representing the Independent Non-partisan Judiciary Committee of 150 which arranged for last night's meeting.

Justice Newburger and Justice Smith were present last night, and both promised to make aggressive campaigns.

On behalf of the conference a statement was issued which said:

"The Conference Committee urges that every voter who appreciates the great importance of a free judiciary involved in the coming campaign make it his duty to register personally and to persuade his friends and neighbors to register. The success of this fight depends in great measure on the registration. The result of the election in November depends upon the result of the registration next week.

"The party registration will take care of itself to a large extent. Our particular appeal today is to the independent and unaffiliated voter."

Primary Vote in Queens District Is Being Investigated.

Two women and two men, inspectors of election in the Fifth Election District of the Second Assembly District in Queens at the recent primaries, were examined by Assistant District Attorney Edgar P. Haselton in Long Island City yesterday. They were Barbara Aylmer, Anna Key, Frank Keller and John D. Godfrey.

The election records for the district also were summoned from the Queens Bureau of Elections, and last night process servers were sent to summon fifty persons to appear today. This number includes the captains and workers at the polls and persons whose names were certified to the inspectors on the challenge list made out by the Election Bureau after verification of the registry rolls by the police.

The investigation was begun at the instance of Assemblyman William H. O'Hare, who was defeated in the returns from the Third Municipal District for the Democratic nomination for municipal Judge by State Senator Frank Adel. It was reported at the District Attorney's office that there were more than 120 names on the challenge list, and more than fifty of these were voted.

"What we have learned warrants the fullest investigation," said District Attorney O'Leary last night.

It was said the women inspectors gave some valuable information to Assistant District Attorney Haselton.

'WORK' IS HIS CURE FOR LABOR UNREST

More Production, Urges Harding, and Six Months of Industrial Truce.

AMERICAN BANKERS MEET

Credit Expansion, Says Reserve Board's Governor, More Harmful Than Currency Inflation.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—Increased production as a means of settling the present industrial unrest, and the declaration of an industrial truce for six months as a method of reducing the cost of living, were suggestions by W. P. G. Harding, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, in an address before the convention of the American Bankers Association here today.

Causes of the labor trouble, Mr. Harding asserted, are directly traceable to the great war, to its waste and destruction, to its heavy drain upon available supplies that constituted a large part of the world's wealth, and to financial expedients which, he said, were necessary to obtain these supplies.

The Governor expressed the view that credit expansion, rather than currency inflation, is responsible for prevalent economic troubles.

As the Government is paying off its indebtedness at the rate of $750,000,000 annually, the speaker predicted that within the next few months it will be possible for the Government to do away with the issuance of Treasury certificates and operate on incoming taxes.

"We need more production," Mr. Harding declared. "We must strive to develop our export trade. We should not send luxuries to impoverished countries, but should send them necessities. Luxuries should be sent to Latin-America, for the south is just entering on its most prosperous period.

"If the world would declare an industrial truce for six months it would do more to bring down high prices than ever could be accomplished by strikes and agitation.

"Work, more work, is what the country needs. Shorter hours and increased wages will not increase production. To

PATRICK EGAN, HOME RULER, DIES

HAS TRIED WITH PARNELL

Patrick Egan, one of the leaders of the home rule movement in Ireland and former United States Minister to Chile, died at the home of his daughter in this city last night, after an illness of several weeks.

Egan was born in County Wexford, Ireland, Aug. 13, 1841, and, after serving as a bookkeeper, became an industrial business man in Dublin. He was identified with the Irish Nationalist movement. In addition to being one of the founders of the Home Rule organization in 1873 he also helped to found the Irish Land League in 1879.

He was one of the defendants with Parnell when the Irish leader and a number of associates were prosecuted in the year 1880 for sedition and conspiracy. After the trial he lived in exile for two years and directed the operations of the Land League in Ireland. He was nominated for Parliament, he declared, because he would not take the oath of allegiance to the British Government.

He came to the United States in 1883, and Mr. Egan settled in Nebraska, where he established a number of grain elevators. The next year he was elected President of the Irish National League of America, holding the position for many years.

Identifying himself with the Republican party in the United States, he took an active part in Nebraska politics and headed the Nebraska delegation to the Republican National Convention in 1888. President Harrison appointed him Minister to Chile in 1889. General Egan did not get his naturalization papers until 1892, although he declared his intention in 1883, and in the campaign of 1880, though not yet a citizen, he supported Blaine with great fervor. A few days after he had been naturalized he was made a member of the Blaine Irish contingent, which went over to Harrison when it was found that Blaine was not to be a candidate.

INTERESTED IN WHITLOCKS.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—The confirmation of Brand Whitlock as Ambassador to Belgium, is of great social interest as Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock are at present much feted visitors in Washington who recently arrived from Brussels, where the former has served as Minister from the United States all through the war. After a short visit in Washington the new Ambassador and wife will go to their home in Ohio to pass some time before returning to Belgium.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock, the latter formerly Miss Ella Brainard of Springfield, Ill., have been included in many of the attentions offered Cardinal Mercier and will be prominent figures in the entertainment for the King and Queen of Belgium.

Belgium's envoy to the United States, Baron de Cartier, has also been advanced to the rank of Ambassador, but owing to President Wilson's recent absence from the city and his present illness has not been able to present his new credentials.

Baron Goto, former Minister of Foreign Affairs of Japan, who was much entertained on a former visit to Washington in May returned here today en route for home, after participating in the Peace Conference in Paris. The Baron and his suite are staying at the Hotel Washington.

The Minister from Paraguay and Mme. de Gonda have leased as their residence and legation, 1,631 Massachusetts Avenue, of which they will take possession in the next few days.

THE HOMELESS CITY

By Dr. BERTHOLD A. BAER

Moving time and scarcely a place to go.
New Yorkers live in apartments or in hotels.
Few live in houses. Fewer live in homes.
Philadelphia is the city of homes—New York is the city of "a few rooms and a bath."

"When you are sick you consult the 'family doctor,'" said Frank E. Campbell, founder-proprietor of The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th Street. "His prescription you take to your neighborhood drug store. You talk about sickness as you talk about the theatre, and you find this quite natural. But to prepare for or even talk about death in the bloom of life—that you consider shocking, horrible.

"Suddenly Father Time calls 'halt.' You are stunned. There is hardly room for the living; where will you place the departed who needs and deserves as good attention as the living, even more, attention which cannot be given at the home, however pretentious?"

"How can this be remedied?" I asked.

"Realizing that the house, the apartment, the hotel, is not the proper place for the dead," Mr. Campbell replied, "I erected this wonderful building at Broadway and 66th Street, where every year thousands lie in state.

"Immediately after demise the departed is brought to The Funeral Church and placed in one of the many beautiful, harmoniously furnished private rooms or parlors, there to remain until the day of the funeral. Relatives and friends may come and go at any hour, day or night, for the room where their departed lies is theirs, and theirs alone.

"On the day of the funeral the demised is placed in The Funeral Church, non-sectarian, with its ample seating, designed and executed in pure Gothic style. There is no charge for the Church and never has been. People of all vogue of life are worshipping there; clergymen of every denomination have spoken there."

Since my visit to The Funeral Church I understand why the best families avail themselves of this greatest of all institutions, the like of which I have not seen either in this or any foreign country, an institution where the living finds consolation and the dead a home. It is truly the home of the dead.

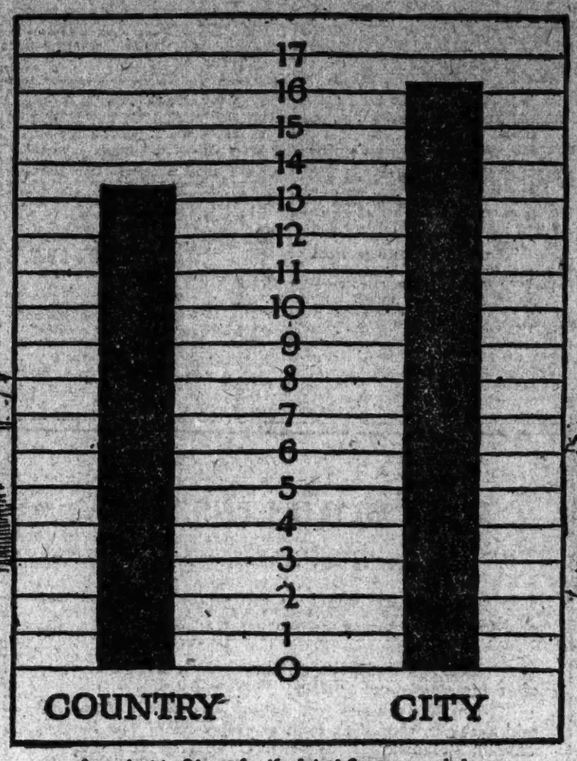
On country roads the yielding earth cushions your feet against the jars of walking



According to figures for the latest five year period covered by the last census, the death rate in cities is 21.6% greater than in the country districts. The figures show 16.3 deaths per thousand in cities; 13.4 per thousand in the country.

On the hard, modern pavements of cities, every step on hard leather heels is pounding away your energy

CERTAIN diseases are so prevalent in cities that doctors call them "city diseases."

Tuberculosis, Bright's disease, heart trouble are ailments known to be common among people who live in cities.

In the last five year period covered by census figures, the death rate in cities is shown to be higher than in country districts by 21 per cent.

These conditions are due largely to the manner in which city people live. The average city worker spends at least five-sixths of his time indoors. If he is out-of-doors more than four hours in every twenty-four, he can count himself fortunate.

The city worker seldom walks. He travels from home to business in crowded cars or trains. He works all day stooped over a desk, a machine or a counter. Indeed, medical men state that the average city worker uses no more than a third of his lung capacity—that about 400 muscles of his body have actually become weakened through disuse.

Is it any wonder that we are susceptible to countless ailments; is it any wonder that the city death rate is so high under these conditions of living?

Walking, the one great exercise which every man should enjoy, has become a burden. Too often it contributes directly to that over-fatigued condition which makes the city dweller an easy prey to illness.

In his usual routine the average city worker takes 8,000 steps a day, on hard, modern floors and pavements. If you wear nail-studded leather heels you give your body 8,000 jolts and jars a day—for every step with hard heels on still harder pavements acts as a hammer blow to your entire nervous system. The constant repetition of these shocks exhausts your energy, helps to bring on over-fatigue, with its ever-present threat of serious illness.

Yet walking on hard pavements need not be any more fatiguing than walking on turf. Walking can easily be made a pleasure and a benefit.

Modern pavements are built for modern traffic. You can't bring back the yielding dirt streets of many years ago—the streets for which leather heels were made, but you can cushion your feet against the jolts and jars that make walking a burden. You can replace hard, old-fashioned heels with O'Sullivan's Heels of live, springy rubber.

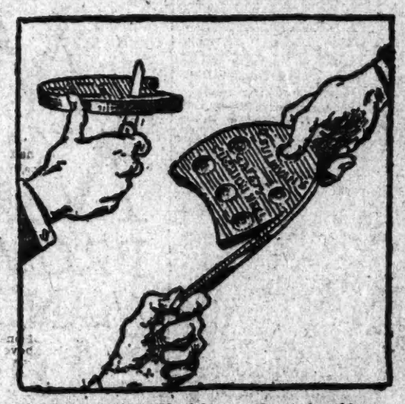
Rubber, as you know, can be made hard and brittle as in fountain pens or soft and crumbly as in pencil erasers. To secure the resiliency and durability of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are "compounded" with the best toughening agents known. The "compound" is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

By this special process the greatest resiliency is combined with the utmost durability.

It is this special process that has, since the making of the first rubber heel, established O'Sullivan's Heels as the standard of rubber heel quality.



If an O'Sullivan Heel is cut along the side so that a thin strip of rubber is left attached at one end, that strip will have great elasticity—it can be stretched several inches. With an ordinary rubber heel the material snaps in two before it has stretched to any great degree. This test proves the remarkable resiliency and durability of O'Sullivan's Heels.

Guaranteed to outlast any other heels

O'Sullivan's Heels are guaranteed to wear twice as long as ordinary rubber heels; and will outlast three pairs of leather heels.

Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes. O'Sullivan's Heels are furnished in black, white or tan; for men, women and children. Specify O'Sullivan's Heels, and be sure that you get O'Sullivan's—avoid the disappointment of substitutes.

One out of every four persons in greater New York wears O'Sullivan's Heels. Fully a quarter of New York's vast population finds that O'Sullivan's Heels prevent over-fatigue from the jolts and jars of walking.

RUSSIANS FLOG AMERICAN SOLDIER

Kalmikoff, "Siberian Villa," Seizes Officer and Corporal, but Former Escapes.

JAPANESE BALK RESCUE

GRAVES DEMANDS APOLOGY

Ill-Treated Corporal Released After Three Cossacks Had Been Taken as Hostages.

VLADIVOSTOK, Sept. 19, (Associated Press.)—Major Gen. William S. Graves, Commander of American forces in Siberia, has demanded an apology from General Rozanoff, in command of Russian troops in Priamur Province, for the arrest of Captain L. P. Johns of the 27th Regiment and Corporal Benjamin Sperling of the 31st and the flogging of the latter by Cossacks, commanded by General Kalmikoff. An investigation of the conduct of a Japanese officer at Iman, the place where the arrests took place, has also been begun by the Japanese high command.

The incident, which occurred Sept. 5, is considered one of the most serious to occur since the Allies landed in Siberia. The two Americans, in uniform and on official business, went to Iman, a town 170 miles north of this city on the section of the railroad guarded by Chinese troops, passports being unnecessary by agreement between the Allies. While they were at a hotel there a detachment of Cossacks entered and arrested the Americans, claiming they were not provided with identification papers. Captain Johns managed to escape and, catching a moving train, went to Spasske, where he reported to the American officer in command. A detachment of 150 Americans from the 27th Regiment at once entrained and went to Iman to effect Sperling's release, and on arriving there took three Cossacks as hostages.

They found General Kalmikoff's men entrenched near the station and were preparing to use force against them when a Japanese major interceded for the Cossacks, stating, it is alleged, that the advent of hostilities between the Americans and Cossacks, the Japanese troops at Iman would side with the latter. He at last told the Americans that Sperling had been taken to Khaborovsk, where General Kalmikoff has his headquarters, and telegraphic demand for Sperling was sent to Khaborovsk, and a reply was received that he would be released at once. The Americans then returned to Spasske, taking their hostages with them.

A preliminary investigation of the incident shows, it is said, that Sperling was flogged, a punishment that is usually meted out to a recalcitrant Cossack. General Kalmikoff, who is considered by the American here as by "Siberian Villa," has, with his band, been a constant source of trouble, it is charged, his raids being marked by cruelties and atrocities. He was recently appointed military commander of the Khaborovsk district by General Rozanoff, and it is alleged this has brought about an increase in his activities.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—At the instance of the Secretary of War, representations are to be made by the Secretary of State to the All-Russian Government at Omsk, Siberia, concerning the threatenment of an American officer and non-commissioned officer by Cossacks.

In reporting the incident to the War Department, Major General William S. Graves, commanding the United States military forces in Siberia, said that he had sent a demand for an apology to General Rozanoff, commandng the Russian troops. In his dispatch General Graves said that the officer and the non-commissioned officer had been released from arrest.

According to General Graves's dispatch, the non-commissioned officer had been flogged by the Cossacks. The names of the officer and non-commissioned officer were not contained in General Graves's report.

It was said at the Russian Embassy that no such combination had been suggested and no foundation for the statement existed.

The Third Army has approached to within forty miles of Kurgan after a hard battle, in which four regiments of Red troops are reported to have been badly beaten and demoralized.

Ohio Supreme Court Upholds Dry Amendment Referendum

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 30.—Unless the United States Supreme Court reverses the Ohio State courts, the action of the Legislature in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment will go to a popular referendum at the November election.

The State Supreme Court today affirmed lower State courts in dismissing the petition of George S. Hawk of Cincinnati against Secretary of State Smith, in which Hawk sought to compel the Secretary of State to refuse to accept petitions filed by the Ohio Home Rule Association calling for a referendum and to prevent him from placing the referendum on the election ballots.

Officials and attorneys of the Anti-Saloon League announced tonight that they would appeal the case to the United States Supreme Court. Should the highest court not decide the case before the election, the question will be voted on. On the other hand, an overruling decision by that court would invalidate the vote, it is asserted.

PASTOR SAYS LANE IS MAN HE MARRIED

Dr. Frank Gives Out Statement After Seeing Vice Chancellor at His Office.

INTERVIEW IS STORMY

Jersey Jurist Gives Out Copy of Heated Altercation Over Marital Tangle.

Following a meeting yesterday between former Vice Chancellor Merritt Lane of New Jersey and the Rev. Dr. Clarence Hill Frank of the First Baptist Church, Stamford, in Lane's office in Newark, during which the ex-Vice Chancellor called the clergyman "a notoriety seeking emissary," "an infernal liar," and "the greatest equivocator that assumes to wear the cloth," Dr. Frank gave out a statement at his home last night that there was no doubt in his mind that the man he faced yesterday in Newark was the man he married to Mrs. Grace Hercht on April 4.

Since the disclosure showing that a Joseph M. Lane, whose parents' names were the same as those of the New Jersey jurist and who otherwise resembled Merritt Lane was married to Mrs. Hercht in Stamford, although Merritt Lane had previously married another woman from whom he has not been divorced, the Vice Chancellor has refused to discuss the details of the case. Yesterday, according to typewritten records which Lane gave out of his conversation with Dr. Frank, the ex-jurist accused the clergyman of "deliberately circulating a scandal without means of identification," and denied that he "came to" Dr. Frank and asked him to perform the marriage ceremony.

"I am absolutely certain that the man I visited today is the man whose wedding ceremony I performed," Dr. Frank said last night. "There is no doubt at all in my mind." Dr. Frank had previously identified Mrs. Grace H. Lane, living in Carmel, N. Y., as the woman.

Dr. Frank said that his only purpose in going to the ex-Vice Chancellor's office was to advise him, in case he identified him as the man, to make a confession of the whole affair, "take the consequences like a man, and start life anew." "At most," he said, "it would be the loss of four or five years, and with a man so young and brilliant as he there ought not to be great difficulty in re-establishing himself. I changed my mind after I entered his office."

It was a stormy interview that took place in Lane's office, the stenographic report given out by Lane shows. Dr. Frank's account of the meeting, from memory, was substantially the same. The clergyman, on entering, extended his hand to Lane, but the ex-jurist refused to take it. The conversation in part follows:

"You are the greatest equivocator who assumes to wear the cloth that I have ever come in contact with," said Mr. Lane. "You know full well what I am referring to. Who came to you and asked you to connect my name in this? I didn't start this story."

"That is my business," answered Dr. Frank. "I came in today to talk about this story and for information. The greatest damage is in the fact that it has been brought into the public eye. It is that that actually happened. What do you think of the marriage laws of Connecticut?"

"I am not physically able," declared Lane. "I can't do it. You are in my office. That question would, under the circumstances, warrant me in throwing you out of that door, if I were physically able to do it."

"What you say to me would justify me in doing that to you," Dr. Frank answered.

"A Christian gentleman would not do that," Lane countered.

Lane then asserted that Dr. Frank had tried to give the false inference that he had identified the ex-Vice Chancellor in court one day by saying that Lane started when Dr. Frank entered the court. Lane said that the reason he had looked at Dr. Frank was that the minister acted peculiarly, and not because he recognized him.

POLICE MAY APPEAR.

Mayor Agrees to Allow Organizations to Attend Meeting.

Mayor Hylan, after putting a damper on the demonstration planned for 1 o'clock this afternoon at the City Hall plaza in behalf of the efforts of the policemen and firemen for an increase in salary, reconsidered his decision to prevent the meeting a few hours later and last night agreed to allow the representatives of the various Civil Service organizations to attend the meeting.

The Mayor wrote to Fire Commissioner Drennan and Police Commissioner Enright not to allow any "disorderly gathering at the City Hall plaza tomorrow or any other day," shortly after which Commissioner Drennan issued an order forbidding any uniformed men of his department taking part in this or any other meeting without his consent.

Deputy Controller Frank J. Prial, President Civil Service Forum, said last night that he had called on the Mayor, and after much discussion persuaded him "that the policemen and firemen had a right to be represented at the meeting today."

Mayor Hylan, in his letter to the Commissioners of the Fire and Police Departments, said: "I note that a few agitators in the Police and Fire Departments, as well as a few agitators outside of the departments, are endeavoring to place the police and firemen of the city in an embarrassing position by making it appear that they are not satisfied with the treatment of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in giving them a $400 increase in salary in two years. The time has come when agitators and trouble-makers in the Police and Fire Departments should receive the same treatment that agitators in the other departments of the city will receive."

DECIDES TO CALL VON DER GOLTZ BACK

Berlin Government Says So, Pleading That Baltic Army Won't Obey Him.

ALLIED BLOCKADE PLAN

Food Ships en Route May Proceed, but Others Will Be Held Up Until Evacuation.

BASLE, Sept. 30.—The efforts of Field Marshal von der Goltz "to make his troops evacuate the Baltic provinces having failed," says a Berlin dispatch received here today, the German Government has decided to "recall him definitely."

Appealing to German Junkers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 29.—The news comes to Paris this afternoon that Field Marshal von der Goltz has heard the voice of Gott, and it tells him to stay in the Baltic Provinces. He declares that Gott tells him to hold fast to Courland for the Fatherland, and he appeals to the militarists and Junkers of Germany to stick to him.

This action by von der Goltz justifies the intuition of the Big Five, who remarked that their latest note to the German Government notifying it of the withdrawal of economic aid until such time as von der Goltz should evacuate the Baltic Provinces would bring into full light the strength of the present administration with the German people. The Baltic enterprise represents the centre of interest around which the military party in Prussia is building up resistance to the existing Government. Now the German people have a chance to make their choice, and the Peace Conference believes—at any rate, it hopes—that when their stomachs and pocketbooks are touched they will side against von der Goltz and his supporters at home who seek to keep him in the Baltic Provinces, thus holding the gateway to Russia, which the German nationalists hate so much to give up.

The Peace Conference is turning most of its attention to the Baltic question. It wants to forget Fiume for the time being. It is unfortunate for that desire that von der Goltz seeks to tie up the Baltic question with the name of d'Annunzio. For, if you say "d'Annunzio" to a peace delegate you get a stare that matches in temperature the weather that has brought the first touch of Winter to Paris. D'Annunzio is a sore subject to the peacemakers. He is the devil of a horrid nightmare which one should forget, or at least try to forget, so the Peace Conference tries to ignore him and Fiume for the present.

There is not a diplomat in Paris who will try to answer the question: "What will happen if the Italians keep Fiume?" The nearest answer one can get is that such an eventuality would be a matter for the Governments of the world, but not for the Peace Conference, to consider.

While this is a pleasant solution for the Peace Conference, there are those who are so unkind as to believe that sooner or later that august body will find the Italian poet's case on its calendar. In the meanwhile the conference tries to forget him, and von der Glotz won't help it to do so.

Immediate Pressure Decided On.

PARIS, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—Germany's recall of von der Goltz from the Baltic region will not satisfy the Supreme Council, it is asserted, the Council being determined to place economic pressure on Germany until all the German soldiers are withdrawn. Those at present in this region are variously estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000. They apparently are determined to restore the old Russian régime there.

Members of the peace delegations have repeatedly conferred with Baron Kurt von Lersner, head of the German mission, concerning von der Goltz and his forces, and the German Government agreed to remove them. The slowness in action, however, has resulted in great disorder in the Baltic States, and the Supreme Council is determined to take immediate steps to bring pressure to bear upon the Germans until its demands are satisfied.

While it cannot be said that a blockade is actually on against Germany, steps are being taken to bring it to financial pressure which will speedily cut off the German food supply and bring the German public to a realization of the fact that German activities in the Baltic States must cease. Food now on the way to Germany will not be stopped, but future supplies will be held up unless the German Government makes good its promises of evacuation.

JERSEY DEMOCRATS MEET.

TRENTON, Sept. 30.—Organization of the new Democratic State Committee here today resulted in the re-election of Charles F. McDonald of Monmouth County as Chairman; Eugene F. Kinkead of Hudson, Vice Chairman; Dennis E. Collins of Union, Treasurer; George E. Blakeslee, Jersey City, Secretary, to succeed William L. Dill, State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, and Lawrence Tunnell, Jersey City, Assistant Secretary.

Chairman McDonald was instructed to name a Campaign Committee of seven, representing the various zones of the State. This will be done next Tuesday.

SUBURBAN HOMES ROBBED.

Thieves Steal Gems from Spencer Welton Home at Nutley.

NUTLEY, N. J., Sept. 30.—The homes of two Nutley residents were entered by robbers early today and jewelry and money to the amount of $2,900 taken. The first robbery occurred at the home of Spencer Welton, in Tennis Place, where the thieves took a $1,500 pearl necklace, two rings, valued together at $350; other jewelry and clothing, and a $50 Liberty Bond and $10 worth of War Savings Stamps.

The second robbery occurred at the home of John Circinelli in Ernest Street, also early today. Fifty dollars in cash and some insurance papers were taken.

HONDURAS FEVER ENDS.

Quarantine Is Lifted on Ships from Corinto and Amapala.

SAN SALVADOR, Sept. 30, (Associated Press.)—The epidemic of yellow fever having terminated with no new cases, the superior council of health has lifted the quarantine on ships from Corinto and Amapala in the Gulf of Fonseca.

Corinto is the chief seaport of Nicaragua on the Pacific and a coaling place for mail steamers. Amapala is a Honduran town on an island of the same name in the Gulf of Fonseca.

King Albert Sends Regrets to Wilson; Reported He Will Not Visit Chicago

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. GEORGE WASHINGTON, Sept. 30. (By Wireless to the Associated Press.)—The greatest interest continues to be displayed by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, now far on their way toward New York, in the condition of President Wilson. A wireless message sent by King Albert to the President read:

The Queen and I greatly regret to hear of your illness and wish you speedy recovery. We thank you for the trip you have planned for us and look forward to our meeting in Washington.

Queen Elizabeth gave a dinner last night in honor of Sophia B. Kiel, the chief nurse attached to the George Washington, and decorated her with the Medal of Queen Elizabeth for her war services. The Queen expressed to Miss Kiel her gratitude for the devotion of the women of America to the Belgians. She alluded to the many organizations founded by the women of the United States, in their generous ardor, which in every possible form had brought relief to Belgium. The Queen expressed her great pleasure in the knowledge that she soon would be able personally to thank a great number of these women.

ALBANY, Sept. 30.—King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium have indicated a desire to visit New York and Buffalo, and Governor Smith, through the State Department at Washington, has extended an invitation to the royal couple in behalf of the State. The Governor informed Acting Secretary of State William Phillips that he hoped to be able personally to welcome King Albert and Queen Elizabeth upon their arrival at New York.

The United States Naval transport George Washington, with the King and Queen of Belgium on board, will arrive at Pier 3, Hoboken, at noon tomorrow, it was announced late last night, and the full program for their tour through the United States will be announced today in Washington by the State Department.

The transport has been making a leisurely, southerly course in fine warm weather while the commander was awaiting orders from the Navy Department as to the time of his arrival in New York.

The King will be met by representatives of the State Department and the Army and Navy Departments on his arrival, and a guard of honor with band will be on the pier. It is understood that the George Washington, after receiving the 21-gun salutes from the forts and the warships at the entrance to the harbor, will proceed directly to her pier.

Ordinary passes issued by the Army and Navy Departments will not be recognized at Hoboken for admittance to Pier 3 tomorrow when the George Washington is expected. Special passes will be issued today by the Assistant Secretary of the State Department, Breckinridge Long, who arrived yesterday from Washington.

CHICAGO CUT OUT, IT HEARS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Reports of the elimination of Chicago as one of the American cities to be visited by the King and Queen of the Belgians, were received here today, and were attributed in dispatches from the East to the affront placed upon Marshal Joffre, when he was in the city, through Mayor Thompson and the City Council failing to extended an official invitation to the distinguished soldier. A representative of the State Department at Washington was asked why Chicago was left off, and replied that he did not know.

"Was it due to the experience Marshal Joffre underwent in Chicago?" he was asked, and again the State Department official feigned ignorance.

At the Belgian Consulate there was deep gloom over the fact that the Belgian rulers will not visit Chicago.

"Dr. Cyrille Vermeren, the Belgian Consul here, went to Washington to see if Chicago could be put on the list of places to be visited by the King and Queen," said an attaché, "but today he sent us a telegram saying that the trip was all planned and Chicago was left off. It seems there was no official invitation from Chicago, while hundreds of other cities sent invitations."

This afternoon the Chicago City Council held a special session for the purpose of extending a formal invitation to Cardinal Mercier to visit the city, and took the opportunity to extend a belated invitation also to the King and the Queen of the Belgians to visit Chicago as the official guests of the city.

GUARD JERSEY JAIL TO AVERT LYNCHING

POSSE THREATENS VIOLENCE

MERCHANTVILLE, N. J., Sept. 30.—James Whitings, a negro farmhand, who is accused of attacking Mrs. Mary Lotsey, wife of a shipworker, was captured tonight and lodged in the Burlington County Jail. The jail was placed under heavy guard because of threats of summary action made by members of a posse of several hundred men that had hunted the negro day and night since yesterday morning.

Although Mrs. Lotsey, who is the mother of five children, was reported to be in a critical condition in the Camden Hospital, Prosecutor of the Pleas Wolverton announced that Whitings would be taken before her tomorrow, in an effort to have her identify him.

Whitings was caught by county detectives as he was making his way along Rancocas Creek, near Mount Holly. For hours before his capture a crowd of angry men, numbering at one time close to five hundred, had maintained a cordon around Two Mile Woods marsh, on the outskirts of town.

After the attack on a lonely road Whitings was traced to the home of his employer, Aaron I. Collins, near Green Tree. He was known to have fled from the breakfast table when Chief of Police Linderman, in the van of a posse, had approached the dwelling, and finally was traced to the marsh.

While Sheriff Lippincott and Chief Linderman warned that any attempt at "cruelty" would be dealt with by them as crime, the searchers, armed with shotguns and rifles, placed themselves around the marsh. The swamp, broad and treacherous, was thoroughly searched during the day, and at night bonfires were kindled.

At sundown, Whitings, who had made his way from the bogs into the woods, appeared at the fringe of trees. Covered by the gun of one of the posse, he raised his hands above his head in token of surrender. One of the party emptied a barrel of his shotgun almost point blank at the negro, who screamed and ran back into the woods.

The searchers then stamped out the fires, and began working their way slowly through the woods. They were still searching when word came that the negro had been caught. He was unarmed, and although more than 1,000 shots were fired into the marsh, he was unhurt.

Protesting against the threatened lynching of the negro accused of attacking a white woman near Merchantville, N. J., the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, 70 Fifth Avenue, yesterday sent a telegram to Governor Runyon at Trenton requesting that he prevent violence. The telegram, which was signed by John R. Shillady, Secretary of the organization, read:

"The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, in the name of orderly Government and civilization, urges that the State of New Jersey take steps to prevent the threatened lynching of a negro, accused of an attack on a white woman, near Merchantville, N. J. Newspapers report threat of mob violence. We urge that justice through the courts, not mob violence, be secured."

MAY PICK LOUGHMAN FOR DOWLING'S POST

SUBJECT TO COME UP TODAY

Both Democrats and Republicans to Have Candidates in Election for Two-Year Term.

Michael F. Loughman, Commissioner of Public Works, who, since the death of Frank L. Dowling, has been Acting President of the Borough of Manhattan, will be Tammany's candidate, it was reported last night, in the election soon to be held by the Aldermen of Manhattan to fill the office for the three months that remain of this year. Both Tammany Hall and the Republicans will nominate candidates for the general election in November, to fill the office from Jan. 1 next until Dec. 31, 1921, when Borough President Dowling's term would have expired.

The Tammany Executive Committee will meet at noon today to prepare for the registration of voters next week and to talk over campaign plans. It was said the question of a successor to Mr. Dowling will be taken up then.

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy is said to have been much sobered by the criticism leveled at his turning down of Justice Joseph E. Newburger and the substitution of the comparatively unknown son of Samuel Untermyer as a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court, and to have been brought to realise that even in this off year in politics Tammany's ticket is far from invincible.

It has been suggested to Mr. Murphy by some of his advisers that the strongest candidate Tammany could nominate would be Congressman Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall. If he should be elected, it also was suggested that he might be groomed as Tammany's candidate for Mayor to succeed Mayor Hylan. Mr. Murphy was said last night by a man who has discussed the proposal with him to have expressed fear that the suggestion would be opposed by friends of Mayor Hylan and the Hearst element.

Among candidates for the position whose names were mentioned in Tammany circles yesterday were Joseph Haag, Secretary of the Board of Estimate; Aldermen William F. Kennedy and John F. Galvin, at one time head of the Water Supply Board.

The Executive Committee of the Republican County Committee met yesterday at county headquarters in the Tilden building, to plan for registration week and the campaign. President Samuel S. Koenig of the County Committee, who presided, said he wanted a Republican business man of calibre to accept the nomination for Manhattan Borough President.

"...e we have a good chance to win," he said. "With the election of Representative La Guardia for President of the Aldermanic Board, and a Republican Borough President of Manhattan, there would be a respectable minority of five votes in the Board of Estimate, to act as a check in the award of contracts and other activities. The board now is a close Tammany corporation, in which the public does not get a look in. It is about time the people realized the condition that exists, and elect men who will have their interests in view to the board."

Representative La Guardia attended the meeting, and made an address.

DENIES WYNKOOP GOT COMMISSIONS

F. S. Baldwin, Manager of Insurance Fund, Tells of Organization's Financial History.

INDICTMENT IS RETURNED

Abraham Bernstein, Chief Accountant of State Commission, Arrested on Bench Warrant.

The financial history of the Insurance Fund of the State Industrial Commission since it was first put into practice in 1914 was reviewed in detail at yesterday's session of the committee investigating the commission before Commissioner Jeremiah F. Conner in the City Hall. Miles M. Dawson, counsel to the committee, called F. Spencer Baldwin, who has been manager of the Insurance Fund from the beginning, to discuss methods, premiums, and similar matters.

Mr. Wynkoop of the Wynkoop Service, Mr. Baldwin said, did not do much business in the first period. After July 1, 1914, a number of his clients took out policies, but he did not remember that Mr. Wynkoop had ever discussed the matter with the commission. He did not know what the Wynkoop contract with the commission was, but he was certain that Wynkoop was to get no commissions from the State.

Mr. Baldwin said he had not consulted the Attorney General or the counsel for the Industrial Commission regarding the paying of dividends, but had construed the law himself and acted accordingly. At the close of the period ended June 30, 1917, on a basis of earned premiums of $1,102,702 the surplus was $19,463. Dividends paid as prior to the period amounted to $58,644. This reduced the assets to $39,000.

Tire Gift is Sifted.

At the afternoon session the connection of the Window Cleaners' Protective Fund with the State Fund was gone into at length. It had been testified to at an earlier session that Dr. Williams, Medical Adviser to the State Fund, who died last April, had accepted a gift of several automobile tires. Mr. Baldwin denied that he had heard that any member of the State Fund force had taken any money for any illegal purpose from the window cleaning group.

Adolph Schwarz, President of the Window Cleaners' Association, and Louis and Morris Frankel, connected with the association, testified that there had been talk of making a present of automobile tires to officers of the State Fund, but that they could not remember just what had been done.

William A. Herman, who has confessed to accepting money while a claim adjuster in the State Fund, went on the stand and said he got four tires at one time and two at a later date, and took them to a garage where Mr. Baldwin and Dr. Williams kept their cars. Later, Herman testified, Dr. Williams took him to the garage and pointed to the tires, saying they were for Mr. Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin was recalled, and said he bought the tires from Dr. Williams, and paid for them by taking up the garage charges against the doctor.

The examination will be continued today.

The first indictment growing out of the investigation was filed yesterday by a Grand Jury reporting to Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions against Abraham Bernstein, chief accountant of the State Commission. A bench warrant was issued and a detective went to the offices of the commission at 230 Fifth Avenue to arrest Bernstein.

Abraham Bernstein was arrested and taken to Police Headquarters last night. Bernstein had charge of the entire ninth floor of the Industrial Commission's office at 230 Fifth Avenue. He lives at 8,909 Twentieth Street, Brooklyn. He was arrested by Detective Russo as he stepped off the Empire State Express at the Grand Central Terminal. He told the detective that he had been in Albany. The charge against him is bribery in that he is alleged to have paid $1.60 on March 18 last to an adjuster of claims in the Industrial Commission.

Fourteen manufacturers, charged with failure to provide insurance for their employes in accordance with the compensation law, were arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Nolan in Essex Market Court. They were held for trial in Special Sessions under bond of $100 each. Complaints in the cases were made by the State Industrial Commission.

FRENCH FRANCS DROP AFTER ARTIFICIAL RISE

Short-lived Gain Was Due Partly to Rumors of New American Credits.

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—The extraordinary rise in the value of the franc which has been puzzling business and financial circles here this last week and which forced the dollar down from 9.30 francs to 7.50, and sterling from 38 to 32 francs came to an abrupt end today. After a feverish session sterling closed at 36 instead of 32.50—it had been even lower yesterday—and the dollar at 8.48 flrm, instead of around 7.50.

This recovery emphasizes what those best in a position to know have been saying for a week, that the franc's recovery was largely artificial and based on unconfirmed reports that America and Great Britain were about to open new credits to France, and assisted, it is whispered, by semi-official offers of sterling through French bankers.

If I learn there was a significant occurrence yesterday afternoon at the moment when Sterling was at its lowest. A trader asked for a quotation for a considerable sum, and by some telepathy it became known that the deal represented an amount really needed by the purchaser to complete a foreign payment. Instantly the price rose nearly a franc, which would indicate that some of the previous business had been directed rather toward influencing the market than representing genuine sales of sterling and dollars for francs.

In this connection it is pointed out that one of the "bull points" for the franc's recovery was an alleged willingness on the part of the United States to allow interest on Government loans to France to stand over for the time being and be repaid later with the principal. What effect this amount, which is around a hundred and twenty million dollars, could have, even if the report had been true, in comparison with the payments the French must make abroad is not clear. French Government expenses for foreign shipping alone amount to more than half a billion dollars yearly, let alone freight charges to private dealers, and the overwhelming fact is that the half-yearly imports represent more than five times the exports in billions of francs. Against such figures remission of interest is only a drop in the bucket.

The exchange market, doubtless, has also been influenced by the hope of arrangements which the French mission, under the Presidency of Minister of Commerce Clementel, which is leaving for the United States early next month, can make with American financiers. But at present it is nothing more than hope, and American bankers here say frankly that they do not see how really big support can be given to France until she makes a serious effort to pay at least part of her war costs by taxation instead of loans.

Frenchmen, both in business and politics, say like startled colts when the word taxation is mentioned. The only panacea they are prepared to offer yet is a further loan of consolidation which would enable them to withdraw some of their over-inflated paper currency from circulation.

State Breaks a Record in Inheritance Taxes

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 30.—A check for $1,050,000 from the estate of the late Frank W. Woolworth, who originated the chain system of 5 and 10 cent stores, was received today by State Controller Eugene M. Travis. This amount brought the total of transfer tax receipts for September to more than $4,000,000, the largest for any month since the Transfer law became effective in 1891.

MEAT COMMITTEE ON VISIT TO PACKERS

Tour of Local Plants Is Made After Conference Regarding Wholesale Prices.

STRAUS LEADS IN INQUIRY

Noyes Says Packers Have Been Operating at Loss—More Rolling Stores to Start.

In an effort to determine the causes for the fluctuations in prices of meat here in New York, Oscar Straus, Special representative of United States Attorney General Palmer on the Fair Price Committee's Sub-committee of Wholesale Meat Dealers, met with W. H. Noyes, head of Swift & Co.'s local plant, the chairman of the sub-committee, and a number of other packers in the offices of Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams. After the conference which was attended by two expert statisticians from the National Food Commission, the entire party made a tour of the packing houses in New York.

The conference yesterday was called by the Federal Food Administrator after the packers had informed him that they could not maintain the Fair Price Committee's wholesale prices on lamb and beef. In addition to Mr. Noyes, the packers present included heads of practically every concern operating in this territory.

Mr. Noyes told Mr. Straus bluntly that the packers in New York had been running their business at a loss since Jan. 1 of the present year and that they had to raise prices on some of the meats. He said that he welcomed an investigation into the business of Swift & Company that would bear out the truth of his words. In reply to a query of Mr. Straus, Mr. Noyes said that the meat business was at all times unsteady. Prices were affected, he declared, by elements all over the country. Even a change in the weather would send the quotations up or down.

J. C. Good, Vice President of Wilson & Company, declared that the days of the slaughter houses in New York were numbered, since it was becoming possible to supply this city from Chicago.

During the tour of the slaughter houses, Mr. Straus kept his guides busy explaining the various phases of the business. Irving Blumenthal, Treasurer of the United States Dressed Beef Company, asserted, in reply to one of these questions, that it was the retail dealers who were responsible in large measure for the fact that meat would be quoted high one morning and lower that same evening. The dealers, he explained, knowing that fresh meat can't be kept long, would come to purchase their supply late in the afternoon and would hurry the packer to sell at prices less than he had intended.

To Decide on Prices Later.

The Food Administrator announced last night that the statisticians would require some little time to make their investigation into the books of the packers. He set next Tuesday as a date for another conference, when it will be decided, if possible, just what is a fair price on meat.

The Law and Order Union of New York State last night made public a letter it had sent to President Wilson regarding an investigation the League had conducted into the food situation of the Eastern States. The letter which cites evidence of alleged hoarding and profiteering, demands to know why the Federal Department of Justice has not been more active.

Commissioner of Markets, Jonathan C. Day, said yesterday that the rolling stores had been made a success that beginning today five more trucks would start out to tour the city loaded with eggs and canned bacon. The bacon, packed in one-pound cans, will retail at 36 cents a can.

HARVARD FUND $945,000.

Committee Announces Receipts of First Two Days' Drive Here.

As a result of the first two days' campaigning in New York City for the Harvard Endowment Fund of $15,250,000, subscriptions of $945,000 have been received, it was announced last night. Approximately $723,000 of this amount was contributed by Harvard graduates.

The increase of about $400,000 over the day before was due to several large individual gifts.

Two subscriptions of $100,000 each were announced by the committee, one credited to a member of the class of '96, New York, and one to Thomas W. Lamont, '92, alternate Chairman of the fund. The firm of Hornblower and Weeks of New York has given $50,000. Five of the eleven partners of this firm are not Harvard men. In addition to these gifts subscriptions of $25,000 each were announced from Eliot Wadsworth, alternate Chairman of the fund; John W. Prentiss, Treasurer of the fund, Thomas W. President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, has given $25,000 or two and one-half times his annual salary as his subscription to the fund. Morton D. Hull, of Chicago, has subscribed $50,000 to the fund.

LEDEN EXPEDITION WRECKED IN ARCTIC

Their Vessel Abandoned After Striking a Reef in Hudson Bay.

Explorer, After Reaching Mainland, Returns to North to Rescue Companions in Open Boats.

SUFFER GREAT HARDSHIPS

But All Are Now Well at St. John's—Explorer Lost Another Ship Last Year.

By CHRISTIAN LEDEN.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Sept. 29.—The Christian Leden arctic expedition was wrecked on a reef in Hudson Bay on Aug. 23 while on its way North, after having successfully passed through exceptionally heavy ice in Hudson's strait. The ship of the expedition had to be abandoned and one boat with Leden and some of the crew reached the mainland, northwest of Hudson Bay, on the day of the wreck. The other boats in command of the captain drifted out to sea.

Mr. Leden, the leader of the expedition, later picked up and saved the captain and the rest of the party who had stranded on a little island damaging their boats in landing. After repairing these boats the whole party started southward. After rowing about a hundred miles in small boats which were leaking very badly, Mr. Leden and his party reached a place where they were picked up by a trading ship just as their provisions were giving out. The leader of the expedition was not affected by the hardships and those of the crew who suffered on account of the wreck have now recovered.

The whole party of fourteen men have arrived at St. John's.

This is the second time that expeditions led by Christian Leden have been wrecked in Hudson Bay. The first attempt to penetrate the arctic failed in August of last year, when the American yact Finback, on which the trip was made, struck a reef off Cape Fullerton. Leden and his crew were at time took to their boats and proceeded to Chesterfield Inlet, where they boarded a steamer and were landed at St. John's.

Mr. Leden started from this city on his latest trip to the arctic on June 15 last. The present expedition was fostered by the University of Norway, and was under the auspices of the Norwegian Government. While the main object of Leden's trip was to make a scientific study of the Eskimos of the extreme North Coast of Canada, he also hoped to bring back the full story of what happened to Professor Andree who started for the north pole in a balloon and never was heard from again.

Christian Leden, a Norwegian explorer and a little over 30 years of age, is known in this city as a lecturer on scientific subjects and an authority on geographical research. In 1916 he returned from a three years' exploration expedition among the Canadian Eskimos.

David Belasco's season began last evening at the Lyceum Theatre when he presented New York with a luxurious production of a new and intermittently entertaining comedy by Avery Hopwood called "The Gold Diggers." It proved to be an unexpectedly conventional play about a great-hearted chorus girl—screamingly funny at times and rather dull at others, mighty well acted at times and rather inadequately acted at others. "Uneven" and "mildly entertaining" are the phrases usually employed at this point.

The gold-diggers, according to Mr. Hopwood's early 1894 philosophy, are women in general and chorus girls in particular. His new comedy is all about chorus girls, and how a rich and monastic uncle who hurries up into the Fascinating Fifties (or whatever that part of town is called now) to rescue his nephew from the clutches of one, falls into those clutches himself.

Now, our playwrights may be goldurned city chaps when it comes to writing the pathos and comedy of a New England farm and our players may be somewhat comically out of their element in trying to embody some of the finer or homelier aspects of American life. But one thing the American stage does know how to put on the American stage. Witness "The Chorus Girl." Witness "The Show Shop." Witness certain bits which make up the filling in "The Gold Diggers." They are done to perfection, and they are hilariously amusing.

Nearly all the first act is just a string of such bits. The opening ten minutes of the play are almost the best ten of all. The curtain rises on a gaudy apartment, looking a bit sick in the filtered light that forces its way through the blinds. There are silk stockings and stays strewn around and fragments of a feast grown cold. A white poodle is yip-yipping in his beribboned basket. And stretched on a chaise-longue, under a flouncy comforter, is a fagged out chorus girl steeping the sleep of the just.

Then as she emerges sourly upon another day you recognise her as the statuesque show girl, the kind that moves majestic across the stage and is grown weary during the war from much holding of a torch aloft. She is sick to death of playing Columbia and France and the Spirit of the Marne. She does not want to be the Goddess of Liberty any more. She has a sinking feeling that in the next show she will have to play the League of Nations. Master Rover and her alimony are all she lives for. Except for one incredible riot of clowning at the finale of the first act, an eruption of burlesque apparently introduced at some one's suggestion that the act needed "a lotta pep," this part is splendidly played by Jobyna Howland, who is quite the life of the party.

Then there is the girl who is so frightfully elegant that she talks as if she had spent all her days at the dear old Gaiety in London, with occasional flights to the "Continong." She can say, "Quand est ce que vous allez a rehearsals?" just like that, though she occasionally loses her firm grip on her culture and once cries out poignantly, "God, ain't she vulgar!" This bit is nicely done by Luella Gear. Then Lilyan Tashman does another bit neatly. Oh, there are lots and lots of bits in "The Gold Digger."

And then one comes to Ina Claire, a clever and a charming person, who is conveniently supplied with opportunities to show her tricks and her manners. She has a song or two and a dance and some carefully staged scenes. She does have a way of regarding each scene, even each line, as if it were a separate and distinct act in vaudeville. Some of those acts she does very well indeed, a few of them rather as Laurette Taylor might. But all strung together, they scarcely seem to add up to a performance. Mr. Belasco says Miss Claire is a star. He said so for the first time last night, in big capital letters on the program and in big incandescents out in front. Very likely he is right. His has said the same thing before in his day and he usually has been right.

First aid is rendered Miss Claire in her ambitious project by two such seasoned experts as H. Reeves-Smith and Bruce McRae, and by Pauline Hall. Miss Hall plays a forgotten chorus girl of another generation, the once-famous Cissie Gray, now peddling soap to the girls of today.

Miss Hall came on just for a moment last evening and was greeted with such a thunderous welcome as is not given more than three or four times a season to an actor in New York. Pauline Hall! What memories of old productions, what recollections of the little smuggled photographs they used to sell with cigarettes in the days when Lillian Russell and Fay Templeton and all the world were young. Ask dad. He knows.

SPECTACLE BY BELASCO.

Rehearsing Chinese Play, "The Son-Daughter," with Lenore Ulric.

David Belasco, it was learned last night, is at work upon the biggest theatrical production of his career. The new play, which is a Chinese spectacle written by Mr. Belasco and George Scarborough, is intended for production at the Belasco Theatre late in November, and the preparations for its production have hitherto been carried on with the greatest secrecy.

The piece will be entitled "The Son-Daughter," and will have Lenore Ulric as its star. It will be staged and played in the Chinese manner, and from a scenic standpoint will be the biggest production which Mr. Belasco ever has made. The cast, which will be large, will include Albert Bruning, Harry Mestayer, and Thomas Findlay.

Although the demand for metropolitan theatres is at present at its height, Mr. Belasco will keep his playhouse dark until the production of "The Son-Daughter," so as to have the house constantly at his disposal for rehearsals.

BROWN LL.D. FOR MERCIER.

President Lauds Cardinal as Champion of Justice—Blesses Crowd.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Sept. 30.—Brown University today conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws upon Cardinal Mercier in the presence of the faculty, corporation and student body. In conferring the degree President W. H. P. Faunce characterised the Cardinal as a "Christian apostle, who through dark and bitter days kept the great soul of a small nation alive; the protector of weakness, the champion of justice, who never yielded right to might, but who, by invincible faith, subdued kingdoms and put to flight the armies of aliens."

Upon his arrival here this morning, the Cardinal was met by a special guard of honor of prominent citizens, and escorted to St. Peter and Paul Cathedral, where low mass was celebrated. Receptions by Governor Beeckman and Mayor Gainer followed, after which Cardinal Mercier pronounced a blessing upon a crowd of persons who overflowed Exchange Place to a point far beyond the reach of his voice.

A luncheon by the Chamber of Commerce, a reception to clergymen of all denominations, and a mass meeting at the State Armory were other features of the day and evening program.

The daughters were not mentioned in the will of the impresario, who left all his property to his wife, Mrs. Emma Swift Hammerstein. The court order was issued by Justice Guy over the protest of Mrs. Hammerstein as executrix under the will.

IRISH SOLUTION UP AGAIN.

British Cabinet to Discuss It This Week—Carson's Message to Ulster.

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Notwithstanding the strike, the Government intends to keep the Irish question to the fore, and it is expected the Cabinet will again discuss a settlement of the Irish problem during the present week, according to The Daily Mail.

Sir Edward Carson, who was prevented by the strike from attending the Ulster day demonstration at Belfast, sent the following telegram to his supporters:

"The conspiracy against our civil and religious liberties, backed by cruel assassinations in Ireland, and lies and misrepresentation in America, to separate us from the British Empire, must be countered by the organization of all our forces. We stand by our covenant in the letter and spirit, and, with God's help, will defeat our enemies as we did before."

The Civil Service.

United States.

The commission announces for Oct. 18 and Nov. 15 an examination for clerk, Bureau of Census, for both men and women. Several thousand appointments for the Fourteenth Decennial Census for duty in Washington, D. C., will probably be made from the registers of eligibles established as a result of this examination, at entrance salaries ranging from $900 to $1,020 a year. Promotions through various grades to $1,080 and $1,380 will be reasonably rapid for those whose services justify advancement. Appointees whose ability and qualifications justify such action will also be allowed the increase granted by Congress of $20 a month, beginning with the second month of service. All appointments will be temporary and subject to termination as the exigences of the service require, but it is expected that the length of service will range from one to two years, but in no case extending beyond June 30, 1920. Applicants will not be eligible for appointment or transfer to any other bureau or service as a result of this examination. Appointment is restricted to one member of a family. Living conditions in Washington have greatly improved since the signing of the armistice in November, 1918. Eligibles will be placed in groups as follows: (35) Those who have been graduated from a college or university of recognized standing; those who have graduated from a standard high school or completed a course of study equivalent to that required for such graduation, and who have had one year's business experience; those who do not qualify under either group. Competitors will be examined in spelling, (10) arithmetic, (30,) penmanship, (15,) letter writing, (30,) and copying and correcting manuscripts, (15.) USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Specialties Take Part in Further Rise of Stocks—Exchange Falls Back.

High call money rates were ignored by the stock market yesterday in its process of seeking fresh influences to promote speculation for the rise, now that the failure of the steel strike has been generally accepted. There seemed to be only moderate offerings of funds during the period when loans were renewed or new loans made, and the result was a rise of the rate to 12 per cent. after a round amount of accommodation had been arranged at 7 and 8 per cent. The impression prevailed, however, that the tightness of market credit was hinged chiefly on bank preparations for today's dividend and interest payments which would probably be followed by renewed ease as the paid-out funds found their way back into the banks in a few days. Support of this idea was found in the decline which occurred to 6 per cent. in the afternoon, and hardly more, than natural reactions under realising sales of stocks were noted at any time. The steel shares were active and strong most of the time, although they were subjected to enough pressure in late dealings to remove a substantial part of their advances. At the close the price list was quite irregular, with the large majority of industrial, and a number of railroad issues, showing gains which, in some cases, were sharp.

A new slant of the professional quality of dealings was detected in the way specialties were brought forward and groomed for an advance. Some of them had not been in the limelight since the original bull market of the year petered out in July, and their reappearance was looked upon in some quarters as an indication that strong groups of speculators had regained confidence, through the dwindling of the steel strike, for fresh endeavor on the constructive side of the market. At the same time the familiar processes of bidding up old-time favorites were much in evidence, with especial attention paid to Crucible Steel, American Tobacco, Baldwin Locomotive, and Worthington Pump. Movements of the sort seen for some time past in some of these stocks have a greater suggestion of concentrated speculation, backed by a great deal of money, than of the play of economic forces, and what appears to be a scarcity of supply has helped make successful the plans of buyers. The stiffness of money rates this week, coincident with a materia. increase in the turnover of stocks, brings forward the thought that over-zealous trading at this time when labor matters are troublesome at home and abroad may bring correcting influences to play in the money market. This happened several times in the Summer rise and on those occasions it was the whole market, not the volatile stocks alone, which suffered.

French exchange slumped, the check rate declining no less than 51 centimes from the final quotation of Monday. Lire also weakened under an increase of offerings, moving down to 9.74 for sight drafts. Sterling was a trifle more steady than the other exchanges, yet receded 1⅜ cents to the pound to 4.18¼ and recorded its minimum rate at the end of the day. Whatever the forces which impelled the recovery last week they have certainly been absent the last two days and advices from the foreign market centres disclose the expectation that irregular and uncertain movements may be expected until credits are arranged.

Prices Firm on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 30.—Prices on the Bourse today were firm. Three per cent. renter were quoted at 51 francs 40 centimes for cash. Exchange on London at 35 francs 90 centimes, and the 5 per cent. loan at 90 francs 95 centimes. The quotation on the dollar was 8 francs 48½ centimes.

COL. STIMSON URGES A FEDERAL BUDGET

FIX THE RESPONSIBILITY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—In urging a national budget system, Colonel Henry L. Stimson, former Secretary of War, said today before the House Appropriations Committee that the loose financial system had led the people of the country to depend upon the President to guard the public purse. As a member of the Board of Directors of the National Budget Committee, he said that a proper national budget system would help restore the usurpation of power by the President to Congress.

"The problem of a reform in our financial methods," said Colonel Stimson, "was forced upon me when I was a member of President Taft's Cabinet. Aided by the so-called Smith amendment, an attempt was made by President Taft to co-ordinate the work of the various departments, and I think that the War Department was at that time the largest spender. President Taft's Committee on Economy and Efficiency was very active in investigating the ways to co-ordinate departmental effort and standardize expenditures.

"It made such an impression upon me, not only in the interest of economy, but also in the interest of more responsible government, that I kept up my research work and was later named Chairman of the Finance Committee of the New York State Constitutional Convention. In the Constitution proposed for adoption by New York State we included a State budget system. Although the system was rejected by the people of New York State, it has since been substantially incorporated in Maryland and has been the subject for much State consideration study.

Expense Growth in New York.

"In New York State we found a gradual but tremendous growth of expenses. In three years expenses increased 600 per cent., while the population increased but 80 per cent., and property values less than 300 per cent. The same phenomenon undoubtedly has taken place throughout the entire country. Governmental activities are growing with the population and are becoming more complicated. Inasmuch as there is a greater demand for expenditures, there is a demand for the elimination of waste.

"What we lack in our national Government is the focusing of responsibility for expenditures and of appropriations for those expenditures. Instead of following principles of efficiency in public affairs, we have been building for fear of a public officer going wrong when we should be fixing responsibility upon him so that when he does go wrong the public will know it and he can be dealt with.

"The President has ample power to amend the situation, but he has not the necessary machinery to use his power. There are three steps to responsible budget making which would accomplish the suggested reform:

"(1.) Formulation of a work program by the people who do the work and spend the money. Normally it must come from the executive branch of the Government. The President of a corporation would not last long who had no program for his Board of Directors. (2.) Authorising of work proposed by the legislative branch. (3.) Work of investigation to see if the work proposed has been carried out.

President Would Meet Friction.

"It would be wholly futile to give the power of preparing an executive budget to a member of the President's Cabinet. The friction he would meet with among his colleagues would destroy his efforts. Every bureau officer thinks his work the most important and it requires the power of the President to make his estimates bear a relation to those of the other departments. The purpose of the budget is to give the President an intelligent idea of departmental needs, for through it he would know the comparative requirements of the departments.

"I found an astonishing lot of duplications and overlapping of power in the consideration of the estimates of the War Department when I prepared a coordinate program of the work of the War Department in President Taft's Administration. I found two or three committees appropriating money with which to buy artillery ammunition. I found one committee supervising the construction of barracks at a Hawaiian army post, and another supervising the construction of a hospital at the same post. It was the first time it had been brought to the consideration of the War Department."

Former Representative Swager Sherley of Kentucky also gave his views to the committee as to a budget system. He favors the creation of a budget prepared by the executive and considered by one House committee as well as an independent auditing and control committee.

"There has never been anything in the way of an executive consideration of the departmental estimates," he said. "At present the Secretary of the Treasury is merely a messenger boy who transmits the estimates of the various departments to the House. The President could and should require consideration of the estimates at the Cabinet table to determine the aggregate of expenditures. The vice at present is that Congress considers items of expenditures separately and there is a failure in both branches of the Government to cast up except in a general, loose way, the expenditures in the aggregate."

Judging the Value of Industrial Bonds

Due to the diverse characteristics of American industries, industrial bonds never have become strictly standardized. There are, nevertheless, certain methods of judging the soundness of an industrial issue.

We have published an instructive pamphlet which we will mail to any investor with a list of bonds which we recommend.

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois operates in fifteen counties in northeastern Illinois, having a combined population, according to the 1910 Census, of 759,655, excluding the City of Chicago. The Company supplies electric light and power, gas, water and heat. Customers on December 31, 1918, numbered 161,533, an increase of 30.16% in the four years 1915 to 1918 inclusive.

The territory served surrounds the City of Chicago, and includes not only the entire suburban districts tributary to Chicago, but also one of the best manufacturing sections in the United States. On account of its nearness to a large central market, this district is an excellent market for light and power.

The notes are a direct obligation of the Company and are collaterally secured by pledge of $133 1-3 par value of its First and Refunding Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds for each $100 par value of notes issued, the bonds thus being pledged at 75. Additional notes may be issued only upon pledge of said bonds in like ratio.

These notes, being a lien through pledge of First and Refunding bonds, rank ahead of $2,997,700 Six Per Cent Debentures, as well as $7,672,000 Preferred Stock paying 6% dividends, and $12,075,000 Common Stock paying 7% dividends. These junior securities, at present market prices, indicate an equity of over $20,000,000 behind the Company's First and Refunding Bonds, a portion of which is pledged to secure notes.

"Foreign Trade Through Foreign Investments"

on a basis which may mean a very substantial profit. On his trip across the Atlantic King Albert stated: "The situation in Belgium is improving. Our people have done work in greater proportion than the people of any country seriously affected by the war, and reconstruction is going forward in a most gratifying manner."

On Account of Present Exchange Rates
Americans are able to buy

BELGIAN GOVERNMENT
5% National Restoration Loan of 1919

issued in denomination of 1,000 francs (normal value $193) at approximately $135 in American money. Should exchange return to normal this would mean a profit of approximately 43%. It will also mean

(a) Greater ability on the part of the Belgians to purchase American goods.

(b) Greater opportunity for all American manufacturers exporting to Belgium and therefore increased industrial prosperity in the United States.

The heroic struggle of Belgium in the great war, the strategic position of its territory, its great manufacturing cities, the great asset she has in the Congo, and the assurance that Belgian exchange will reflect improved conditions as soon as the reconstruction period is over, all prompt Americans to consider the

SHALL THE WEAK RULE THE STRONG? The strongest and most numerous force in the country is the middle class. Shall this class be put upon by small minorities? That is the question dealt with by the Vice President of the United States, in an important and interesting article in the Magazine Section of The New York Times next Sunday.

The Bargain Counter

Current conditions in the financial markets make it possible to purchase securities of companies with long records of stable earnings and with actively expanding business at prices to yield upwards of 7%. In some cases the prices are the lowest on record. A study of such securities will present obvious opportunities.

Chatham County, of which Savannah is the county seat, enjoys both geographically and commercially a position of unusual advantage. Savannah is the second largest city in Georgia and is one of the most important Atlantic seaports. The city of Savannah is in excellent financial condition and its bonds for many years have been considered as among the most conservative investments. The county benefits by exceptionally fine rail transportation and shipping facilities, the Atlantic Coast Line, Central of Georgia, Southern, and Seaboard Air Line Railways converging at Savannah, thereby serving practically all portions of the county. The city is at the mouth of the Savannah River, which is navigable for 230 miles to Augusta. Savannah stands first as a world market for naval stores and second as a cotton port, having more than four miles of wharves occupied by railway terminals alone. Other important exports are fertilizers, rice, lumber, various manufactured and staple products.

The constitution and laws of the State of Georgia have for the past forty years imposed the most rigid restrictions as to the creation of debt upon the municipalities within the State. The protections thus afforded the investor in Georgia municipal obligations are considered as second to no other State in the country.

BUSINESS

The company, through the purchase of the Newman Tire and Rubber Company of New York, operates twelve stores in New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland for the retail distribution of SECONDS of all standard makes of tires and tubes; also has wholesale, export and mail order branches.

PURPOSE OF NEW FINANCING: The new financing will enable the company to establish new stores and provide ample working capital for its retail stores, mail order, export and wholesale business.

PROFIT: Those of our stores which have been distributing tires at retail for eighteen months or more have shown a net profit of at least $6,000 a year per store. At present there are twelve stores in operation and plans have been completed to open about thirty more in various cities of the United States. At an average amount of $6,000, the total net profits for forty-two stores, after all deductions for operating expenses, taxes, etc., would amount to over $250,000 per annum, equaling nearly $3.50 per share on the 77,500 shares to be outstanding with the completion of the present financing. These profits do not take into consideration the earnings that will be derived from the wholesale, export or mail order departments.

COTTON ADVANCES ON BRITISH NEWS

Reports of Improving Labor Conditions in England Give Market Healthier Tone.

UP 11 TO 20 POINTS ON DAY

More Unofficial Reports In, One Placing the Condition at 88 Per Cent.

The better news from England regarding the labor situation and the sharp rise in the Liverpool market sent cotton up here at the opening 25 to 30 points on the average and gave to our market a degree of strength which had been entirely lacking on the previous day. After the first prices had been recorded the market continued to rise until it was up 35 to 40 points on the day. Then there was a slight reaction, and for the balance of the day the market was irregular and nervous, but it never got down to Monday's closing levels, and at the end of the day was up 11 to 20 points.

A new lot of unofficial crop reports was received, the most important of which was the A. Norden & Co. estimate which made the condition 88 per cent., an even 2 points higher than the Government made it. If the same ratio is maintained this time the Government's display, which will be out tomorrow, will be higher than is generally expected, for the trade as a whole looks for a condition of not much better than 85 per cent.

Because of this feeling that the Government's figures will show an unusually poor condition, the market presented a firm undertone at all times yesterday.

Even the fact that the foreign exchange market was again developing considerable weakness did not tend to upset cotton values. It was recalled that a week or so ago, when exchanges were breaking badly, cotton suffered a good deal, but yesterday this factor appeared to be discounted.

Exports for the day naturally were small, totaling only 5,593 bales, all of which went out of Mobile. The big ports like Galveston, Savannah, New Orleans, and New York failed to show any clearances, reflecting the embargo placed on shipments on Monday. However, as advices from England indicated that the railway strike is getting under control, it was believed that this embargo would not obtain for long.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 6,206 packages. Monday's advance was firmly maintained, but there was no disposition to raise prices any higher, except on the medium grades, which are gradually cleaning up and working a little closer toward the best. General trade is good and receipts continue light. Ladies firm. Packing stock slightly higher. Creamery, higher than extras, 8 points, 64@64c; extras, 92 score, 63½@64c; extra firsts, 90 to 91 score, 57@62c; firsts, 88 to 89 score, 54@56c; seconds, 82 to 87 score, 51@53c; lower grades, 49@50c; unsalted, higher than extras, 60@67c; extras, 64@65c; firsts, 56@59½c; seconds, 54@57c; State dairy tubs, finest, 61@62c; good to prime, 55@60c; common to fair, 47@54c; ladies, current make, firsts, 63@63½; seconds, 62¼@62½c; lower grades, 46@57c; packing stock, current make, No. 1, 46@46½c; No. 2, 45½c; lower grades, 43@45c.

EGGS.—13,016 cases. The scarcity of high-grade fresh gathered eggs continues unrelieved, and the market shows a continued strong tone, with dealers competing for the few lots offered at almost holders' prices. On the trading reported there is a further advance on the grades of about 2c per dozen. The market is closing strong. A gradual reduction of the accumulations of previous receipts. Storage eggs are meeting a fair demand, and the sales reported show some further improvement. Tone is firm at prices quoted in the high grades, but some holders are showing a disposition to let stock go at the present opportunity. Nearby white eggs are in very moderate supply, and fancy qualities are rated firm. Demand is not especially active, and the medium and ordinary qualities move rather slowly at very irregular prices. No further fresh receipts of California. TRAIN FOR
JUNIOR ACCOUNTING IN 5 MONTHS,
SENIOR ACCOUNTING IN 12 MONTHS.

Meanwhile, trained accountants are earning $2,500 to $10,000 a year in New York.

Meanwhile, public accounting firms are searching for junior accountants who possess the necessary training and executive ability to develop quickly into seniors.

Meanwhile the U. S. Government requires thousands of income tax and other accountants, and offers to pay up to $6,000 a year for them.

Lack of specialised knowledge and intensive application are the most common reasons for men being barred from good executive jobs, and being held down by routine work.

If you are ambitious to become a successful accountant, or training should enable you to make yourself a Junior Accountant, earning from $35 to $50 a week, within five months, and WITHIN TWELVE MONTHS should qualify you for a position of Senior Accountant, Auditor or Income Tax Expert at a salary of at least $75 a week, with possibilities of double that, or more.

It is only a question of industry—a fixed purpose to devote a few spare hours a week to intensive training in accordance with the most successful business training system ever devised, under the direction of a corps of eminent certified public accountants who are renowned as practical teachers.

MODERATE PRICES AT BRONX LOT SALE

BIDDING AT AUCTION LIVELY

Sound View Realty Company Disposes of 131 Lots for $166,150 on First Day.

Real estate men yesterday pointed out that property is one of the very few articles that has not more than doubled in price during the last four years. They based their comments on the fact that full city building lots in the eastern section of the Borough of the Bronx, many of them on improved streets within a minute's walk of a subway station, sold for less than half the valuation placed upon them by the city's experts for taxation purposes.

The occasion was a public auction conducted by Joseph P. Day, in the Vesey Street Salesroom, of all the lots, 1,000 of them, remaining in the possession of the Sound View Realty Company. This company was organized several years ago by business men and real estate experts to deal in tracts of vacant land located along and between the White Plains Road subway and the New York, Westchester & Boston Railroad.

The sale started at 1:45 P. M. and was adjourned at 5 P. M., up to which time 131 lots had been sold for a total of $166,150, an average of $1,265 a lot.

The slowness of public improvements in the section where many of the lots sold yesterday are located had a depressing effect on their value, and many lots within a block of White Plains Avenue, on which the elevated extension of the subway runs, brought as good a price as those directly on the avenue. This was due in a large measure to the fact that many of the buyers were small investors seeking a plot of ground on which to erect their own home. The first lot offered was 25 by 100 at the southwest corner of Britton and White Plains Road. It was started at $1,000 and finally sold for $2,050 to William P. Rosenfeld, who took the three adjoining lots for $1,500 each. The first lively bidding of the sale came when the corner of Allerton Avenue and White Plains Road was offered.

One of the heaviest buyers at the sale was Max Marx, one of the organizers of the Sound View Realty Company. He bought the corner of Rosewood Avenue and White Plains Road, 25 by 75 feet, for $2,000, and the seventeen lots adjoining, fronting on White Plains Road, for prices ranging from $800 to $1,100. Mr. Marx also made several other purchases. J. Romaine Brown was an active bidder and purchased a number of lots on Bronxwood Avenue at prices ranging from $400 to $850 each.

The sale will be continued today, starting at 1 P. M.

MERCANTILE TRUST COMPANY

How other people's errors can Imperil your Heirs

YOU have doubtless read the list of everyday business errors and considered their application to inexperienced members of your family.

Have you considered the possible application of some of them to more experienced people, acting as individual trustees for an estate?

Unfortunately, carelessness and lack of judgment are not confined to the inexperienced. Have you not seen them displayed by many business men, acting alone and on impulse?

In your plans for safeguarding your estate, consider how a trusteeship established with the Mercantile surrounds your interests with the most modern precautions.

The securities come under the regular and frequent scrutiny of the MERCANTILE TRUST COMMITTEE. This is a perpetual committee of three directors elected from its members by the Board acting as a whole. It is composed of men especially chosen for their intimate knowledge of and experience in handling securities. With them the President also serves in an ex-officio capacity. No action can be taken by a single individual or upon impulse.

Everyday Business Errors

1. Neglecting to get receipts when bills are paid in cash.
2. Neglecting to keep receipts where they can be located.
3. Neglecting to check up items in current bills.
4. Inability to keep checkbook balanced.
5. Too easy optimism in starting credit accounts.
6. Careless handling of valuable business papers.
7. Signing documents without knowing their contents.
8. Tendency to establish living expenses which would exceed income and eat into savings.
9. Tendency to invest money on dangerous hearsay—without proper knowledge of facts.

We would welcome an opportunity to explain any details to you.

Nero and His Fiddle

NERO is said to have watched Rome burn to the ground to the tune of his violin. And by that act he shocked the world.

Many a business head is today figuratively playing the violin while his business is rapidly being consumed.

The new double-breasteds

THEY'VE "hit the mark" with young men. Maybe it's because they're such a complete change from the single-breasted army blouse; maybe it's because they set off the broader chests so well; make young men look wiry, athletic.

The new double-breasteds as we make them look well on any man; one, two and three button models; some with belts.

In our clothes you not only get the livest styles to be had, but you save at the same time; all-wool quality lasts longer—you dont have to buy so often
